"THE LOVE PENDULUM"

BY MARION RUBINCAM

EMPTY HAPPINESS

Chapter 65

A doctor's smile can sometimes do more good than all the medicine he could administer. And at this particular time I was more in need of that encouraging, kindly expression on his face than I was of drugs and nursing.

"A little over-wrought and tired," was his verdict. "A week or so in bed, perfect quiet, plenty of air, Wellsville air and sunlight and think you'll feel like a new person, Miss Bennett."

I looked up in surprise at the name. He corrected himself at once.

"I beg your pardon, I mean Mrs. Taylor. You see it was Miss Bennett when you stayed here last, forgot the romance and the elopement with one of our own town boys. By the way, how is Mr. Taylor?"

"Of course he could not know! I struggled for my composure and managed to say, 'Very well, thanks,' and could only get part of it out through the great lump that filled my throat."

And then I broke down and wept hysterically. I had been choking back for days, for weeks and months, I felt as if I cried away some of the nervousness that had been half killing me all this time.

Even then, the poor old doctor guessed only half. He gave me something to drink, I remember and sent me off to my room in charge of a trim gray-haired attendant, who only made me long for the sweet matured Irish woman who attended me before.

I had not told Mrs. Taylor's mother I was coming. Mrs. Taylor of course blamed me for all that had happened. That was only natural, and I could not resent it. She thought I had led Winthrop into debt and extravagance. How could she think otherwise? Win had no occasion at home to live as he did in the city.

I thought a great deal about her while I lay in bed in the sanatorium. They had given me my old room, and not a thing was changed—not even the crochets, whose pattern was so familiar to me.

As I slowly began to grow quiet and rested, and to feel that in spite of everything, life might be bearable, I thought a great deal about my friends in the city. I was so ill before I left that it never occurred to me that I had run away from home, leaving no address, and no word, not even for my aunt and Colin.

I think I slept almost all the time for the first week or so. When I was awake, I lay there looking lazily at the room, and rather vaguely I felt I was back again two years before. I felt I had escaped a very hectic, unpleasant sort of life, and was to rest and be quiet and happy now. I felt things were beginning again. I was going to try and rent the same little white house I formerly had.

Then my head would become clearer and I would remember all that was past—that I had definitely broken with Win, that I had loved, and been loved, and it was all over now.

But still the feeling persisted vaguely, due to the old surroundings, that all the past experience was to be believed, that the same thing was to begin again. So I was not surprised one afternoon when my door opened, and Winthrop's mother walked into the room, her arms full of flowers—just as she used to come to me.

Without a word I held out my hands and she laid her flowers on the table and came over and kissed me. And I cried and she did too, and in that very feminine fashion we took up our friendship where it was broken off when I had left Wellsville before.

She was exactly the same—limp.

RUSSIAN PEASANTS FIND SUBSTITUTES FOR CHURCH RITUAL

(Associated Press.)
MOSCOW, Aug. 29.—Love of ceremony is too human a trait to permit of its abandonment even in Russia in the three principal events of family life, birth, marriage and death. Certain Communist "rites" are therefore finding their way into the family lives of Russian peasants and workmen as a substitute for church ceremonies.

These conclusions are brought out in an article by Leon Trotsky, the Russian war commissar. In one case they contradict the previous ruling that, as Trotsky puts it, "the workers' state had disclaimed church ceremony, having announced to its citizens that they had the right to be born, marry and die without any ceremony whatsoever."

"The life of a laboring family is so monotonous for this, and the monotony reacts upon the nervous system," Trotsky writes. "Therefore there is a craving for the church and its ceremonies. The workers' state already has its holidays and processions, its sights and parades, its new symbolical pleasures, and the raising their children after some saint, many workmen are choosing names indicative of revolutionary ideas, or after personages, 'Octoberia' after the October revolution, and 'Ninel,' which is Lenin's name spelled backwards, are two of the new names for girl babies. In place of christenings there are new 'half-oking inspections' of new babies by factory committees, and special protocols are drawn up including the new comers among the free citizens of the Soviet Republic. The entrance of a pupil into school is also marked by a special holiday in the workers' family, with the participation of trade unions and guilds.

