STANDING ON PRINCIPLE

Discussing the problems to come before parliament and the attenuated ranks of the Conservative party in the House of Commons, Kingston Standard sends forth a message of encouragement and challenge.

"The wreck of the Conservative party, as a result of the last election, (it says) is by no means a discouraging one. It is only the superstructure which has been destroyed. The foundation remains unshaken, unremoved, untouched. The convention in Ottawa, followed by the contemplated national convention before the summer, will clear away the wreckage, and on the old historic foundation will be raised a new Conservative structure containing the old glory and reflecting a new glory which belongs peculiarly and eternally to the Conservative party in Canada.

"The way of future success and reconstruction is clear. Standing out before the Canadian people with its original principles of strength, safe, reliable and progressive government, the party will acquire its old strength, its old following and its old spirit. Kingston stands firm on the old foundation, both in the federal and the provincial parliaments, and other constituencies, now broken and shattered, will rise out of the ashes of disaster and retrieve all they have lost, and add to this a new strength."

Notes By The Way

(From The Examiner.)

All our readers are familiar with the moral watchword "look upward, not downward". It is a sound maxim whether it is applied to religion, moral, or political life. We look in the direction that we desire or intend to go.

Hon. W. S. Fielding is now in Washington. Why is he there? Has he not been looking in that direction for forty years past? In his youth he was a follower and admirer of Joseph Howe. When Howe was among the first and most earnest advocates of the union of all British North America, turned to oppose it in the sixties of last century, Fielding stood with him in his pro-American anti-British attitude. But when in 1869 Howe gave up his opposition and joined the Canadian government, Fielding remained unswayed and for twenty years afterward maintained, in the Halifax Chronicle, of which he was editor and later in the Nova Scotia Legislature, an attitude of uncompromising hostility to confederation.

Before and after Confederation the American nation were largely opposed to the union of the provinces, jealous of the creation of a British Dominion to the north of them and proportionately sympathetic to the anti-confederates and secessionists in Canada. This bond of sympathy has never been broken. No doubt many patriots were "proud of only an American's long face, and secretly and quite selfishly pleased at having little to do herself. It was one of the few signs she gave of growing old, this tyranny, gentle as it was, and this occasional selfishness.

CENSUS PADDING

Reports reaching the census bureau at Ottawa indicate that the census figures in the West have been fraudulently manipulated by dishonest enumerators, for the purpose of personal gain. Payment for enumeration is made on the basis of five cents per name, and in order to reap a larger income it appears that the lists were extensively padded by the addition of some thousands of fictitious names.

In Regina, Saskatchewan, four enumerators were prosecuted, all pleaded guilty and were subjected to the statutory fine of $100 each; one of these had increased his list by adding 1,253 names; a second one by 1,253 names; a third by 769 names and a fourth by 1,127 names.

To what extent this fictitious increase of western population has been made is not yet apparent, but we are assured the department are on the job of investigation. The matter is one of considerable importance to the East in that it seriously affects our representation. If by the addition of names of non-existing people the West succeeded in securing a larger number of members in the House of Commons than they are justly entitled to, we should certainly have a right to complain.

It is to be hoped that those in charge of affairs will be able to trace to the bottom every such effort at fraud, and give to its figures of population at least approximately correct.

PRESIDENTS AND THE BIBLE

Provincial and Dominion Prime Ministers followed the example of the Presidents of the United States and selected texts for their guidance, we wonder what the result would be and how they would act up to their precepts.

When a President of the United States assumes office the oath is administered to him by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, and he reverently kisses a Bible. The usual course is for the President to select certain verses and not to kiss at haphazard. Mr. Harding chose the verses from Micah: "What doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?" and a nobler resolution than one to do that a man raised to high political office could choose a verse from the New Testament. In reviewing some of the favorite texts of the Presidents since Grant, we find that but one chose a verse for the new Testament. That was Roosevelt, who selected James I, v. 22-23:—"But ye doers of the word, not hearers only, deceiving your own selves. For if any be a hearer of the word and not a doer he is like unto a man beholding his natural face in a glass."

