A. Alex. MacLeod, the well-known artist of New York, has an important announcement in another issue of this issue, which should prove of interest to all provincialists. The very fine work which Mr. MacLeod does in life size portraits has been demonstrated, and several samples have been seen by many people here, as at different times orders executed by him have been always met with the highest praise, so clearly were the features brought out by the talented artist. Mr. MacLeod, who is offering exceptional prices, last summer visited his native province, renewing old friendships.

New Wonderland was crowded to the limit last night. Kramer and Massey made an exceptionally fine initial appearance, and the running fire of comedy throughout their act kept their audience in abundance of merriment. Mr. Massey as a clarinetist is one of the finest on the stage today, and has been for years with the celebrated Celtic Band, the 48th Highlanders. The musical portion of their program especially the hits on the popular plays of the day, went splendidly, and altogether their act is splendid. The centre of interest was around the Real Live Baby, which at nine o'clock sharp was given away. It proved to be a real live and real thoroughbred cocker spaniel baby. The first lucky seat holder resigning her claim to it, the possession proved finally to be Mr. Mills, who went home delighted with his gift. There was fun and entertainment galore at New Wonderland last night, and for the balance of the week Kramer and Massey will supply any amount of amusement. Theirs is a clever act, well worth seeing in every respect.
