MEMORIAL TO DR MACOUN

In immediate response to the proposal of the Canadian Horticultural Council to erect a rock garden and pool as a memorial to the late Dr. Macoun, one of Canada's most eminent horticulturists, the Dominion Minister of Agriculture at once arranged for a site at the Dominion Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa. The work on the memorial will be proceeded with at once and will be carried out with funds raised by popular subscription of the Canadian Horticultural Council.

In recognition of the great work done by the late Dr. Macoun, the following resolution, which reflects the esteem in which he was held at large by the people of Canada, was unanimously passed by the Canadian Horticultural Council "Whereas it is recognized that the late Dr. Macoun was one of the most outstanding horticulturists of his time and one of our noblest and best beloved citizens; whereas his life efforts were devoted to making our country more beautiful and fruitful; whereas other organizations, institutions, and countries have from time to time appropriately and justly honoured him; whereas he was particularly interested in the propogation and dissemination of ornamental trees and plants and their proper design; whereas at the time of his death he was preparing a design for a rock garden and pool which he hoped would be erected at the Central Experimental Farm, be it resolved that the Canadian Horticultural Council, of which the late Dr. Macoun was an honoured member since its inception, enthusiastically sponsor the erection of such a garden to his memory and that the necessary funds be raised by popular subscription under the supervision of the Plant Registration and Ornamental Horticulture Committee in order that his many friends may have an opportunity to participate."

Representative provincial committees are being appointed to carry out the work in connection with the subscription so that the Dr. Macoun memorial will be truly an all-Canada tribute to one of her most illustrious sons.

WOMEN FAINT ON JURY

(By The Canadian Press)

BATH, England, April 16—One jurywoman collapsed twice and three others sat with tense white faces or relieved their feelings in tears after they had convicted Reginald Ivor Hinks, 32, electrical engineer, of the murder of his father-in-law, James Pullen, 81. Hicks was sentenced to be hanged.

The jury, on which the four women were serving, found its verdict in a little more than an hour. After five days in the jury box, the women had the additional trial of not only deciding on the verdict but of making a final examination of the gas stove in which Pullen was found.

This grim exhibit was carried from the court into the room in which the jury considered the case.

Hinks stood with his arms hanging limply at this sides with a curious expression on his face—a look of hopeless bewilderment. When Mr. Justice Brannon asked whether he had anything to say the prisoner drew himself up and said quietly:

"Yes, I am innocent. I love my baby and home, and my wife and Mr. Pullen too much to do them any harm. The verdict is not correct. It cannot be correct." And then the judge, the black cap on his head, delivered sentence.

Alberta Drops New Amendments

(C.P. by Guardian's Special Wire)

EDMONTON, April 6—(C.P.)—Drastic amendments to the libel and slander act, which would have had the effect of regulating headlines and captions in newspapers, have been dropped by the Alberta Government.

Premier J. E. Brownlee stated in the House Saturday that the bill, which contained the amendments and which has received first reading in the House, will be withdrawn.

The Premier also stated that it was unlikely that the bill amending the judicature act, would be proceeded with, though he had no definite statement on that for the time being.

This bill, which has had first reading, provides that the Attorney-General has power to bring action to restrain the publication of any newspaper which "continuously or repeatedly" publishes writings or articles "which are obscene or immoral or are of such a nature as calculated to injure public morals."

The amendments to the libel and slander act which have been dropped, included the following provisions:

"In any action hereafter brought, a report published in any newspaper of proceedings publicly heard before any court shall be privileged if—

"(A) The report is a fair and accurate report of the proceedings;

"(B) The report contains no comment;

"(C) The report is published in the next issue of the newspaper published after the day upon which the proceedings which are the subject matter of the report were heard or within 5 days thereafter, whichever period is the shorter;

"(D) The report contains nothing of a blasphemous or indecent nature, and

"(E) The report is published without express malice."

Miners Cheerful Over Court Decision

THORBURN, N. S. April 16—(C. P.)—Word from Halifax that negotiations at a joint conference were proceeding on the basis of operating all three of the now idle Acadia coal company mines in Pictou County was received with joy here tonight.

Coming on top of Saturday's supreme court decision permitting the receiver-liquidators to partially abandon the Thorburn mine, the report provided a stronge hope in a depressed community. The court's decision might have meant the loss of the town's main industry, even though the colliery was to be protected from complete flooding.

The Halifax report that an agreement between the United Mine Workers and the receiver-liquidators was near, coupled with U.M.W. President Morrison's state (nt that negotiations were on the basis "that all the men go back to work or none, in the three collieries affected" was taken as an indication that the Thorburn mine might continue as a producer.

