CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS

Tenders for Purchase of Elevator, Conveyer, Powerhouse, and Chimney at Deepwater Terminal, Halifax, N. S.

Sealed tenders, marked on out side of envelope "Tender for Grain Elevator and Conveyor" will be received by the undersigned until 4.00 o'clock P. M., on Tuesday, 20th day of April, 1926, for the purchase of the Grain Elevator and Conveyor, Powerhouse and Chimney, at Deepwater, Halifax, as follows:—

1. For the whole structures and equipment contained in them as they stand.
2. For the whole structures, and all equipment contained in them except the 50 H. P. Squirrel Cage Induction Motor.
3. For the whole structures, and all equipment contained in them, except the following:—50 H. P. Squirrel Cage Induction Motor.
   Conveyor Belt and Rollers.

In the event of a bid (2) or (3) being accepted, the Railway will remove the items of equipment not included in the sale, and the purchaser will be required to defer taking possession of the property until the Railway has had a reasonable time to remove the unsold equipment and notifies the Purchaser that the property sold is at his disposal.

As soon as the Purchaser has removed the conveyor gallery and its supports from the roof of the Freight Shed, he will be required to repair the roof and restore it to a thoroughly weather-proof condition in conformity with the remainder of the roof of the shed; and similarly to repair the walls of the shed on Pier No. 3 as each portion of the conveyor gallery or its supports is removed, so that the buildings will be kept in weather-proof condition. The whole of the work of demolition and repair to be done to the satisfaction of the Superintendent of the Halifax Division of the Railways.

The Purchaser will be required to remove entirely from Railway premises the whole of the structure within Sixty days after he has been notified that the property is at his disposal, and to leave the site in a neat condition, clear of all debris.

The highest, or any, tender will not necessarily be accepted.

CHAPTER LIII

The echoes of the shot slowly rolled away, a small puff of blue smoke ascended to the high ceiling and hung there, and on the room flat silence fell once more.

Rand sat in his chair, leaning forward, his face expressionless save for a hard glitter in his eyes. And Church, recoiling from the sudden shock of sound and something far more ominous in Jimmy's words' was limp and haggard and white of face. His hands clenched the arms of the chair desperately, as if seeking support.

"Four minutes, Church." Jimmy's words, though low spoken, seemed explosively loud in that tensely still room.

And Church, with stark fear in his eyes, writhed with terror. "Rand, you're crazy, I tell you—"

"Don't lie. I might as well tell you that I know beyond a doubt that you did. I merely want you to tell me why.

"Do you know where I've come from Church? I've just come from a lonely house in the country where Jensen and Kid Divis have been keeping Olga Maynard. That surprises you, doesn't it? And Jensen confessed to me that he killed my father—killed him in that hotel room in Grafton and then turned on the gas to make it look like suicide.

"I've known for some time, Church, that Ike Jensen was the murderer. But not until today did I know that you were the man who hired him to do it."

"Don't!" almost screamed Church. "You lie!"

"Jensen," went on Jimmy imperturbably, "has confessed. He's being held now by the police," he lied. "Church, if you don't tell me why you killed Henry Rand, I'll tell you why myself, and then I'll shoot you. I'm giving you a chance and that's more than you gave my father."

The other man's head fell forward on his breast. His knuckles were red spots where they clutched the arms of his chair.

Jimmy continued: "I ought to kill you right now, Church. Right where you sit." He glanced at his watch. "There are just three minutes more. That will give me time to tell you of what I learned from Mexico City and still leave time for you to confess."

At the words "Mexico City" Church raised his head sharply, but Rand went on.

"Church, several years ago a man known as Thomas Rolfe died down in Mexico City. He was wealthy—very wealthy. He had made something over a million dollars out of a mining venture.

"When he died he made a very strange will. It seemed that he had a son, but he didn't know whether the son was alive or dead, or whether he had any heirs or not. So when he drew up the will he told his lawyers that his name was not really Thomas Rolfe, but Thaddeus Rand.

Thaddeus Rand, as you know, Church was my grandfather. And Thaddeus said that years ago a son of his, Henry Rand, had run away from home as the result of cruel treatment. Thaddeus had spent years trying to locate Henry Rand, but had never succeeded. He died a heartbroken man, with the feeling that perhaps his son still lived somewhere, to curse his memory.

