of a prospectively remunerative market.

In Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and India, farmers will have an additional incentive in a desire to increase the available food supply for the British Empire and especially for the Mother Country during a period of strain and trial. Cables represent the people of Great Britain as tranquil and unafraid. The Government has taken over all the flour mills in the country and may take over the ripening crops.

It only remains for the British fleet to keep the ocean routes open and the whole British Empire may be almost as comfortable so far as the necessities of life are concerned as in times of peace. The absence of panic in the British Isles probably reflects a general confidence in the ability of the navy to crush the enemy and place the British mercantile marine in large measure on a peace footing.

The action of the Ottawa Government in appointing trade experts to prevent the extraction of exorbitant profits by dealers in table necessities should calm the fears of the Canadian public. If as is represented the Dominion can spare seven months' food supply for the Motherland, there is no ground for apprehension on this side of the Atlantic.

Street, last week.

Mrs. Stewart and Miss Stewart of Stratford and Miss Warburton of Charlottetown are expected home this week from their most interesting European tour.

The many friends of Mrs. J. E. B. McCready, who is at present visiting her sister in St. John, will regret to learn that she has been indisposed during the past week. She has been joined by Mr. McCready.

Mrs. Cartwright, Ottawa, returned from Brackley Beach a few weeks ago, owing to the serious illness of her husband, A. D. Cartwright, secretary of the Railway Commission. Mr. Cartwright, who has quite recovered, has accompanied Mrs. Cartwright back to Brackley Beach, where they will spend the balance of the summer.

Mrs. F. G. Perkins, who charmed so many with her delightful singing when visiting here a few summers ago, has arrived to join her husband who is at present holidaying in Charlottetown.

"Results to Policy Holders account for The Great-West Life's success, now more pronounced than ever before."

Observe a Typical Acknowledgment from one of the Policyholders:

"I take this opportunity of thanking your Company for the very satisfactory settlement made me on Policy No 1230 20 Year Endowment. I paid in the twenty years the sum of $670, and received a cheque for the sum of $1,418, thus giving me a profit of $748, my money back and protection for $1,000 for twenty years. I beg to say that I consider this a most excellent investment."

GUARDIAN'S SPECIAL CABLE SERVICE

Arranged with London Times and London Daily Telegraph.

The Guardian has just concluded arrangements whereby it has obtained the right of exclusive publication of all the cable dispatches of the London Daily Times and the London Daily Telegraph in addition to the dispatches from Montreal, Halifax and St. John.

This service includes special signed cables from Ashmead Bartlett, who acquired great fame for his mastery work in covering the Russo-Japanese, Balkan and Boer wars; E. J. Dillon, the expert English journalist who is in close touch with all of the inside workings of European diplomacy, and others of equal repute.

Cables from other correspondents in the principal European capitals will include the dispatches of Herbert Temple, W. Orton Tewson, and Frederick Villiers in London; Fritz Jacobsohn, Steven Burnett and Frederick Werner in Berlin; C. F. Bertelli in Paris and others who will cover the European war from every possible angle.

This service will afford our readers prompt, accurate and complete war reports written in masterly style and upon which complete reliance may be placed.

PROGRESS OF THE WAR

Whatever hopes or fears may have been entertained as to the outcome of the war that is now deluging sections of Europe with blood it is clearly evident that the German Kaiser has met with reverses which he could not have figured on when he "thrust his sword into the heart of civilization."

In yesterday's Guardian we gave a detailed report of the first great battle. The report may have been colored by the prejudices of the narrator, he may have exaggerated the triumph of his countrymen and the discomfiture of his country's enemies, but coloring and exaggeration admitted the fact remains that the Germans were outclassed, outfought and signally beaten. They fled precipitately, fled in disorder, fled in terror of their despised enemies, the Belgians, the smallest nation involved in the war. And they met the same treatment at the hands of the French, whom they have yet to settle accounts with. From every viewpoint the land operations, although only begun, have given the world a different view from that held ten days ago of the magnificent German army which was said to be the finest fighting machine in the world. They must also have given the Kaiser and his military leaders some serious considerations.

True, the war has only begun. The battle we reported yesterday was the first in which cavalry and infantry had an opportunity to try each other's mettle in tactics and in effectiveness. The German army, we know, is on parade and in picturesqueness—probably the finest aggregation in the world but their fighting so far has placed them in the category of the obsolete and the inefficient. They are a brave, ingenious, intelligent people; they may change their tactics; if they do not the war will only last as long as they can bring enough men into the field to be slaughtered.

Their navy has not done any better. The two swift cruisers in the Mediterranean, the Goeben and the Breslau have met an inglorious end. They are both to be dismantled in the neutral waters into which they escaped rather than fight. Their "heels" saved them from destruction to meet an even more ignominious defeat than had they fought and been captured. They are denied even the consolation of the old adage that "he who fights and runs away, may live to fight another day." They ran away and took shelter in the Dardanelles where, according to international law, they could not remain more than twenty-four hours. They feared to get out and are to be dismantled.