The beauty and wisdom of the Psalms appear to have made a stronger appeal than any other book of the Bible, and we find Hayes, Arthur, Cleveland, Harrison and Wilson choosing verses from them in the most important solemn moments of their lives. On his two inaugurations, McKinley chose first from Chronicles and then from Proverbs. The first verse seems not quite apt, for it reads: "And Cush begat Nimrod; he began to be mighty upon the earth."

There was something prophetic in the verses that Wilson chose from the 119th Psalm:—"And take not the word of truth utterly out of my mouth; for I have hoped in thy judgments. So shall I keep the law continually for ever, and ever. And I will walk at liberty; for I seek thy precepts. I will speak of my testimony also before kings, and will not be ashamed, and I will delight myself in thy commandments which I have loved. My hands also will I lift up unto thy

Happenings Of The Week

Canada played her part at the royal wedding on Wednesday. It was a ceremony in which the Dominion had a special interest, since not only was the bride the daughter of her King, but the bridegroom is well-known in Canada because of his official connection with Canadian affairs. Lord and Lady Shoupsness had been appointed as the official representatives of the Dominion, and there were also present many prominent members of the permanent Canadian colony in London and visitors from Canada. The Canadian provinces were individually represented by their Agents-General, including Mr. P. C. Wade, and Mrs. Wade and their daughter, Mrs. Chalmers, for British Columbia; Col. Pelletier and Mr. and Mrs. Bolvin, for Quebec; Mrs. W. C. Noxon and Mrs. Noxon for Ontario; and Mr. and Mrs. Miss Howard, for Nova Scotia. Others noted in Westminster Abbey included Sir Campbell Stuart and Mrs. Ernest Stuart, Mrs. Fairbanks, Mrs. Herbert Molson of Montreal, Mrs. G. C. Cassels of London, Mr. and Mrs. Whalen of Port Arthur, Mr. and Mrs. McNeill of Vancouver, Mr. Randolph Bruce, of Invermore, Lady Nanton, Lady Schroeder, Hon. J. D. Reid and Mrs. Reid, and Col. and Mrs. Obed Smith. Among the Canadians who gave wedding presents were Mr. Randolph Bruce, Lt. Col. McKendrick, Lady Mount Stephen, Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Sladen, Sir George and Lady Perley, and Mrs. Percival Thacker. Lord and Lady Byng, the Countess of Minto, and Lord Richard Nevill, were guests who presented gifts, besides a given by the Canadian club in London as a whole, and the Indian share of the gifts from the Daughters of the Empire, and the Marys of the Empire and the V. A. L.D's.

Mrs. W. H. Bethke was hostess on Monday at one of the prettiest teas of the season. She was assisted by Mrs. Baznaal who presided over the tea cups, while Mrs. H. D. Johnson cut the loaves. Those serving were Miss Hobkirk, Miss Margaret Robertson, Miss Longworth, Miss Kate McLeod and Miss Jean Gill. Mrs. Bethke also entertained at Bridge on Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Aitken are leaving this morning on a visit to Montreal.

Miss Amy E. McMahon, in charge of Red Cross Public Health Nursing in Prince Edward Island, arrived in Halifax Wednesday morning to study the public health nursing plans for the province, to make a special study of the course in Public Health Nursing at Dalhousie University, and the work of the Health Centres conducted by the Massachusetts Halifax Health Commission. Miss McMahon lectured to the Class in Public Health Nursing at Health Centre No. 1 at ten o'clock Thursday morning, telling them something of her experience on the Island, and of her observations along public health lines during her recent visit to Toronto and New York.

Miss Laura Cox left on Wednesday morning on a visit to Mrs. Blackmore, formerly Miss Helen Warburton, in New York. On the way she will spend a few days in Montreal with Mrs. Edwin Aitken.

Last Saturday afternoon, the Badminton Club had a closely contested match witnessed by a number of interested spectators, after which afternoon tea was served. Badminton is becoming the popular indoor game this season.

Rev. William Orr Mulligan, Mrs. Mulligan and twin sons arrived on Wednesday from Halifax and are being cordially welcomed to the city. Mr. Mulligan, who is the new pastor of St. James Church, was given a kindly send off by his people in Bedford, who regret his departure. Among the interesting features of the farewell gathering was the christening of their little sons, William Orr and Thomas Cairns.