Meanwhile relief is being distributed to idle miners here in Stellarton and New Glasgow, the U.M.W. and the rival amalgamated mine workers looking after their own members.

Business conditions in the county are at a low ebb, and in the opinion of leading merchants a crisis will be averted if the men go back to work soon.

CHANGE YOUR FACE IF YOU DON'T LIKE IT

NEW ORLEANS, April 16—Why not be pretty if you aren't and want to be? If you don't like the face you have today you can get a new one through plastic surgery, says Dr. J. Howard Crum, a New York surgeon.

The process bears its reward, Dr. Crum told the annual convention of the American Cosmeticians Association here.

Once, he said he was rewarded with a forced hug around the neck and a dainty kiss from a former New Orleans girls whose homely countenance he had transformed into beauty in a public demonstration of his art.

Then a similar facial operation made a Tampa, Fla, woman more beautiful than the blonde woman she told the surgeon had "vamped her husband," and his affections were won back.

Again a woman who had been a penitentiary inmate for 20 years sought his aid to remove her "hardened face" that she might not be recognized in the operation of a beauty parlor. It worked and his patient "went straight."

But this surgeon said he now confines his practice to women. Once he changed the face of a man after he had been assured that the police had nothing against the patient, but the man within three months was picked up with a set of burglar tools.

GRAIN

(Canadian Press)

WINNIPEG, April 16—Bolstered up by large export sales of Canadian wheat futures quotations withstood a barrage of selling on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today and, despite a widespoen "break" in the Chicago market closed with declines of only ⅝ to ¾ cent.

The may option closed at 66 July at 66¾ and October at 68½ cents. Speaker Henry Rainey's statement that silver legislation was not slated for the present United States Congress session appeared responsible for the five-cent decline at Chicago.

Liverpool wheat, however, held up well, closing with a gain of ½d and aided in the steadiness at Winnipeg. This factor, combined with export sales of 1,500,000 bushels, sent the market up for gains of about one cent early in the day and developed a firm undertone. The Government agency appeared to be the largest seller of wheat.

Volume of business through the pit swelled to large proportions as importers, apparently impressed by developments at the Rome Conference, hastened to acquire wheat. Commission houses were in on both sides of the market.

Statistics for last week showed world wheat shipments up 2,500 bushels from the week previous, clearances amounting to 10,714 bushels.

Demand for various grades of cash grains continued dull. Weakness at Chicago depressed the coarse grains market with wide declines general.

MINING

(Canadian Press)

TORONTO, April 16—The mining section of the Toronto Stock Exchange opened the new week by shading prices all along the line but losses were in moderate proportions and trading declined in volume as prices worked lower. Turnover of 1,800,000 was the lowest for a full session in several weeks. New York weakness was the chief depressing influence though trading has been easing down since the props were knocked from under three or four of the penny stocks a week ago.

Senior gold shares were only mildly disturbed by the sell off in New York. McIntyre, off 65 cents, took the main loss. Dome lost 25 cents, Hollinger 5, Lake Shore 10, Pioneer 15 while Teck and Bralorne closed narrowly higher. Under profit-taking Sylvanite eased down 15 cents to 2.35 and other casualties in the group were 7 for Macassa, 2 for McKenzie, McVittie, McMillan Ventures, Howey, God's Lake, Canadian Malartic, Central Patricia and 3 each for Siscoe and Bagamac and 5 for Thompson-Cadillac and Coniaurum.

Youthful France Is Resentful

(By Louis Roy)

(Canadian Press Correspondent)

PARIS, April 15—If ever a wind favored revolutions and roused wild dreams as it went, it is that which is blowing down from the height of Montmartre, twirls the sign "Rendezvous of Poor Bachelors" in passing, and fills the heads of those who enter with feverish enthusiasms.

"Bachelors" refers not to their loveless state, but to their citizenship in the republic of letters, as bachelors of art, of science, as doctors, lawyers, engineers and artists. They are the growing army of students. No matter how Paris may shrug her shoulders, this proletariat of intellectuals has already helped in the overthrow of four cabinets and made a regime totter.

Montmartre awakens at twilight. Above the white dome of Sacre-Coeur rises against a flaming background of clouds. Four hundred feet below, the rampart of Montmartre ploughs into Paris like the prow of a huge ship into the sea, from which emerge in the distant mists the dark towers of Notre Dame like twin black reefs.

Iridescent shadows hold city, hill and sky in a vast simmering splendor.

It is the hour when the poor bachelors, emerge from the incognito of the crowd and turn their footsteps to the modest refectory under the swinging sign, half way up Montmartre. They hasten as invited to a banquet. Over their coffee and rolls at two cents, or their dinner at 10 cents, these scholars nourished on Greek and Latin, and the higher calculus, yet dying of hunger, plot the future of France. Then, warmed by the coffee and the air vibrant with dreams, they soon leave the purely national point of views to pass on to world civilization.

