Site For Big Smelter Will Be Near City

VANCOUVER, April 29.—General satisfaction was expressed yesterday at the announcement that active steps are under way to establish a smelter at Vancouver.

A Gerald Hodgson, solicitor for the Vancouver Smelters, Limited, which was granted its certificate of incorporation on Thursday afternoon, stated that pending completion of several negotiations now under way, the backers of the company did not wish to reveal their identity. For that reason the provisional directors mentioned in the memorandum of incorporation are simply members of Mr. Hodgson's office.

The company plans to proceed with the acquisition of properties and other preliminary work without delay, he said. Without revealing the precise location in view for the plant Mr. Hodgson stated that it would be close to Vancouver.

Will Be Large Plant.

The owners of the new company, he said, were chiefly men interested in ore properties suitable for the smelter's purposes, but it was probable that other properties would be acquired also along the coast within easy transportation distance. It was altogether likely, he added, that the smelter would do a large volume of custom business, although several questions of policy are yet to be decided.

Plans are in hand, he said, for one of the largest plants in America so as to take care of the requirements of the coast mineral zone for many years to come. The company incorporated with $50,000,000 capital and local as well as eastern money is reported to be back of the concern. The company has business and financial connections in eastern Canada, Great Britain and the United States said Mr. Hudgson.

Construction of a smelter at or near Vancouver is regarded as a development of first rate importance in business circles.

Employment For Hundreds.

It makes possible the development of scores of mineral properties which now have no outlet for their ore owing to transportation or other difficulties, which a coast smelter will overcome. It will mean the employment of hundreds of men both during construction and operation and around it are bound to spring up other industries manufacturing into various articles the raw product of the smelter.

Vancouver is so advantageously situated for the development of a foreign market for thsee commodities that high hops are held for a real wave of industrial expansion to follow on the heels of the smelter.

Manitoba Legislature Has Record Sitting

WINNIPEG, May 3.—With the prorogation of the Manitoba legislature early this month a new long distance sitting record for the legislative assembly was established. The legislature was opened on January 10 and during the last month of business, night sessions were the order. During the session, the solons dealth with 172 bills of which number 124 received the accent of the Lieut-Governor.

Decision to introduce the single transferable vote or the preferential ballot system in all constituencies outside of Winnipeg was one of the outstanding measures passed.

Great interest was shown in the debate on the Church Union bill, during the discussion of which the emphatic opinion was advanced by members that every protection should be afforded minorities in congregations in connection with property rights.

Workmens' compensation was another important piece of legislation before the house. Prolonged discussion on the subject was only avoided through the suggestion of the attorney-general that the recommendations of both employers and employes be reviewed by a special committee of 15, comprising members of the legislature and both factions.

A proposal made by the provincial treasurer to write off certain asserts regarded as doubtful, amounting to approximately one million dollars led to an animated debate during the closing hours of the session. Hon. T. C. Morris, leader of the Liberal party, opposed this measure bitterly, contending that an unfair attempt was being made to increase the deficit of his administration.

The liquor commission came under considerable fire when resolutions introduced by opposition groups provoked a mild storm. Efforts were made to reduce the salaries of the commissioners, but in every instance suffered defeat.

A bill to amend the Public Schools act was passed, giving effect to another recommendation in respect to closed schools. Financial assistance is provided for territories and school districts in rural municipalities where the average assessment per teacher for the municipality on an equalized basis of less than $100,000.

The legislature re-affirmed its stand on the natural resources questioned and a resolution presented by Premier John Bracken asking the Dominion, government to refer the matter to arbitration was endorsed. The federal authorities were also asked to proceed immediately with work on the Hudson Bay Railway.

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND

Come to Prince Edward Island,
Come and take a trip
Where the fields are full of clover
For the honey bee to sip.

The air is fresh and balmy
After the summer showers
And it rivals fair Bermuda
With its lovely blooming flowers.

