FRENCH CANADIANS SHOW GREAT BRAVERY.

OTTAWA, April 21.—Capt. E. W. Pope, son of Sir Joseph Pope, and a member of the staff of the third brigade of infantry under General Turner, writes to his mother under date of April 2 regarding the campaign. In the letter he says:

"The French-Canadian company, 250 strong, forming part of our brigade, is very much admired by all those around. In all the engagements they have shown the utmost bravery."

SICK CHILDREN LOVE CASCARETS FOR THE BOWELS

Give "Candy Cathartic" for a Bad Cold, sour stomach, constipation.

Get a 10-cent box now.

Most of the ills of childhood are caused by a sour, disordered stomach, sluggish liver and constipated bowels. They catch cold easily, become cross, listless, irritable, feverish, restless, tongue coated, don't eat or sleep well and need a gentle cleansing of the bowels—but don't try to force a nauseating dose of oil into the little one's already sick stomach—it is cruel, needless and old-fashioned.

Any child will gladly take Cascarets (Candy Cathartic) which act gently—never gripe or produce the slightest uneasiness—though cleanse the little one's system, sweeten the stomach and put the liver and bowels in a pure healthy condition.

Full directions for children and grown-ups in each package.

Mothers can rest easy after giving this gentle, thorough laxative which costs only 10 cents a box at any drug store.

AMERICANS DESIRE TO JOIN MOUNTED POLICE.

OTTAWA, April 22.—An average of three or four applications daily are being received from men in all parts of the United States who want to join the Northwest Mounted Police. The regulations, however, require that men who join the force must be British subjects. Several of the British army reservists who left the force to go to the war have written Colonel Fortescue, the comptroller, giving some graphic details of the great struggle.

Col. Fortescue left for the west to night on an inspection trip. He reports the amount of crime in the west as little altered by the war conditions. The mounted police are still busy arresting foreigners who have not registered, and bringing them before the officer, who paroles or interns them.

No definite reply has been received yet from the Saskatchewan Government, but it is anticipated that it may follow the course of Alberta and renew the arrangement with the Dominion Government for the maintenance of the northwest mounted police force by agreement from year to year instead of the former five years the provinces would have to indemnify the Dominion Government for expenditures on buildings.

FROM BELGIUM

The following letter to the Patriot from Capt. A. R. B. Duck will be of great interest to all.

Belgium, April 7th, 1915.

Sir— I've been waiting for over two weeks for something of interest to turn up to write you about but since writing you last there has been nothing doing of any importance. What I mean by this is nothing along the line of battles or attacks. Since Neuve Chappelle everything is very quiet, perhaps the German army have showed a little more activity than usual. This might have been either the preparation of an attack, or the guarding against surprise like they received at the above place. Likely it was the latter for they made no attack. You see airplanes scout all the time they can see, then if any massing of troops is going on at any particular point, consequently all the movements of troops take place at night; you drive through a village tonight absolutely deserted, tomorrow morning you may see the place crowded with khaki covered figures. Just here I think I will give you a short account of our wanderings since we landed in France. I told you about landing in the South of France and of our trip through the country by train; of the different scenes along the route from the level country as far as you could see on both sides to the beautiful hills along the Seine bristling with forts. Well the end of our railway journey was Hazebrouk. From there we marched about two miles to a little village called Barre. Here we were billeted for about one week. This place bore ample proof of the terrible fight the German army put up for possession of the sea-coast and a road to Calais. Next the Battalion moved to Romarin a small village about 3 miles to the rear of Messines where many hard fought battles took place during the fall and winter. Here the boys had their first trench work, being put into the trenches with the Seaforth Highlanders and Dublin Fusiliers. After a week here orders were received to move again, this time away through Armentiers to Fleurbaix, where the Division was given a part of the line to hold. The end of our march was very advanced, the one occupied by our Battalion being the most advanced of the line. Here we suffered several casualties in killed and wounded, two being killed and 7 or 8 wounded. This place is on the left flank of Neuve Chappelle. During the advance there our boys stood to arms all day, ready to move if necessary, but there was nothing doing for us in that area. Notwithstanding, some papers of the upper province were quite a glowing account of the way the Ontario and Manitoba Battalions won the fight. Well the account caused quite a lot of amusement when the papers arrived here, also the boys were rather cross, they do not want any glowing accounts of work done unless it's true. Well, after two weeks in the trenches here orders were to move to Estaires for 10 days' rest. This is quite a town plenty of stores and well provisioned, could get almost anything in canned goods, pickles, sauces, etc. I don't think there is much Worcester sauce left as this was one of the things that there was a big demand for. The only thing we cannot get here is lime juice, and it is missed very much. The water is so bad that you cannot get a drink of anything except the chlorinated water, which does not taste good, not to a P. E. Islander anyway. One of my brother officers and I searched the whole town for lime juice one day, but nothing doing. A funny thing was that as soon as we asked for it an explained that it was drink, they would not get a bottle of black and white whiskey and seem very much surprised when an English soldier refused this. They imagined they had the only thing an Englishman would be searching for, but I hope later on that we will be issued with the juice by the government. Well we spent just a week here and ordered again to move, this time on a fifteen mile journey. We left at 7 a. m. and arrived at about 2 p. m. at a small village in Belgium the prettiest spot