So far as marriages are concerned, Trotsky says "life does not content itself with the mere marriages, theatrically unadorned."

Cremation is the proper system of disposal of the dead, but there must be ceremonies, for the "preparation for outer appearances of feelings is both mighty and lawful."

Trotsky advocates the development of moving pictures as an antidote for both the church and the saloon.

STUDENTS ARE FED, HOUSED AND TAUGHT BY "Y" IN SOFIA

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Aug. 30.—The Y. M. C. A. has announced a new course in house-building, electrical engineering and agriculture, to be opened in October for Russian and Bulgarian refugees, of whom there are many thousands in Sofia. In addition to free instruction, the school provides free lodging and board.

In connection with the same organization, many hundreds of students in Sofia and in other parts of Bulgaria have been receiving for the past two years material aid in the form of board, lodging and funds, for the continuance of their academic work, which they had no resources to carry out.

The only fee charged at the school here is the nominal one of 1,000 leva, equivalent to ten dollars, toward the upkeep of the equipment of the institution.

stay hair parted in the middle, pale gray eyes set in a lined, pale face, clothes of an odd cut that fitted atrociously. Not even her glasses broke the general effect of rather washed-out gray that seemed to envelop her, for they had steel rims and only accepted the colorless effect.

"I only knew you were here this morning," she said when we had settled down to talk. "I've been so busy. This is my first visit to the sanatorium this spring. The doctors wondered why I didn't come, and I had to tell them I didn't know you were here. Queer, they must have thought it."

I tried to explain, but for once she understood without that.

"I know. Don't try to talk too much. They said you were too sick to have written, probably. Then this morning I got a letter from Win—first in I don't know how many months. He said you'd left him, said you'd agreed to live apart. But we won't talk about it now."

"He said he'd heard you'd left town, and supposed it was with your aunt. That would have been all right, only in the same mail comes a letter from your aunt—"

"Poor Aunt Harriet! I never told her I was leaving town."

"Poor Aunt Harriet! I should say, she's been half crazy worrying! Said there was no address at your place, said she's asked all your friends and that even—some name I forget—"

"Colin?"

"That's it. That he didn't know and was worried. I wrote them you were here and safe. Doctor says you can come to my place now. That will look better."

So it was arranged. I was not unhappy, not as I had been. I was at least rested and quiet. To be that was to be happy—in an empty sort of way.

MOVE TO END FEMALE MINE LABOR STIRS INDIA

SIMLA, India, Aug. 29.—The question of the advisability of prohibiting the employment of women in mines has again been taken up by the Government of India. At present about one-third of the mine workers in India are women. Since 1842 women have been excluded from the mines in England; in 1901 an attempt was made to prohibit them from Indian mines. This effort failed on account of violent opposition on the part of employers.

Expression was given to the fear that if steps were taken to prevent women relatives of men workers from going below the latter would themselves refuse to work in the mines.

The Department of Industries and Labor of the central government has sent a letter to each of the provincial governments, asking for advice with regard to possible legislation against the employment of women in mines.

"Since 1901," says this letter, "mining conditions have undergone a considerable change. Indian mining is no longer in its infancy; the mines are deeper, and the risk of danger is accentuated. There is a steadily increasing body of public opinion which strongly deprecates the continued employment of women in mines."

Opposition to this proposed reform has already been started by the British imperialist press in India. It is argued that conditions of employment in Indian mines are fundamentally different from those in Western countries, and that Indian mine labor works in family gangs, women assisting their relatives to swell their earnings.

IN MEMORIAM

JOHN D. CAMPBELL

It is with deep regret we record the death of John D. Campbell which took place at his home in Little Pond on Friday morning, July 27th. The deceased was in his 51st year and until the past year enjoyed robust health. During the winter months his health declined and in May he entered the City Hospital where he underwent an operation by which it was found he was suffering from cancer.

