Bar Haven

Play Enjoyed

Bar Haven, staged in Emerald Hall on Easter Monday night by the Emerald Dramatic Club was a splendid success, the hall being filled to capacity.

Captain Hiram Happer, an old fisherman was cleverly interpreted by Emmett Clow. Mr. Clow once more did credit to himself on the stage and showed by his performance that he had not forgotten the art of stage-acting.

Hardy Stone, his helper was admirably played by John J. White who added another laurel to his stage career.

Leo Bradley, a young lawyer from New York, was played by Walter Smith. This was an apt choice as Mr. Smith fittingly adapted himself to the part.

Gideon Graham, a wealthy rascal was skilfully played by Allen White. Rev. John Wesley Wiggins, parson at Bar Haven was ably taken by Aloysius Croken.

Cy Bracket, a fisherman was played by Elmer Roberts who was greeted with a storm of applause. Mr. Roberts with his witty remarks kept the audience in an uproar.

Muriel Clark as Mr. Wardell was heartily applauded in her role.

Mrs. J. W. Allen as Kate Wardell was once more welcomed on the stage.

Loretta White as Florence Wardell made her debut on the stage. Miss White gives promise of an admirable future character.

Spray Hopper, who laughs at love was played by Mary McLoskey. Miss McLoskey's performance was splendid throughout and received much applause.

Arabella Wortendyke, between the devil and the deep sea was admirably interpreted by Carrie Kelly. Miss Kelly throughout the play was a clever actress.

The plot centres around Kate Wardell who through the intrigues of Mrs. Wardell and Gideon Graham, whose love she spurned, is kept out of her fortune. Through the efforts of Leo Bradley, the lawyer, she secures her inheritance.

The opening scene, a country residence, the home of Captain Hopper. The time, Christmas Eve.

The second act opens on Beacon Hill. The time, The Glorious Fourth of July.

The third act opens in the sumptuous parlor of the Wardell mansion. Between the acts the audience were entertained by step-dancing by Joseph Doucette. Master Joseph certainly has the art of stepping-it-off down to a science. Mr. Allen White and Mr. Ray Goodwill added to the evenings entertainment by singing a couple of very nice songs.

POPULAR CANADIAN VERSE WRITER

TORONTO, April 13—(C.P.)—The life and works of E. W. Thomson, soldier, land surveyor, journalist and famous Canadian fiction writer, were the subject of an address which M. O. Hammond presented to members of the Canadian Literature Club at McMaster University recently.

Thomson's name is not so well known as those of other Canadian writers," Mr. Hammond said. "But I think it is safe to say that he will be remembered when many more popular verse writers have forgotten."

In the course of his address Mr. Hammond informed his hearers that Thomson's birthplace, instead of being in Peel county, as was popularly supposed, was in a farmhouse in what was then part of York County but is now West Toronto. "The house is still standing, and you can see it—an old spacious red brick place, at the corner of Dundas street and Pacific Avenue," he said.

The picture of Thomson which Mr. Hammond drew was that of a writer of sharp mentality and keen critical ability, but also of a wide understanding of life. "He understood and loved the common everyday man," the speaker said.

Born in 18 9, Thomson crowded much experience in his life. First a soldier in the northern army during the American civil war; next a member of the Queen's Own Rifles in the suppression of the Fenians, afterwards a land surveyor and last a writer, he brought to his literary tasks a broad knowledge that only a crowded career could achieve. The fruits of his diversified activities were seen particularly in his verse. "Poetry is generally supposed to be the outpouring of youth," Mr. Hammond said, "but Thomson was 60 years old when he published the volume of poems, that was known in the states as 'When Lincoln Died' and in Canada as 'The Many Mansion House,' and the book won recognition in both countries."

REFUSE TO BUY FAMOUS GUELPH TREASURE

HANOVER, Germany, April 13.—The Provincial Diet has rejected proposal to buy for 5,000,000 marks (about $1,185,000) the famous Guelph treasure which for some years has been in Switzerland. The Hanover diet decided, as had the Prussian earlier, that no funds were available. The treasure is a collection of early jewels and furniture.

WINSTON CHURCHILL TO WRITE BIOGRAPHY

(By The Canadian Press) LONDON, April 13.—Winston Churchill has always had in mind the writing of a biography of his ancestor, the famous Duke of Marlborough. Now that he has finished his study of our Amageddon and its consequences, he may return to the subject. Partly, no doubt the General Election will decide this personal matter, among other things. But, anyhow, there is a rich treasury of family papers at Blenheim and they await Mr. Churchill some day.