Gather Every Night

They collect here and at Placedu Tertre, above on the height, every night by the thousands, these youths with the disillusioned and unflinching eyes. Already the lash of their laughter has driven from Montmartre the old and idle pleasure seekers, who had made of this former haunt of artists and writers a modern Babylon.

That was just a brush of strength. They know the future is theirs. They are sure that old and cynical politicans all over the world are plotting to betray them.

Nineteen thirty three in Paris was a year of centenaries. These youths who measure with their implacable glance the blind horizons which encircle them, believe that 1934 is the beginning of a new era of which they are the incarnation, whose revelation will astonish the world.

But there are two things they do not know, fear and humility.

On the hill, the terms "traitor" and "politician" have become synonymous, Geneva and the League laughing stocks. There pass from table to table caricatures, sketched by the quick hands of artists there, caricatures of European politicians, hanging from gibbets, with ribald comments scribbled beneath. Then the laughter strikes the stars.

Grandiose phrases are bandied from table to table, such as "the death raffle of the universe" — "The ruins of a world about to be engulfed." The black and yellow lights outline the gestures, the faces of the crusaders of youth as they dine meagrely in the open air. Beyond the white dome of Sacre-Coeur cuts the stars. Far beneath Paris geams, an ocean of lights.

Daily the cohorts of youth grow in determination and numbers. The faculties of France will see 72,000 graduate this year as compared with 9,388 in 1920. The students at the University of Paris increase in numbers, 1,000 a year until they reach now 35,000.

Now and then, worn out with overwork, the double shift, as they call it, working at night at a trade, and in the day at the University, now and then a student kills himself with fatigue, or giving way to poverty or despair puts a bullet through his head.

Those nights, the comments, falling between silences at the Rendezvous of Poor Bachelors, have a more ominous sting. Then the rest take the memory of these poor brothers of Montmartre to make of it a bulwark against sur-

SKATES OVER 125 YEARS OLD ARE TREASURED

REGINA, April 10. — (C.P.) — Skates that flashed along the Chippewa and Niagara rivers during the war of 1812, when Aaron Price carried messages for the British forces, today are the cherished possessions of Lyman Thomas, here, grandson of the skating messenger.

More than 125 years old, the skates are built on a wooden base which attaches to the shoe. The blades are a quarter of an inch in width.

Young at 80

(By The Canadian Press)

MONTREAL, April 16 — Mrs. John Scott, pioneer feminist and the "grand little old Lady of Quebec" has entered upon her 80th year and is still going strong. Just a week before her recent birthday she addressed two meetings in one day. In her up-to-date apartment she lives as independently and capably as a modern bachelor girl. She has not forgotten the art of cooking either, for her Scotch scones and marmalade are a treat.

The name of Isabella Scott will go down in history as one of the leaders who began the women's suffrage movement in the province of Quebec. During elecing campaigns she was a popular speaker.

Mrs. Scott delights in recalling the story of her Scottish father and mother and 12 brothers and sisters, of whom she was the eldest, travelling from Glasgow in 1874 and settling in Scotstown, Quebec. In this country she met a young Scotsman who strangely enough had been born within four miles of Glasgow, and eventually married him. Seven little Canadians were born to them and in those days "I had no time then for questions of suffrage", said Mrs. Scott with a twinkle in her eye as she unfolded her story to an interviewer.

"My husband was Mayor of Scotstown, chairman of the school board ruling elder in the church, telegraph operator, station agent and the keeper of a general store, and in our spare time we attended the weekly prayer meeting and the meeting of the Christian Endeavor."

Mrs. Scott and her family came to Montreal in 1905 and as time went on and her children became less dependent on her she gradually became interested in public life.

CANADIAN STRAWBERRIES

Strawberries are produced commercially in British Columbia, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Ontario and Quebec. Each area has established distribution in fresh-fruits markets, and there is a good demand for canning and jam purposes. Consumer demand in April, May, and June, when this fruit is available from the United States in advance of local supplies, results in the importation of a considerable amount, approaching 3,000,000 quarts. Exports from Canada, mainly of late 500,000 to 6000,000 quarts annually.

A GULL-HUNTING CAT

A wharfinger's cat on the Canadian National Steamships wharf at Prince Rupert, B. C., refuses to look at rats or mice but spends its waking time in trying to catch seagulls which perch on the wharf timbers. It is not very successful in making captures because in the excitement of the chase pussy waves her tail aloft. This is sufficient warning to the gulls which fly seaward when they see this danger signal. At all other times, the cat is ignored.