The Moncton Ladies, came over yesterday to play a return game of hockey with the Albergwick Sisters. After the match they were very enjoyably entertained and are returning home today.

Lent coming in on Wednesday has suspended for many the gay round of teas, bridges and dances of the past several weeks. The minds of many of the fair sex now turn to spring sewing, new styles and easter bonnets. According to the Boston papers, judging by exhibits at the semi-annual fashion show at the Copley Plaza this week for early Spring wear small hats will be favored, but as the season advances there will be a marked tendency toward larger forms. Miss Emma Nicholson and Mrs. O'Donnell entertained jointly on Monday afternoon at Bridge in the Navy League, the rooms being prettily arranged with yellow and white daffodils, and narcissi. Eighteen tables were attractively placed with individual prizes for each table. Later in the afternoon several came in for the tea hour when dainty refreshments were served by a bevy of young ladies.

Most of the Canadians who attended the wedding of Princess Mary and Viscount Lascelles, in the evening attended a dance and supper given by Mr. J. Howard, Agent-General for Nova Scotia who is the doyen of the overseas officials in London to the Agent-General of Ontario, Mr. William C. Noxon, and Mrs. Noxon, the latest arrivals among the overseas colony.

The many friends of Rev. Dr. Pringle will be pleased to learn that his condition is not nearly as serious as was anticipated when he left Sydney. He is at present in hospital in Lowell, Mass., where he is undergoing treatment. Dr. Pringle expects to visit Rev. Gordon MacLennan in Boston.

Blue has always been the favorite color of Princess Mary, England's royal bride, just as pink has been Queen Mary's color, and hello trop the shade which Queen Alexandra loves.

The Ladies Aid of the V. A. C. A. met for a friendly hour on Tuesday afternoon and after discussing regular business and adding several new members an hour was enjoyably spent over the tea cups and the dainty refreshments served.

$150.00 and other Prizes SOLVE THIS PUZZLE

Teacher put 50 squares on the blackboard and in 15 of the squares she put figures. Then she said to the class: "These figures can be made to spell out what is going to be first this month. It's a hard puzzle but, can't you solve it? There are wonderful prizes for the boys and girls who can solve it. Now what is the answer?"

HOW TO SOLVE IT

Each figure represents a letter. The number in each square indicates the position of that letter in the alphabet. For instance, "1" would be represented by the figure 1, because it is the first letter of the alphabet. "10" would be indicated by the figure 2, because it is the second letter of the alphabet. "C" would be indicated by the figure 3, and so on. Look at the figure 26 in the next square. It represents "T" because "T" is the twentieth letter of the alphabet. Now give a girl and a boy, figure out what letter the number in each square stands for and when you have them all arranged in the order in which they are to be spelled out, the three words called for. It is not an easy puzzle, but with patience and diligence it can be done and if you can solve it correctly you may win this real Gasoline Driven Motor Car, or one of the other fine prizes.

Copy your answers upon a plain sheet of paper as neatly as you can because neatness counts. Your answers must be written in general appearance of your answer count in the final awarding of prizes, if more than one is correct. Put your name and address in the upper right hand corner of the paper. If you write a letter or wish to send anything else besides the answer to the puzzle put it upon a separate sheet of paper. We will write to you as soon as your answer is received and tell you if your solution is correct, and also send you a complete illustrated prize list of all the grand prizes that you can win.

Eczema All Over His Body—His Legs—His Arms Covered

John Clark of Brockville, N. B., writes a story of suffering into a few words.

"I was tormented beyond words. I could not sleep. You could not put a pin on my back. I tried several doctors. They said it was eczema. Three dollar bottles of D. D. D. I used. I have not had a sore for months."

Each week we are selecting a letter from some Canadian sufferer to show what can be done to relieve burning skin disease by the clear, purifying liquid wash, D. D. D.

Stop that red itching. Get relief at once. Use D. D. D. for weeks before you receive relief. If you don't get relief from the very first bottle we'll hand your money back. $1.00 a bottle. Try D. D. D. Soap, too.