"Now, that wasn't like Henry Rand—to curse the memory of his father, but Thaddeus was remorseful. Anyway, when he drew up his will he left all his estate to Henry. 'But,' his lawyers said, 'suppose we can't find Henry Rand? Who gets the estate then?'

"'Charity,' said Thaddeus, 'some home somewhere for orphan boys,' and left them with that. And then later he came back and said that there were other relatives who ought to be remembered. There was a sister of his who married a widower with a son. He told his lawyers to locate the sister, and they went to work.

"The sister was dead, Church, and so was her husband, but her son was living. His name was Samuel Church and he was a lawyer. They found you, and you went down to Mexico City, to find my Grandfather on his deathbed. You explained to him that inasmuch as you were an attorney and a relative—at least by marriage if not by blood—he would be wiser if he made you the administrator of the estate instead of his Mexican lawyers. You pointed out that they were apt to cheat on him, but that you would have his interests more at heart.

"So Thaddeus Rand changed his will, making you the administrator and still leaving the bulk of his estate to Henry Rand, and some of it to you; you with the proviso that if not located by a cerain time, the estate be divided between you and a boys' home.

"That's about all I learned from Mexico City, Church. It's enough, I think, especially since Jensen tells me you hired him to commit the murder and Divis confesses that he put that picture in Olga Maynards apartment under orders from you."

Jimmy glanced again at his watch, then lifted the revolver. "Time's up, Church. Are you going to die with a lie on your lips?"

"For God's sake, Rand, don't shoot!" Church's eyes were staring; they were glassy, and the perspiration was standing on his forehead in gread beads. "Don't shoot. God! I'll confess. Rand. I did it, I did it."

He flung his head down on his arms and his bulky frame quivered letter from the credit department of Royal Brothers's department store in Grafton. . . . . It was as the words poured from his mouth in a torrent. He was like a man gone mad—gibbering, unintelligible.

"You see," said Jimmy, "I knew, Church. Now tell me, and I'll give you a chance. Refuse, and you won't leave this room."

(To Be Continued)

Place Names Of P. E. Island

Smith; point, lot 61. Holland, 1765. May be after Col. Marcus Smith of 4th battalion, Royal American regiment, which was Holland's regiment; or General Edward Smith, "under whom I served" (Holland, May 14, 1789)); or Captain Hervey Smythe or Smith (1734-1811), who served at Louisbourg and Quebec and accompanied the remains of Wolfe to England; or Captain James Smith of the Seahorse, which ship he commanded at the siege of Quebec.

Snake; cove, lot 12. Plan, 1796.

Solander; point, lot 55. Chart, 1850. After Dr. Daniel Charles Solander (1736-82). Swedish botanist and pupil of the celebrated Linnaeus. Accompanied Captain Cook, 1768-71, in the Endeavour as assistant to Mr. (afterward Sir Joseph) Banks. On this voyage Cook discovered and named New South Wales. On returning to England Solander remained in the service of Banks as secretary and librarian. In 1773 he was made keeper of the printed books in the British Museum. Solander rock, off cape Cook, Vancouver Island B. C. is named after him. Solander is the author with Banks of "Illustrations of Australian Plants collected in 1776 during Captain Cooks Voyage round the world in H. M. S. Endeavour" published in London in three folio volumes, 1800-05. 319 fine plates and three fine plates and three maps.

Souris; river and head, lot 44. Also Souris town, lot 45. Colville river on Holland. 1765. The river flows into Colville bay of Holland or "havre a la Souris" of Bellin map, 1744. The head is cap a la Soury of de la Roche, 1752. The reference is to mice, of which there were three plagues 1720 and 1738. ("Prince Edward Island Magazine", Vol. 1). Wright and Cundall map, 1874, has Colville point or Souris head. Heacham atlas, 1800, has Souris cove, river, harbour, head and railway station.

Southampton; settlement, lot 41.

South Lake; school district, lot 47.

South; lake, lot 47. See East lake.

South Melville; settlement, lot 29. Earlier known as Melville Road after Robert Dundas, 2nd. Viscount Melville (1771-1851), sometime owner of land in the lot, which came to him from his wife, Anne Saunders, grand neice and co-heir of Admiral Sir Charles Saunders, original grantee of lot 29 in 1767. Refer to Craupaud roadstead.