Despite these sad tidings his relatives and friends hoped that medical skill might counteract the disease but God willed otherwise and his body gradually succumbed to this malignant disease. During his illness he bore his sufferings patiently and was frequently comforted and strengthened by visits from his pastor Rev. Dr. Walker and Rev. Father Reginald MacDonnell who administered to him the Holy Sacraments and the rites of the Holy Catholic Church of which he was a devoted member.

Besides an aged mother, two brothers and two sisters, Ignatius of Eureka, Cal; and Joseph of Little Pond, P. E. I., also Mrs. John MacCormack, Eureka, Cal; and Mrs. John Montgomery, St. Margarets, P. E. I., he leaves five young children who scarcely two years ago were made orphans by the death of their loving mother and who now mourn the loss of a devoted father.

His funeral which took place at St. Francis De Sales Church, Little Pond on Saturday afternoon was largely attended. His pastor, Rev. Dr. Walker performed the funeral ceremonies and all that was mortal of a loving son, brother and father were laid to rest in the adjoining cemetery, there to await a glorious resurrection.

The pall bearers were: Allan MacKenzie, John H. Dingwell, Daniel G. MacCormack, John A. Steele, Wm. Swallow and Stephen Steele. Driver, James A. MacDonnell.

May his soul rest in peace.

TO CURTAIL DEATHS FROM AUTOMOBILES

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—An intelligence test for the man or woman who drives a motor car is a possibility within the next two or three years.

Representatives of 13 middle western states are to be invited to attend the Conference of Motor Vehicle Administrators, representing state automobile licensing bureaus, to be held here early in September, at which plans will be made for working out safety-first laws for automobilists and pedestrians. The movement is being fostered by the National Safety Council. The convention is to be called by Fred M. Roseland, chief of the public safety division of the National Safety Council.

"The man who drives a car for somebody else must pass an examination," said Walter W. Miller, chief clerk of the automobile division of the Illinois Department of State. "But anybody can drive an automobile if he owns it, whether he has ordinary horse sense or not."

"The accidents do not happen to licensed chauffeurs. They happen to the unskilled drivers. The conference will make plans for uniform laws to govern the licensing of automobile operators to see if they are sufficiently competent mentally to handle a motor driven vehicle. Some form of intelligence test is likely to be devised."

Representatives of the state departments of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Wisconsin, Michigan, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Kentucky, Kansas, Nebraska and North and South Dakota will be invited. It is hoped to have the conference just prior to the meeting of secretaries of state at Asheville, N. C., September 13, 14, 15.

There is a real need according to the officials sponsoring the conference for uniform laws of driving to lessen the death rate. One way suggested is to prevent a man who never has handled a car before from buying a machine and promptly setting forth as if he were an experienced driver.

This prevalent custom could be prevented they say by forcing the dealer by law to see that everybody to whom he sells a car is thoroughly instructed before he is permitted to operate it on the public highways.

SOCIALISTS OF YUCATAN MAY NOMINATE CALLES

MERIDA, Yucatan, Aug. 30.—Yucatan Socialists are planning to place a candidate in the field at the 1924 presidential elections. Leading elements of the Socialist Party of the Southwest under the leadership of the party's president, Felipe Carrillo Puerto, governor of the state, have issued a call for a nominating convention to be held here early in September, which delegates representing socialist organizations in Yucatan, Campeche, Tabasco and Chiapas will attend.

Governor Carrillo Puerto recently visited General P. Elias Calles, secretary of government in the Obregon cabinet and probable presidential candidate, inviting him to attend the convention. General Calles has been convalescing at Soledad de la Mota, a ranch in Tamaulipas belonging to his son, his absence coinciding with the sessions of the pre-recognition conference.

Many People Wonder

why it is that glasses are worn more commonly in the present generation than in the past. Some say that the race is deteriorating, some that it is for style, but the real reason is that our modern civilization requires the eye to do more work than was even the case before.

Consequently, the eyes, if in the least defective, may give you a lot of trouble, though in reality they are no worse than those of your grandfather who did not wear glasses till he was an old man.

If you feel the least symptom of eyestrain, remember that it is nature warning you and consult us at once.
