

THE CHARLOTTETOWN GUARDIAN

Morning Daily (Founded in 1887)
President: Lieut. Col. W. Chester S. McLane
Vice-President: J. K. Burnett, F. J. L.

Rumored Appointment

The likelihood of Hon. Cyrus Macmillan being appointed Air Minister in succession to Hon. C. G. Power is mentioned in an Ottawa exchange.

Once before, on the eve of an election, Mr. King awarded a portfolio to Dr. Macmillan, but this was cold comfort since both the Minister and the Government were defeated on that occasion.

Time For Restraint

It will be a pity if members of the United Nations start falling out among themselves over what they should do, or refrain from doing, with respect to liberated countries.

"We are thinking," says the Journal, "about the different views held by the British Foreign Office and the United States Department over developments in Greece and Italy."

Mr. Churchill, in one of his speeches, said that but one hope remained for Hitler—the hope of division among the Allies.

Canadian Bravery

In the background of our crisis over conscription lay the bitterness of the battle for the Scheldt estuary, a battle which engaged the full strength of the Canadian army.

"The country south of the Scheldt estuary is a gift to the defence, and the Germans had taken full advantage of its potentialities."

"They gave the Canadians more trouble than can well be imagined. The troops had to approach them through water-logged fields."

Against the Canadians, Strategics continues, there stood von Model's 15th German army, composed of about 120,000 men.

International Monetary Fund

In view of Canada's position as a country whose internal prosperity is vitally dependent upon her export trade, she must co-operate wholeheartedly with the plans for an international monetary fund and an international development and reconstruction bank.

international trade." Member nations in difficulties because of an out-of-balance import or export trade would be helped by the fund under conditions which keep in view the broad picture of international financial stability.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Britain's highest mountain peak, Ben Nevis, in Scotland, is being used for testing industrial machine tools at high altitudes similar to those in the overseas countries for which they are being produced.

It was recently disclosed that an Indian Division is operating in Greece also. Indian troops are now on active duty in France, Italy (both in the British 8th Army and American 5th Army), all over the Middle East and in preponderating numbers in Burma.

The British ice cream (prohibition of manufacture and sales) order of 1942 has been revoked as from 16th November, 1944, allocations of ingredients will be made to trade as from December 10th but owing to difficulties of manpower and transport it may be some time before ice cream is generally available.

One reason why the C. C. F. government of Saskatchewan have delayed taking over the breweries in that province, says Mr. C. M. Fines, the provincial secretary-treasurer, is because to socialize the existing breweries "would require $3,000,000 or $4,000,000 which we have not got at the present time."

It seems Grey North, Ont., is not going to be a walkover for General McNaughton after all. The Progressive Conservatives are to run their candidate, Mayor Garfield Case of Owen Sound.

Dr. Samuel Johnson, English man of letters, died this date 1784; after failing as a schoolmaster, he entered journalism as a Parliamentary reporter; he started a new dictionary of the English language, followed by a number of essays and magazine contributions; in 1762 was given a pension of $1,500 per annum on which he lived comfortably and travelled extensively; the following year he made the acquaintance of Boswell who became his biographer and diarist, a combination which made both of them famous; "A wise Tory and a wise Whig, I believe will agree. Their principles are the same, though their modes of thinking are different."

The number of income tax payers in Britain has increased from 4,000,000 to 13,000,000 since the war began, and the average worker who makes between 500 pounds and 1,000 pounds ($2,250 and $4,500) a year now pays 28 per cent of his income directly to the government.

The other day we were regaled with the inside lowdown on the "bombs" of the Government. The story of this amazing invention was more thrilling than the wildest dreams of Jules Verne.

A great grand-uncle of Prime Minister Churchill was at one time Governor of Brussels, according to Belgian information sources.

Lady Astor, the American-born woman whose 25 years in the House of Commons has made of her almost a traditional figure in Parliament, announces that she will retire from politics when her term is ended.

"A Mother in Israel" has been removed by the death yesterday of that remarkable lady, Mrs. W. L. Cotton, widow of the editor and proprietor of the Examiner which for long held a prominent place in the regard and esteem of this community.

It is claimed that a Saskatchewan scientist has just got around to discovering what grandma knew 40 or 50 years ago—that the onions are good for you.

It is claimed that a Saskatchewan scientist has just got around to discovering what grandma knew 40 or 50 years ago—that the onions are good for you. This scientist found in the onion what news dispatches call a "mysterious bacteria-destroying substance" which operates in different fashion from other recently discovered substances.

Notes By The Way

Don't know which grows faster, crab grass in the yard, the whitening of a man's face, or the national debt.—(Brandon Sun.)

Then there is the saucy Waac who said she would like to hear the reasons for his cigarette shortage "without any whiffs or butts".—(Hamilton Spectator.)

The Empire Rheumatism Council has tested a Russian serum cure for rheumatoid arthritis but "the results obtained do not justify a favorable verdict." Health Minister C. U. Willink has advised the Commons.—(Fredericton Journal.)

Cable says law lords of the Privy Council listen to amusement at an explanation of the strike box. The amusement might have ended had a demonstration been offered.—(Toronto Telegram.)