Go down to the beach in the morning
When the tide is rising high
The sun is up in the Heaven
And the birds are singing by.

The water is clear and sparkling
Just the time for a dip
And always somewhere in the distance
Gleams the sail of a gallant ship.

You can rest at noon near the branches
Of the beautiful maple tree
You can roam at will in the evening
Over the moor and sea.

You can sleep at night in a cottage
Over looking the bay,
While in through the open window
Comes the scent of new mown hay.

Our roads are open for autos
Morning, noon and night
But please be a little careful
And always turn to the right.

So come and spend your vacation
On our beautiful Isle so green
And you'll say with the greatest pleasure
'Tis the best you have ever seen.

Outcome In Germany Uncertain

(Canadian Press)

BERLIN, May 2.—Who is going to lead the reactionaries in place of the late Dr. Helfferich and what are now their chances at the polls on Sunday? The Nationalists comprise the most formidable bloc of opposition to the Dawes reparations proposals, and now that their redoubtable leader is no more—he was killed in the train wreck at Bellinzona a fortnight ago—it is possible Sunday's polling may leave them seriously weakened.

Dr. Helfferich's death deprives his party of its only outstanding intellect. For Germany as a whole, however, Helfferich's death, following upon the demise of Hugo Stinnes and Dr. Rudolf Havenstein, formerly president of the Reichsbank, removes the last of the trio regarded in many circles as being principally responsible for Germany's economic and financial disintegration.

What Dr. Helfferich, as Minister of Finance, began during the war, Stinnes and Haverstein completed, particularly during the period of passive resistance. It is quite certain that on the hope of German victory Helfferich based his entire war finance policy.

He spoke confidently of the "ball and chain the Allies will have to bear for decades." For this reason he refused to support a proper war taxation programme, but preferred to operate through the pawnshop rather than saddle the nation' propertied classes with their share of war costs.

During the first year of the Ruhr occupation, when inflation reached its peak, Helfferich was Haverstein's chief adviser and mentor, while with Stinnes he bitterly opposed all efforts of the government to stem the tide of inflation. Helfferich was one of the bitterest opponents of the republic and the policy of fulfilment on the floor of the Reichstag. With his biting satire and his unquestioned ability in debate he bounded the leading spokesmen for the republic. The assassinations of both Erzberger and Rathenau followed closely upon the diatribes delivered against them by Helfferich.

In the present internal conflict for an against acceptance of the Dawes report Helfferich took a lead for rejection settlement on the basis of the 'experts' recommendations in the new Reichstag. His last act was the writing of a violent article demanding rejection of the Dawes report and warning that its acceptance meant enslavement of Germany for decades.

He was returning home to resume his opposition and make his rejection report and leading campaign issue of the Nationalis' party. His death, it is believed, may be symbolic of the defeat of the reactionary opposition.

DISCOVERY SHOWS RAYS OF LIGHT CAN BE MADE TO TRAVEL IN CIRCLES

LYNN, Mass., May 2.—Light can be made to turn corners and even travel in a complete circle, Edward R. Berry, assistant director of the Thomson Research Laboratory of the General Electric Company, has found. Today he gave a demonstration.

Fused clear quartz has the property to carry rays of either light or heat, and Mr. Berry has succeeded after ten years of work in producing it.

Today he showed how a solid tube of this substance, bent in a semi-circle, carried light throught it just as though the quartz were hose and the light water. Heat worked the same way. Applied at one end of the tube, it could be felt at the other, but quartz in between was cool. The quartz is as transparent as pure glass. The discovery is expected to prove valuable for fighting disease. Hitherto ultra violet rays contained in sunlight with their curative powers could be applied only externally. Now the rays can be passed through the fused quartz into the throat or through an incision into the body.

