

Sheer Frocks and Women's Hygiene

New way safer—discards like tissue

By ELLEN J. BUCKLAND Registered Nurse

THAT slimy gowns and women's oldest hygienic problem now go safely together is a fact millions of women are learning.

Old-time sanitary "pads" giving their worries and dangers are giving way to the utter protection of a new way called Kotex.

Kotex discards as easily as tissue. Thus no laundry, no embarrassment of disposal.

Five times as absorbent as ordinary cotton "pads," one may now dance, motor, go about for hours

KOTEX

No laundry—discard like tissue

KEEP THEM UP TO IT

Sir,—I am one of those who hope that the new Prohibition government will fulfil their promise to enforce the provisions and requirements of the Prohibitory Liquor Law, stop bootlegging and moonshine making, punish perjurers, do all that they and the ministers said they would do. I hope that you will do your best to keep them up to it.

I am, Sir, etc., AN ABSTAINER.

CONSOLIDATING EMPIRE.

Sir,—High prospects are held out to the people of Canada and to those who may come to Canada, now that we are about to celebrate the Diamond Jubilee of our Confederation. Fairly good progress was made after the National Policy was adopted, and may be maintained. The people need encouragement to come here, stay here, and work here. It is to be hoped that the King Government will bring all the pressure they can to bear upon British public opinion and the British Government in order that Great Britain may give preference in her markets to the products of the Overseas Dominions. That is what we need; and that is what is really needed by the people of Great Britain. Canada has, for many years, given the products of Great Britain a preference in her markets. It is time for some response on the part of the Mother Country.

I am, Sir, etc., A FAIR TRADER.

COOPERATION

Sir,—Mr. Saunders and his party will, in the next four years, be responsible to the people of this Province for the administration of the public business. They will enter upon their duties in fortunate circumstances and conditions. The roads—the main roads better than ever before—are good, many of the bridges have been concreted and made practically permanent; the schools are in a satisfactory condition; the Provincial Building has been repaired and thoroughly cleaned; the finances of the country are in a better condition than ever heretofore. Really, the new Government ought to do well. We all hope that they will do their best to stop drunkenness, particularly on the part of the young men, stop bootlegging and the home brew of intoxicants, punish perjury, and, in short govern wisely and well. They must certainly do so, if they are to remain in office for "fifteen years". Whatever the men may do, the women voters will not tolerate the violation of pledges and the careless conduct of public business.

I am, Sir, etc., HOPEFUL.

THE CONFEDERATION SPIRIT.

Sir,—The spirit with which Canadian men and women, of all classes are entering upon the celebration of the Sixtieth Anniversary of Confederation is reassuring to those who fear for the future of their country. It is a spirit of unity and concord, of faith in the Federation and of action towards Canada's development as a member of the world-wide British Empire.

Each man and woman is, of course, in duty bound to look after his and her own interests. Yet in the promotion of those interests all may work together in harmony and good fellowship. There may be—there will be—differences of opinion, but there may also, be—there must be if the nation is to be perpetuated and to prosper—the spirit of unity and diversity. It has been well said that we ought to (we have to) "get away from differences that are really no differences at all, from the stand-point of the vital concerns of the country."

We have, in Canada, two races, and the fundamental institutions of Canada are just as dear to the one as to the other. There are just as many friends of law and order and responsible government among French Canadians as among English Canadians, among Catholics as among Protestants, and among the poor as among the rich, among Conservatives as among Liberals. What is needed

Thanks to Electors

Dr. W. J. P. McMillan and Mr. W. Chester S. McLure beg to return their hearty thanks to the electors of Charlottetown and Royalty for the handsome victory accorded them on Saturday, and to the willing and able band of workers who rallied to their support. Charlottetown, June 29, 1927.

No More Indigestion!

"After long illness caused by bad digestion, I tried 'Fruit-a-lives'. Today I am in perfect health." Mrs. Wilson, 17 Rivet St., Montreal

If you have poor digestion try "Fruit-a-lives". It usually gives welcome and quick relief. It is nature's remedy—intense juices of fresh fruits, and tonics. 25c and 50c a box.

3 gills of turpentine, 6 tablespoonfuls of burnt sienna, and 4 tablespoonfuls of whitening.

WHY, WHY, WHY!

All-Year Junior Town for Charlottetown.

The National Community Foundation through its program for community well-being has touched the basic needs of today. $2,000,000 of the $5,000,000 the Foundation is now seeking will be devoted to maintaining all-year Junior Towns. No better service can be rendered to our town than helping to build the leaders of tomorrow through the endowment of Junior Town, organized to promote profitable play-time activities for children.

BECAUSE forces of disintegration are at work—

BECAUSE of the increasing danger in leisure time due to lack of community co-operation—

BECAUSE our children can be effectively guided toward their particular life work—

BECAUSE of this new opportunity for the development of local leadership in our children—

BECAUSE of the vision and integrity of the national leaders associated with the National Communi-

Beggar Had $1000 Pinned in Coat

(By British United Press.) LONDON, June 29.—An Englishwoman came back to England recently saying: "How clever the Parisian beggars are!"

She had encountered a beggar with a wooden leg in a fine avenue and had pressed a penny upon him. He thanked her and asked her if she would mind going to buy him some bread. He was old, and moved with compassion, the English visitor departed on the errand, the beggar thoughtfully telling her which way to go.

When she returned with the bread and a slice of cheese. Then the beggar held out a dirty bottle. Would madam mind getting it filled with milk for him? The Englishwoman complied and went on her way.

Later she read that a beggar in that avenue had been knocked down and carried to a neighboring hospital. She had the curiosity to go and inquire about him. He proved to be the wooden-legged old man.

When the nurse had undressed him a small fortune had been found carefully pinned into an inner coat. The beggar was a capitalist, and he carried rather more than $1,000 about with him while begging his bread.

Severe "Body" test of Marvelube "F" by Ford Owner

AGRUELLING test of Marvelube "F" was carried out last year by Mr. Adolph Miller of Lacombe, Alberta, In the two months following the purchase of his Ford, Mr. Miller was so pleased with the apparently "unbreakable" quality of Marvelube "F" that he drove 4,500 miles without changing oil more than once; adding a total of only 1½ quarts during that time.

Admitting that he had violated the recognized laws of safe lubrication in not changing oil more frequently, Mr. Miller points to his record as a convincing test of the heat-resistance and wear-resistance qualities of Marvelube "F". Read Mr. Miller's interesting report:

Mr. Adolph Miller Lacombe, Alberta

"I did not change oil until I had covered 1,160 miles. The oil was still unbroken. I filled up again and ran 1,400 miles without renewing. I added a pint and later a quart. The car has run close to 2,000 miles since.

"The car was thus driven 4,500 miles on the first and second fillings, with the addition of one pint and one quart.

"I consider it the best oil that I have ever put into a car and I have been driving cars and handling tractors for 15 years or more.

This remarkable record is not given by Mr. Miller or quoted by us as an example of judicious practice—it is to be regarded purely as a "stunt." But it is a stunt that points so unmistakably to the unbreakable "body" of Marvelube "F" as to merit the serious attention of every Ford owner.

With a crank-case change every 500 miles, there is satisfactory, trouble-free lubrication in the regular use of Marvelube "F."