I've seen, yet. The country here is not level, but high hills and deep valleys with lovely roads winding through them, acres of hop vines just coming through the ground, ready for their summer climb. From a hill just alongside of the village you can get on a clear day a glimpse of the sea. I never missed anything so much as the smell of the salt water. No wonder an Islander can never rest contented anywhere else for there is something about the blue water that creates a longing to see it again and get one good snuff of clean pure air. Well this is about all for this time. I imagine you think I might tell you more of the trenches, etc., but really there is nothing to write about unless one has a very vivid imagination and I don't think you want any thing but what actually takes place. Imagine two lines of trenches from 200 yds. to one mile apart, running without a break from near Dunkirk on the North Sea to Switzerland. One line occupied by the German army, the other by British and French, in rear of those hundreds of guns, from the small field piece to the 16 in. Howitzer, aeroplanes constantly in the air, motor cycles, carrier or road trucks, flying here and there, lines of mechanical transports sometimes as many as 200 in a line moving provisions from the railroad to the various supply depots at night, dozens of Red Cross wagons running to the rear each with its quota of wounded, and every village and farm house crammed with soldiers either resting or waiting for their next journey in the trenches or fresh from old England eager to get in where their chums have been all the cold wet winter. Mix in a few old French men and women and little children trying as best they can to get the season's crop in and once in a while a party of Belgian Refugees with all their worldly possessions in a pack on their backs, struggling along the street or road looking for a place to stay. Lastly put the Canadian Division of 20,000 men who come from an independent country where war is not known and you have a fair idea of the war, and what are our thoughts when we see it all. The last place I stayed was at a farm house where the only occupants were an old man 67 years old, his wife, about the same age and their married daughter, who came to live with them when war broke out. Their two sons aged 30 and 32 were at the front somewhere, as was their daughter's husband. To watch them at their work you would pity them, everything about the place would bring up memories of the boys and he would explain to you that it either belonged to or was made by his son now at the front. Then in the evening, those two old people would sit on either side of the fire and just gaze into it with a word, sometimes a tear would roll down their faces, but to be quickly wiped away, a long sigh and they would commence to talk to you. Seemed as if they were pleased very much that we were all the way from cold, cold Canada to help them, and after mingling with those people there are none of us sorry we came. If the boys at home who have their mothers and fathers with them, and comfortable homes could just get one glimpse at this part of France and Belgium and realize that it is the youth of Belgium, France and England that has saved Canada from a similar fate. Well I don't want to say that there is not enough coming, but I think there would be more. Well rumor says we move out of here in a day or two for some part of the line where we will be given another piece to hold for good. I see by the papers received today that Roumania is rather pro-German. Well it may prolong the war but there is only to be one end if it takes every man in the British Empire to do it. Also I see that Germany has invaded England and France to talk peace, yes, just when we are ready to talk war, not much. Germany began it. Britain is going to finish it and to her ideas the end will be shaped. Well, we received a Canadian mail today. No papers yet, but they are generally a day or two behind the letters, so tomorrow I hope to get the Patriot. Thanking you very much for the papers, which arrive regularly.