So has the war begun. The end is not yet but it looks like the beginning of the end for Germany. She not only underestimated the strength of her enemies and overestimated her own but she turned the whole world against herself. In one week her commerce was strangled. When the war began she had over 2000 steamers of nearly 6,000,000 tons gross on the seas besides 2,700 sailing vessels. Hundreds of these have already been captured, others made for neutral ports where they must remain until the war is over.

Her fleet in the North Sea is bottled up. They are lying safely behind their submarine mines but Great Britain will get them eventually. Her ally, Austria, is faring no better. Russia has beaten her wherever and whenever they have met.

It is too soon to prophesy but the events of the past week give good cause to hope that the power that has been the curse of Europe for the last quarter of a century is about to be removed. When Germany is obliged to begin laying the foundations of a new Germany, without an army, without a navy, with her territory narrowed by several provinces, she will rise again, not as a military nation, but as a force in the advancement of civilization. "Nothing is ever settled until it is settled right."

FOOD IN WAR TIME

There is probably little ground for the selfish, panicky rush of a few Canadians for flour and other food supplies. If the British navy sweeps the German war vessels off the sea within a reasonable time the duration of the war will be appreciably lessened. In the absence of millions of reservists who have been called out in Europe, the men, old and young, who remain at home, the women and children will probably be able to save the present season's crops which are now ready for the

OYSTER LECTURES

Prof. Julius Nelson, Biologist of the Experimental Station in the State of New Jersey will deliver a series of ten lectures in this Province on the life history of the oyster. He is one of the greatest authorities in United States on matters of oyster cultivation, having carried on fruitful experiments from 1887 to the present time. Prof. Nelson is a practical oyster culturist and a pains-taking lecturer so that the Province is very fortunate in securing his services. These lectures are intended for the fishermen and the actual workers on oyster plantations. This is a rare opportunity and we stringly urge our oyster fishermen to get all the information they can from Prof. Nelson during the short time he is here. Five of the ten lectures will be given near and around Richmond Bay, the home of the famous Malpeque Oyster. The lectures will be illustrated with slides. The programme of lectures is given elsewhere in this paper.

HAPPENINGS OF THE WEEK

The ladies of Charlottetown are at present deeply interested in the Canadian Women's Hospital ship, which the women of Canada are presenting to the Imperial Government and a considerable amount is being raised. The summer visitors at Holland Cove under the auspices of the Royal Edward Chapter, intend giving a musicale at Government House next week to help along the worthy cause.

Miss Laura Young of Montreal is being welcomed home by many of her old friends. She is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Alley.

Mrs. W. S. Stewart has returned from a pleasant visit with his sister Mrs. Jones at Shediac.

Miss Katherine James gave a pretty afternoon tea Tuesday for her guest Miss Ethel Dobson, of Halifax, at which a bevy of young people were present.

Mrs. E. G. Coombs and Miss Ethel Longworth will serve afternoon tea at the Golf Links today.

Dr. and Mrs. Fullerton, who were to have arrived home from Calgary last night have decided to remain for another week.

Miss DeLlois entertained informally this week for her cousin Miss Anthony of London, England.

The Misses Blanche and Myrtle Finlayson entertained about fifty friends at a most unique garden party at their home, 189 Dorchester

"THIS THING IS FROM ME."
(I King's xii 24)

There is nothing happens to you my child,
But what I have planned for you,
The disappointment, the loss and the grief,
As well as the joy and the sweet relief,
Have a message good and true.
It may be your murmur, and fret, and wish
That your lot were different quite
The chisel is needed to make you fit
For your place in glory, and every whit
On your way to it is right.

Since I am the Teacher and in my school
No lesson is idly taught,
But each has a definite end in view,
And when it is learned has a blessing true,
With the highest import fraught—
Can you trust Me, though you may not see,
And cast yourself on my care?
Since knowing your weakness, lean hard on Me
Remember I'm caring, My child, for thee,
And that I your trouble share.

THE GREATER YOUR BURDEN, THE CLOSER I COME,
To take the heaviest end;
So leave to my wisdom your daily cross,
For its planned for your greatest good, not loss,
This thing is the thing that I send.

Then take from my hand whatever comes;
Remember, it is from Me,
And that I, your Father, who loves you so,
Much more than you ever can feel or know,
Give all things in love to thee.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is both in and out of the ear. It is entirely curable. Send for our circulars, free.

Money Smoke Routs School

Pupils and teachers of the Auburn school, Colorado, were forced to beat a hurried retreat from the building when burning honey in the furnace caused such a smoke that remaining inside was impossible.

Last summer bees made their home in the schoolhouse, and stored their winter supply of honey in the ventilators of the heating plant. The bees were driven away, and no one thought of the honey until it melted and ran into the fire.

Nugget in Hog's Tooth

In cutting up the head of a 300-pound hog, preparatory to making soups, or headcheese, Mrs. Kate Warren, of Dillon, Colorado, found one of the hog's teeth contained a gold nugget in its cavity. It is estimated to be worth about $3. The hog came from the Thompson ranch, near the Gold Hill placer mine, in Blue River Valley, about six miles north of Breckenridge.

Chinese Codes

Codes are more extensively used in telegraphing in China than in any other nation because Chinese sounds cannot be perfectly represented by Roman letters.