GAS WELL BREAKS CANADIAN RECORDS

LETHBRIDGE, Alta, May 2.—Smashing all records for gas wells ever drilled in Canada, the Rogers-Imperial well at Coutts, which came in a giant gusher at 2,528 feet, a week ago, was tested on Sunday, measuring 62,480,000 feet open flow for 24 hours.

This one well, if connected to the pipe line, would be sufficient to supply all gas users in both Lethbridge and Calgary. The well is now fairly well under control.

"Old Glory," the well that made the Bow Island field famous 15 years ago, was a 29 million foot well.

NOVELTY STOCKINGS

A novelty in hosiery is the one of glove silk with paisley and oriental designs in brilliant colors completely covering it. Such stockings are worn with black or white pumps and with sports or fancy costumes, but are probably at their best with the pleated white skirt.

MRS. DENNIS MUNRAGHAN

The death occurred at her home Tarantum, on April 21st, 1924, of Susan, beloved wife of Dennis Murnaghan, in the 77th year of her age.

Deceased had been in failing health for about a year, but bore her illness with a peaceful resignation to the Divine Will.

Mrs. Murnaghan was a remarkable, quiet, industrious, loving wife and mother. A kind, charitable neighbor whose peaceful and humble manner, together with a sincere, pious practice of her holy religion endeared her to a wide circle of friends and acquaintances, especially in the community she lived so long.

She leaves to mourn a sorrowing husband, one son, Michael F., also two brothers and one sister, Michael Croken, Clermont, John and Mary Croken, Emerald.

Her funeral took place to St. Patrick's church, Fort Augustus, and although the roads were almost impassible, a large number attended. The pastor, Rev. A. J. McDonald performed the burial service.

The pall-bearers were, Thomas McAdam, Michael McDonald, John T. Garland, James J. O'Connell, Joseph Beard and Patrick Sherry.

May her soul rest in peace.

You lived in favor with your God,
You tried to do his will,
I trust all we you left behind
Your example may fulfill.
And now since you are gone to rest
Beyond the earthly tomb,
We trust you are numbered with the blest,
In that sweet happy home.

Debutante 80 Years Ago

(By Dominion News Service)

LONDON, May 1.—A woman, who can give intimate personal reminiscence of great Victorians and of Society life and Leaders nearly 100 years ago, still lives in the West End of London.

She is Miss Elizabeth Underwood Lisle, who was 15, 103 years ago.

Miss Lisle, was presented at Court 60 years ago, and among her acquaintances were Disraeli, Cardinal Newman, Dickens and Tennyson.

She retired from Society life half a century ago.

Of Charming old-fashioned courtesy, she speaks freely of her recollections of the past.

"Even now," she says, "I can recite the whole of 'Hamlet,' although I sometimes have to think a little more than I had to before."

So good was her voice formerly that Dickens and Browning often engaged her to read their finished works to them.

Miss Lisle remembers meeting Florence Nightingale, and being impressed by her character.

Although she tells with relish the incident of the Princess afterwards Queen Victoria sliding down the stircase on a tea tray as a last escapade before her coronation. Miss Lisle has little sympathy with the behaviour of the young folk of today.

She reads all about them in the papers, and wishes the girls would wear more clothes. She does not consider herself competent to judge the men.

Miss Lyle spent many hours in the company of Lord Tennyson when he was Poet Laureate. The poet, who, she says, drank a bottle of the finest port every day was invited to dinner, and the host had port wine fetched from his cellar.

Tennyson took a sip, and then protested against being served with such vile stuff. In a few moments he had the table in a state of concern, and the host, unable to satisfy the taste of his distinguished visitor from his own cellar, was compelled to send for a bottle of Tennyson's favourite port.

Miss Lisle has a horror of slanderous gossip, and mentioned how, when a woman visitor was maligning one of her asquaintances, she asked her to leave the house.

"Life is too short," says this woman of 103, "to waste any part of it in telling evil tales of other people."

Miss Lisle, who enjoys good health for her years, went for short daily walks in the quieter streets near her home until recently.