Southport; settlement, with post office, lot 48. Chart, 1845. South of Charlottetown. Known earlier as "The Ferry" Here also are Stratford and Hopeton.

Spear; point, Princetown royalty. Meacham, 1880.

Spring Garden; creek, Charlottetown royalty. Name adopted for chart by Bayfield 1843-44. Probably anse aux Morts (Deadman cove) of Franquet, 1751, etc.

Springfield; school district, lot 69.

Springfield; settlement, lot 67. From numerous springs on the hillsides. Named by Thomas and Ben. Haslam, who settled here, 1818.

Springfield; settlement, lot 8. Lake, 1863.

Spring Hill; school district, lot 13.

Spring Park; school district, Queens county.

Springton; settlement, lot 67. Name antedates 1862.

Springvale; school district, lot 32. Name antedates 1862.

Spring Valley; settlement, lot 18. A post office August 1, 1897, to September 1, 1913.

Spry; cove and point, lot 56. Holland, 1765. The conjunction on the map of the names Spry point and Durell point, after Admiral Philip Durell (See Durell) seems to indicate a reference to his fellow naval officer, Rear Admiral Sir Richard Spry, who was in command of the Orford at the siege of Louisbourg. He came to America with Admiral Keppel in 1754 and was sent home in March following with despatches. He was promoted to the Fougueux, 64 guns, and returned to America with Boscawen. He was in command of a small squadron at Halifax during the winter, taking a number of prizes, in particular three valuable transports with stores, provisions and ammunition and the Arc-en-Ciel, a ship of 50 guns. He was afterwards appointed to Orford. His active service after Louisbourg was outside of American waters. He died in 1775. Or, the reference may be to Capt. Wm. Spry, a member of the engineers staff at Quebec, 1762, at the same time as Holland. Spry went to Prince Edward Island with General Rollo after Louisbourg to build fortifications and in 1776 prepared two plans for the defence of the island which were forwarded to the secretary of state. In 1767 Richard Spry got lot 62 and Wm. Spry half of lot 37.

Baby's Health In The Spring

Can Best be Guarded With Baby's Own Tablets.

The Spring is a time of anxiety to mothers who have little ones in the home. Conditions make it necessary to keep the baby indoors. He is often confined to overheated, badly ventilated rooms and catches colds which rack his whole system. To guard against this a box of Baby's Own Tablets should be kept in the house and an occasional dose given the baby to keep his stomach and bowels working regularly. This will prevent colds, constipation or colic and keep baby well. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

In Memoriam

MRS. ELSIE IRENE BRENNAN

On March 17th at her home 48 Dorval Road, Toronto the death occurred of Elsie Irene Forbes, wife of Mr. Stephen Brennan. Mrs. Brennan was born at Tyne Valley, P. E. Island and was a daughter of Rev. J. M. Forbes and had lived at Alberton and Victoria with her parents before leaving the Island some years ago. She leaves to mourn besides her husband, four children, John G., James C., Agnes I., and Stephen G.

Her funeral to St. Vincent de Paul Church was largely attended by her many friends in Toronto where she has resided for a number of years.

Mrs. Brennan was educated in Alberton and U. S. A., and married in Cleveland, Ohio in 1912, Her husband M. S. Brennan, son of the late Jno. P. Brennan being also a native of Alberton. They have resided in Toronto for a number of years Mr. Brennan being manager of one of the important branches of the Bank of Nova Scotia in that city.

Their many friends on the Island will learn with deep regret the above sad news.

Fashion Hints

By Marie Belmont

One would think that there could be little variety to so simple a garment as the combination, yet resourceful designers are always launching new things.

The spring model shown above proves to us that the new combination is quite as interesting as the spring frock. White crepe is used for this one, with interesting scalloped insets of pale blue georgette.

Notice that the bodice section follows the lines of the figure, so it will be quite in accord with the moulded lines of the frock worn over it.

TREE-TOP STORIES

LITTLE BUILDERS

MARJORIE'S Daddy put a tiny bird-house in the Maple tree.

One April day Marjorie heard a great fussing and scolding up there.

Straws were hanging out of the little door, and a mother Wren was throwing other straws about angrily. All the while she gave quick, scolding chirps.

Then the Daddy Wren flew up with a straw in his bill. Mother Wren looked at the straw, then picked it up and threw it away.

"You are a very fussy lady," Marjorie said. "Why don't you smile and say 'please?'"