Ten thousand Australian girls have been married to American soldiers and sailors, and the hometown girls want to know if this isn't carrying Lend-Lease too far.—(Winnipeg Tribune.)

It is claimed that in order to keep a year from going crazy his attendants have to feed him with false reports of the battle actions on all fronts. Thus Hitler has become a victim of his own petard—falsehood.—(Chatham News.)

Ingrid Bergman wonders what her beautiful legs have to do with her success as an actress. They're just like cream on peaches, Ingrid, not elegant but a wonderful complement.—(St. Thomas Times-Journal.)

Larger pensions to accompany the Victoria Cross are being advocated. The present pension is about $10,000 a year, and the holders of the Victoria Cross are entitled to it as high as pensioners that given a high ranking officer's salary.—(St. Thomas Times-Journal.)

There is a new inducement to hasten the end of the war, an announcement that chemical treatment of fibres, developed in recent months for use in the manufacture of silk stockings, will be run-proof when the new process is applied to hosiery.—(From the Boston Post.)

It will be interesting to observe the results of a new experiment in industrial health which Russia is making. Overnight war factories have been opened in Moscow where workers can rest during their off hours and receive treatment for minor ailments which are not considered enough to keep them away from their work.

Fashion designers in London say that the average woman after the war will have luscious curves from diets, and big feet from working too much. The trouble will be that the women who are not content to look as different as possible from the average, but how do you get the slender shoulders and big feet?—(Montreal Gazette.)

Oranges from South Africa are beginning to appear in this country. Colonel Llewellyn, Minister of Food expects there will be sufficient supplies to give a distribution of one pound of oranges for each child in the country between now and Christmas. At present oranges are being distributed to children in Northern Ireland, Scotland, and the north of England.—(London Times.)

The other day we were regaled with the inside lowdown on the "bombs" of the Government. The story of this amazing invention was more thrilling than the wildest dreams of Jules Verne.

A great grand-uncle of Prime Minister Churchill was at one time Governor of Brussels, according to Belgian information sources. He was General Charles Churchill, born February 2, 1655, a son of Sir Winston Churchill and Elizabeth, daughter of Sir John Drake. He was brother to John Churchill, Duke of Marlborough, Governor of the Tower of London in Queen Anne's reign, and a member of the Belgian to take part in the war of Spanish succession. The Duke of Marlborough won a signal victory at Ramillies on May 23, 1706, and entered Brussels a few days later, accompanied by his brother, Charles, whom he appointed Governor. The following month an important Belgian newspaper printed this statement: "Thanks to His Excellency General Churchill, the roads of the Low Countries are beginning to be free."—(Hamilton Spectator.)

It is claimed that a Saskatchewan scientist has just got around to discovering what grandma knew 40 or 50 years ago—that the onions are good for you.

It is claimed that a Saskatchewan scientist has just got around to discovering what grandma knew 40 or 50 years ago—that the onions are good for you. This scientist found in the onion what news dispatches call a "mysterious bacteria-destroying substance" which operates in different fashion from other recently discovered substances.

It is claimed that a Saskatchewan scientist has just got around to discovering what grandma knew 40 or 50 years ago—that the onions are good for you.

It is claimed that a Saskatchewan scientist has just got around to discovering what grandma knew 40 or 50 years ago—that the onions are good for you. This scientist found in the onion what news dispatches call a "mysterious bacteria-destroying substance" which operates in different fashion from other recently discovered substances.

PUBLIC FORUM

Don't know which grows faster, crab grass in the yard, the whitening of a man's face, or the national debt.—(Brandon Sun.)

Then there is the saucy Waac who said she would like to hear the reasons for his cigarette shortage "without any whiffs or butts".—(Hamilton Spectator.)

The Empire Rheumatism Council has tested a Russian serum cure for rheumatoid arthritis but "the results obtained do not justify a favorable verdict." Health Minister C. U. Willink has advised the Commons.—(Fredericton Journal.)

Cable says law lords of the Privy Council listen to amusement at an explanation of the strike box. The amusement might have ended had a demonstration been offered.—(Toronto Telegram.)

Ten thousand Australian girls have been married to American soldiers and sailors, and the hometown girls want to know if this isn't carrying Lend-Lease too far.—(Winnipeg Tribune.)

It is claimed that in order to keep a year from going crazy his attendants have to feed him with false reports of the battle actions on all fronts. Thus Hitler has become a victim of his own petard—falsehood.—(Chatham News.)

Ingrid Bergman wonders what her beautiful legs have to do with her success as an actress. They're just like cream on peaches, Ingrid, not elegant but a wonderful complement.—(St. Thomas Times-Journal.)

Larger pensions to accompany the Victoria Cross are being advocated. The present pension is about $10,000 a year, and the holders of the Victoria Cross are entitled to it as high as pensioners that given a high ranking officer's salary.—(St. Thomas Times-Journal.)

There is a new inducement to hasten the end of the war, an announcement that chemical treatment of fibres, developed in recent months for use in the manufacture of silk stockings, will be run-proof when the new process is applied to hosiery.—(From the Boston Post.)