As an author, Mr. Churchill, achieved an outstanding success with one of his earliest works, a biography of his father, Lord Randolph Churchill.

FAMILY TO HAVE DOUBLE FUNERAL

(Providence, Rhode Island Journal March 19th.) A double funeral will be held

Thursday afternoon at 230 from the Asbury Memorial Methodist Episcopal Church, North Main street, for Sarah A. (Machon) Glover of 23 Eighth street, who died March 17, and for James F. Stevenson, her son-in-law, who died yesterday at the Rhode Island Hospital of double pneumonia.

Mrs. Glover, who made her home with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Stevenson, became suddenly ill on March 7 and died 10 days later of heart trouble. Mr. Stevenson's illness developed suddenly the day following Mrs. Glover's attack. Both will be buried in the North Burial Grounds.

Mrs. Glover was born at Murray Harbor, Prince Edward Island, and came to this city about 46 years ago. At that time she was married in the Asbury Memorial M. E. Church, of which she was a member. Her husband died several years ago, and since then she had been making her home with her daughters. She also was an active member of the Ladies Aid Society of the church.

She is survived by two sons, John E. and Robert H., of Providence; four daughters, Miss Mabel Glover of Boston and Mrs. William J. Hopkins, Mrs. James F. Stevenson and Mrs. Frank Spinella of Providence; three brothers Thomas of Cranston, Peter of East Providence, and Joseph Machon of Auburn; four sisters Mrs. Mary E. Sutard of Providence, Mrs. Thomas Booth of Tynboro, Mass., Mrs. William Burns of Stellarton, N. S., and Mrs. David Brooks of Prince Edward Island, and seven grandchildren.

Mr. Stevenson was born in this city, the son of James and Elizabeth Stevenson, and had been employed for the past 20 years at the Akerman Standard Company. He had many friends in musical circles here, having played the drum in several local orchestras. He was a member of Moshassuck Council, Royal Arcanum.

Besides his parents Mr. Stevenson is survived by his wife, Anna Edna; a daughter Edna Hope, and three sisters, Mrs. William St. Germaine, Mrs. Ernest Riddensdale and Miss Elsie Stevenson of Providence.

Scots Church Meet Of Historic Value

General Assembly of Church of Scotland in May Will be Attended by Duke of York, Lord High Commissioner.

LONDON, April 13.—The appointment of the Duke of York to be Lord High Commissioner to the Church of Scotland is an additional mark of the importance of the General Assembly to be held in Edinburgh in May.

It is expected that at this assembly the union of Church of Scotland with the Free Church of Scotland will be finally approved and that the division of the Scottish Presbyterian communion which has existed since the "Disruption" in 1843 will be finally healed. For the Scottish church and people the occasion will, therefore, be one of historic interest, and in Scotland it will be regarded as fitting that the proceeding should be graced by the presence of the King's second son as His Majesty's personal representative.

The General Assembly—the highest ecclesiastical court in Scotland, with full powers of decision as to church affairs—meets annually in Edinburgh in May and sits for 10 days. The Lord High Commissioner, as representative of the King, by his presence adds "the sanction of the civil authority to its proceedings," but takes no active part in the decisions.

No action of the royal family has ever previously held the office, which, with two exceptions, has always been bestowed on a Scottish peer, usually one prominently associated with the affairs of the Scottish church.

On two occasions, commoners have discharged the duties of the office. The first of these was Sir John Hope, appointed by Charles I.; and the second was James Brown, M. P., a miners' agent and elder of the Kirk, who officiated in 1924 during the Labor administration.

For the 10 days of the General Assembly in 1924 Mr. Brown and his wife (addressed as "Her Grace") lived in Holywood Palace, attended by lords and ladies in waiting, and performed all the functions of the King's personal deputy, including the reception and entertainment of Scotland's nobility. The appointment of the Duke of York is in this way, as great departure from precedent as was that of Mr. Brown.

During the sessions of the General Assembly the Lord High Commissioner resides in Holywood Palace, one of the royal residences, which has in recent years frequently been occupied by their Majesties on Scottish visits. He is escorted by cavalry, and rides in a state coach on his journey from Holywood up the long slope of "the royal mile" of Edinburgh, to the assembly meeting-place near the Castle, and his arrival is intimated by a salute of 21 guns from the castle. At the assembly meeting he occupies "the Throne Gallery," and, whoever he may be, he takes precedence of Dukes and Earls, and generally is invested with all the dignity and prestige associated with sovereignty.

The film "Napoleon's Barber" is described as being a very realistic one. That may be because it's a talkie.
