Said the House-owner:

"Give me ten gallons of "English" Liquid White Paint.

"No, Sir! I won't take any other kind.

"Yes, that other paint may possibly be good paint, but if it is all right in every way, why don't the makers tell you, and tell me, frankly, what they are trying to sell us—namely, what is in the paint.

"I always use "English" Liquid Paint because the guarantee formula is on the can telling me that it is made of 70% white lead, 30% zinc white, pure linseed oil, pure turpentine and dryer. I know this formula is the standard in paint making and I know that I am taking no chance when I use that kind of paint."

"English" Liquid Paint made by Brandam-Henderson Limited, is very economical to use. Come in for a color card.

A BOOKLET ON TELEPHONE TALK

The New York Telephone Company has issued a 16-page booklet entitled "Talking Over the Telephone," which it is distributing among its patrons. The nature of its contents is shown by the following selections:

TELEPHONING AS AN ART.

This happens daily in a large commercial house:

Assume that you are Mr Jones. Last spring you became a customer of the house and talked several times over the telephone with its president Mr Smith. Then you went to Europe for three months. The first day back home it is surely astonishing, on calling up that house, to hear its telephone operator greet you by name, as though you had just been around the corner for five minutes.

"This is Mr Jones, isn't it?" she says, pleasantly. "Do you want to talk with Mr Smith again?"

That house has hundreds of customers. The young woman sitting in a quiet room by herself seldom sees any of them. The internal telephone system runs on thirty departments, each with its chief and his assistants, all with their particular customers, some calling daily, others perhaps once a month. But the operator keeps track of them all, and is seldom at a loss to know who's who.

Customers maintain that she has a remarkable memory. But really the secret is interest in her work, and attention to remembering people one by one, as they have come along, in five years' experience at the switchboard. She has made hundreds of friends for the house, though few of them have ever seen her, and her value to her employers need not be emphasized.

Skilful telephone-talk is necessary nowadays, not merely in business, but in social life.

"To do any work well, one must be able to talk well," says a telephone engineer. "We should all be able to state a case by telephone so that people understand what to do next, and the reason. I have noticed many cases where one person called another in an absolute friendly spirit, and the information or suggestion given was entirely unobjectionable. But the method of saying it was such as to produce lasting prejudice. There is an old proverb, 'One can tie knots with his tongue which he can not untie with his teeth.' This is particularly true of telephone talk.

Telephone talk need not be clever. But it ought to be courteous, and above all things correct.

Uncle Sam says that if every piece of mail bore the sender's name and address, he could abolish tomorrow the costly Dead Letter Office, which handles millions of pieces of misdirected mail yearly.

There is such a thing as the misdirected telephone message. All of us manage to send a few each year. Most of us would send fewer if everybody understood how telephone messages get astray, and service would run more smoothly for every one.

TELEPHONE COURTESY.

There are three parties to a telephone call:

1—Yourself.
2—The telephone company.
3—The person with whom you talk.

It is not sufficient that one or two of these do their work properly. The co-operation of all three is necessary

In telephone operating, the human element must be considered. The public is human. Telephone operators are human. The hastily spoken word and its inflection conveys whatever impression each gets of the other. Under such conditions, courtesy both on the part of the operator force and the public is like oil to machinery—necessary to prevent friction.

When you have called a wrong number, apologize. Practically, you have been caught driving up the wrong side of a street crowded with traffic.

When your private exchange operator or office boy is told to get Mr Smith on the telephone, be ready to talk when Mr Smith answers. Don't keep him waiting. Smith has been interrupted in his work, and the burden of courtesy is upon you.

Answer your own telephone promptly. Delay may compel the company's operator to report "Don't answer" to the person calling, and you may thus miss important information.

Speak slowly. Half the art of good telephoning lies in deliberate talk. This gives clearness and emphasis. Try it, and note how persons with whom you are talking respond.

Above all things, speak pleasantly. The person with whom you are talking can not see you. You must make your impression wholly through the tone of your voice and what you say.

Finally, when you telephone, devote yourself to telephoning. The attempt to carry on other tasks at the same time causes you to move away from the transmitter, and the person with whom you are talking will hear indistinctly, and may misunderstand.

The remainder of the book is devoted to a disquisition on telephone germs and an explanation of the company's various forms of service.

RHEUMATISM AND COMMON SENSE

Father Morriscy's No. 7 Eliminates the Uric Acid.

Many treatments will relieve the aches and pains of rheumatism, but there is only one way to cure that dread disease. The common sense method is to remove the cause, and the effects will soon disappear.

Rheumatism is caused, as is well known, by the failure of the kidneys to perform their intended work of filtering the uric acid out of the blood and eliminating it from the body through the bladder. When the kidneys go on strike, the uric acid is carried to the joints and tissues, where it causes stiffening of the muscles, and the excrutiating pains of rheumatism.

Father Morriscy, the learned priest-physician, after much research devised a prescription which would act directly on the kidneys, and by toning them up to vigorous action, cause them to clear the system of the uric acid. This remedy, known as No. 7, has been used successfully in thousands of cases.

Father Morriscy's Liniment will bring relief from the effects of rheumatism, while his No. 7 Tablets will get to work on the cause and in due time cure the disease.

Why suffer from this painful and troublesome affliction, when by using the common sense methods originated by Father Morriscy and successfully followed for years, it is possible to aid Nature to restore you to health?

If you are not yourself rheumatic, you doubtless know of some one who is, and who would be glad to learn of a treatment which has such a consistent record of cures. It is easy to take and sure to benefit and ultimately cure rheumatism. 50c. a box, at your dealer's, or from Father Morriscy Medicine Co., Ltd., Chatham, N.B. 99

Corn Chowder.

Into a round-bottomed iron kettle, fry over a slow fire, put two slices of salt pork minced, one minced onion; fry till brown. Add six potatoes cut in cubes and water to more than cover. Boil 20 minutes. Add one quart milk, one spoonful of salt, two shakes of pepper, one can corn. Let boil. Add eight soda crackers. Let steam five minutes. Serve.

Substitute fresh corn in season. We often cook it over a gypsy fire in the back yard.

Seansonable Hint.

Where there are small children or pet animals to push against the lower half of the screen doors the screen is either torn or made to bulge. To prevent this cover the lower section of the screen with wire netting of about one-inch mesh, and replace the molding around the edges. If netting is painted the same color of the screen it is scarcely noticeable and will prolong the life of the door indefinitely.