It will be interesting to observe the results of a new experiment in industrial health which Russia is making. Overnight war factories have been opened in Moscow where workers can rest during their off hours and receive treatment for minor ailments which are not considered enough to keep them away from their work.

Fashion designers in London say that the average woman after the war will have luscious curves from diets, and big feet from working too much. The trouble will be that the women who are not content to look as different as possible from the average, but how do you get the slender shoulders and big feet?—(Montreal Gazette.)

Oranges from South Africa are beginning to appear in this country. Colonel Llewellyn, Minister of Food expects there will be sufficient supplies to give a distribution of one pound of oranges for each child in the country between now and Christmas. At present oranges are being distributed to children in Northern Ireland, Scotland, and the north of England.—(London Times.)

The other day we were regaled with the inside lowdown on the "bombs" of the Government. The story of this amazing invention was more thrilling than the wildest dreams of Jules Verne.

A great grand-uncle of Prime Minister Churchill was at one time Governor of Brussels, according to Belgian information sources. He was General Charles Churchill, born February 2, 1655, a son of Sir Winston Churchill and Elizabeth, daughter of Sir John Drake. He was brother to John Churchill, Duke of Marlborough, Governor of the Tower of London in Queen Anne's reign, and a member of the Belgian to take part in the war of Spanish succession. The Duke of Marlborough won a signal victory at Ramillies on May 23, 1706, and entered Brussels a few days later, accompanied by his brother, Charles, whom he appointed Governor. The following month an important Belgian newspaper printed this statement: "Thanks to His Excellency General Churchill, the roads of the Low Countries are beginning to be free."—(Hamilton Spectator.)

It is claimed that a Saskatchewan scientist has just got around to discovering what grandma knew 40 or 50 years ago—that the onions are good for you.

It is claimed that a Saskatchewan scientist has just got around to discovering what grandma knew 40 or 50 years ago—that the onions are good for you. This scientist found in the onion what news dispatches call a "mysterious bacteria-destroying substance" which operates in different fashion from other recently discovered substances.

It is claimed that a Saskatchewan scientist has just got around to discovering what grandma knew 40 or 50 years ago—that the onions are good for you.

It is claimed that a Saskatchewan scientist has just got around to discovering what grandma knew 40 or 50 years ago—that the onions are good for you. This scientist found in the onion what news dispatches call a "mysterious bacteria-destroying substance" which operates in different fashion from other recently discovered substances.

MUFFLERS advertisement featuring a man in a hat and scarf, with text: 'Smart Christmas Gifts. YOU can't go wrong when you choose a muffler or scarf for a Christmas gift from our fine selection—they're just bound to please!'

HENDERSON & CUDMORE advertisement for muffs and scarves, listing prices: Handsome Paisley $2 up, White Silk Mufflers $2 up, Plain Wools, all shades 2.50.

WIPED OUT! advertisement for fire insurance, featuring text: 'Ask the man who has had the misfortune to be "wiped out" if you need Fire Insurance, and follow his advice.'

ON A PIECE OF TAPESTRY advertisement for 'The Pets' Ointment', featuring text: 'Hold high the wool, dear friends, the cunning mixture of its colors, rate, Nothing in nature purposely is fair.'

MONCTON SAINT JOHN advertisement for bus services, listing routes and times: '7:00 A.M., 11:30 A.M., 6:00 P.M.'

MARITIME CENTRAL AIRWAYS Limited advertisement for flights to Glasgow, listing fares: '$5.00 One Way (Plus Tax) RESERVATIONS INFORMATION TICKETS PHONE 540-2061'

H. J. MABON advertisement for optometry services, listing address: 'Montague, P. E. I. Office Hours: 10 to 12 A.M. 5 to 8 P.M.'

Mcl eod & Bentley advertisement for accountancy services, listing address: '154 Prince Street'

H. R. Doane & Co. advertisement for chartered accountants, listing address: '53 Grafton Street, Charlottetown'

D. F. ARGENTI advertisement for chartered accountants, listing address: '111 St. John Street, Charlottetown'

M. ALBAN FARMER advertisement for Canadian Bank of Commerce, listing services: 'MONEY TO LOAN BARESTER, SOLICITOR, ETC.'

Richard B. Johnston advertisement for attorney at law, listing address: 'Princed Edward Island'

Attention Swine Breeders advertisement for MACS PIG-WORM TONIC POWDER, listing benefits: 'Now is the time to guard against PIG-WORM using the most effective remedy on the market.'

MACS AMMONIATED BRC CAL COMPOUND advertisement for agricultural products, listing benefits: 'Relieves acute Bronchitis, Nasal Catarrh, Croup, and Cold. Price 50 cents a bottle'

MACS FILE OINTMENT advertisement for medicinal ointment, listing benefits: 'A safe and efficient remedy for internal and external use. It is made out of the best quality ingredients, possessing remarkable therapeutic value for this purpose.'

THE 2 MACS advertisement for medicinal products, listing address: '140 Great George Street, Charlottetown'