I am sincerely yours,
A. R. B. DUCK, Capt.
10th Battalion,
2nd Infantry Bde.,
1st Canadian Division,
British Exped. Force.

who got anything like a full catch, coming back with about 25,000 white others averaged perhaps about a thousand skins.

"The lobster industry received a severe blow owing to their market being cut off and fishermen who were holding out for $30 a case have been glad to get anything they could for their catch, $12 being the prevailing price at one time.

"This winter offered a splendid opportunity for a close season for both seal and lobsters and both would have been greatly benefited by such action. It was a pity that it was impossible to arrange it.

"The backbone of the country is the fishing industry, however, and the fishermen have little cause for complaint. Prices have kept up well and most of the fishermen are well off and know that stories of the destitute fishermen of Newfoundland are somewhat popular but there are few of the fishermen who are not making a pretty fair living with something of a reserve laid away."

In connection with the lot of the fishermen Mr. Bruce told an amusing story of how jealously they guard their reserve store of gold. "Some time ago when the catch failed in one of the outlying districts the parish clergyman wrote to the government asking for aid for his parishioners. "If the government does not come to their aid at once," he wrote, "they will have to use their own money. The thrifty fisher folk would accept government aid before drawing on their savings."

A new industry promising an investment of $10,000,000 is promised for the island in legislation for consideration. The plans call for the erection of an immense plant for the production of nitrates and if it goes through it will be a big thing for the colony.

Speaking of confederation Mr. Bruce said that the sentiment of the people of Newfoundland is still divided on the subject and, while he regards it as the ultimate destiny of the colony, he said that it might be some time in coming. One thing which may make the people more willing to consider proposals of this nature is the large debt which is being accumulated for the development of railways which are being rushed forward rapidly in many rapidly in many directions.

Mr. Bruce spoke warmly of the contributions of men from Newfoundland for the war, 2,500 men for the land forces and from the naval reserve having gone forward already.

RUSSIAN VODKA SHOPS TURNED INTO PLACES OF AMUSEMENT

LONDON, April 23.—A Reuter dispatch from Petrograd says: "As a substitute for the vodka shops, which have been abolished, there have been erected in the open places throughout Russia 'Peoples Palaces' and smaller buildings, where the people may meet for entertainment and instructions. Considerable progress has already been made in carrying out this scheme, the scale of which can be inferred from the fact that in the government of Pol-

NEWFOUNDLAND IN WAR TIMES

ST. JOHN, April 21.—"Newfoundland has not been seriously affected by the war and conditions in the island are far from discouraging," said C. A. C. Bruce of St. John's, Nfld., who, with his wife and child, are in St. John on their way back to the ancient colony.

"The most noticeable feature is a general tendency towards retrenchment which is prevalent everywhere during war times. Owing to this feeling merchants are more cautious; imports are falling off and I have been expecting to hear of additional war taxes to supplement the revenue which in ordinary times, is derived entirely from customs duties."

"The big mines at Wabana have had to curtail production as much of their output went to Germany but I understand that they are beginning to take on some of their men again. As far as Newfoundland generally is concerned there is more evidence in St. John's than elsewhere of the effects of the war, as a considerable number of men in industrial work have been laid off on account of the war."

"Of course, the seal fisheries have proved a failure this year owing to the fleets being caught in the ice between the big drill and the mainland. I understand that Captain Robert Bartlett, who was with Perry on his dash to the pole, is the only captain

PROTESTS ACTION TAKEN BY GERMANY

LONDON, April 26.—Through Walter Hines Page, the American Ambassador, the British Foreign Office today sent a protest to Washington to be forwarded to Berlin, denouncing the retaliatory steps Germany has taken against thirty-nine British officers, as a result of the special treatment accorded thirty-nine submarine prisoners in England.

The note explains that the Germans are being humanely treated, and protests against the close confinement of the British officers. Virtually the only difference between the treatment of the German submarine prisoners and other German prisoners, the note says, is that the former are in the naval barracks, instead of in the detention camp.

The Foreign Office still is without information as to the names of the British officers being specially punished in Germany, the United States not yet having obtained the names from Germany.
