Happenings of The Week

In brilliant autumn sunshine 500 members of the Women's Division of the R.C.A.F. marching to the rhythm of an R.C.A.F. brass band, swung through the bronze gates of Buckingham Palace Wednesday to be reviewed and welcomed by the Queen. It was the first time the women of any Canadian service were reviewed by Royal command and during the inspection Her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Elizabeth, stopped, smiled and chatted with more than 50 girls, spoke of their home-going and wished them luck. With the Queen on the reviewing stand were Princess Elizabeth, Air Marshal G. O. Johnston of Halifax, commander of the R.C.A.F. overseas, and Commodore H.E. Godwin of Belleville, Ont., deputy commander. Other R.C.A.F. heads were lined up behind the reviewing stand. Afterwards the girls were taken to the R.C.A.F. officers. Among the girls who talked with the Queen was Sgt. K. C. Kennedy of Edmundston, N.B.

The King, carrying in his arms the three-month-old Crown Prince of Yugoslavia, walked three times around a silver font in the choir of Westminster Abbey Wednesday at the baptismal ceremony of the son of King Peter and Queen Alexandra of Yugoslavia. The King was fulfilling a promise made at King Peter's wedding, at which he was best man, that he would be godfather to any children of the marriage. Princess Elizabeth is the child's godmother.

The baby was immersed three times in warm water and he did not like it. His lusty cries rang through the ancient church until Princess Elizabeth took him in her arms and quieted him. He slept through most of the Orthodox ceremony in the arms of the Princess but awakened with a yell when Princess Elizabeth handed him to the King. The King, in naval uniform, carried him around the font before the bearded patriarch, V. H. Gavrilov, anointed the Crown Prince with holy oil.

The child was named Alexander for his grandfather, Alexander I, assassinated at Marseilles in one of the preludes to the second Great War. Among those in the Cathedral were King George of Greece, the Duchess of Kent, Princess Alexandra of Greece and Princess Helen of Serbia.

Hon. George D. DeBolis was reviewing the list of his friends last Saturday on the happy occasion of his 58th birthday.

On Thursday afternoon, Mrs. Josh, Alexandra Apartments, received in honor of her daughter, wife of Lieutenant Alan B. Cash, R. C. N. The bride in her beautiful wedding gown of white nylon over white satin, carried a sheaf of white chrysanthemums and looked radiant as she gracefully received the hundreds of callers. Mrs. Bartlett ushered the numerous guests into the dining room, where a buffet lunch was served. The tea table was in white and green, centered with white chrysanthemums and a beautiful Spanish lace runner. The full length of the table, Mrs. Arthur Burt poured tea and Mrs. A. W. Hyndman coffee. The following young ladies assisted in the dining room: Mrs. Don Grant, Mrs. C. MacKenzie, Mrs. Andrew Likely, Mrs. Ian Smith, R. G. C. MacMillan, Mrs. Ian MacDonald, Mrs. Vincent Fraser, Mrs. Jack Connolly, Mrs. Maurice Weeks, Mrs. Allen MacMillan and Miss Marian Morris. The numerous and beautiful wedding gifts were displayed in the hall, and were much admired. They consisted of silverware, silver-decorated china, table linen, glass, and numerous cheques.

Sincerest sympathy goes out to Dr. F. W. Tidmarsh and family in their present bereavement. Mrs. Tidmarsh is very kindly remembered by her friends.

Mrs. W. A. Stewart who has been quite ill in the P. E. I. Hospital is making a nice recovery and returned home yesterday. Mr. and Mrs. Stewart, who recently welcomed their daughter, Miss Marjorie home from overseas, are now awaiting a visit over the weekend of their son Major Allan S. Stewart from England on his way to join his wife and young son in Owen Sound, Ont.

Mrs. Harry Cadmore was hostess at a delightfully strangled miscellaneous dinner at her home last Saturday evening in honor of Miss Margaret Sterns, whose marriage to Lt. Col. George Peake was one of the social events of the week. At this gay gathering the popular bride-to-be received an array of gifts, all tokens of the love and esteem in which her friends hold her. A buffet supper ended in happiest congratulations.

Mrs. W. Hedley Wilson and Mrs. Allen R. Clark were joint hostesses at an afternoon gathering at the residence of Mrs. Wilson, George Street, Fredericton. The event was in honor of Mrs. E. G. Loughlin of Fredericton, N.B., a former Charlottetown lady, and more than 40 guests enjoyed the hospitality of the hostesses. The rooms were decorated with bronze chrysanthemums in copper bowls, and the tea table covered with a Point de Venise place cloth was centered with a silver embossed crystal bowl of yellow and white baby mums flanked by yellow tapers in matching crystal holders. Mrs. E. A. Skene presided over the tea and Mrs. B. R. Ross, Mrs. Harold Limerick, Mrs. K.R. McAdam and Mrs. Kenneth Moore served the guests. At the close of the afternoon Mrs. Loughlin was presented a gift of Spode china attractively wrapped. Mrs. Clark made the presentation and conveyed the good wishes of the guests for happiness in her new home at Loggville, N.B., as well as regret at Mrs. Loughlin's departure from Fredericton in the near future.

Dorothy Dix Says— Children Are Human

Parents Must Treat Offspring As They Would Be

One of the curious things in the relationship between parents and children is that fathers and mothers seldom think of their children as people. They would like for their youngsters to be little angels. They often seem to them small devils. But they rarely regard Bobby and Susie as just human beings, cut out of the same bolt of cloth as they are, stamped with the same pattern, and responding in the same way to the same treatment that they do.

This is why there is so much strife between parents and their adolescent children, and why parents have so little influence over their children, for it takes about 40 years for Father and Mother to reluctantly realize that their offspring are not just rubber stamps of themselves but individuals with their own personal reactions, and that they want to be dealt with on their platform.

Take the faults of which parents mostly complain in their children, such as lack of obedience, lack of confidence, even lying and deceit, and you will see how often this stems from the parents' failure to treat Johnny and Mamie as intelligent human beings instead of morons. Let's begin with obedience, which is parents' greatest gripe. The loudest and most frequent wall that fathers and mothers emit is that they can't do a thing with their children. And it never seems to occur to them that the reason that Johnny and Mamie defy them is because they are not approached in the right manner.

They are arbitrarily ordered to do something, or leave something undone, without any reason or explanation being given them, and they naturally rebel at such dictatorial treatment, just as a grownup would if he had any spirit and backbone. Mother weeps on our breast and tells us that Mamie never confides in her. She never talks things over with her. She hasn't the slightest idea of what Mamie hopes and does and plans. And the reason of it is that Mother biases everything that Mamie tells her.

The time when Mother made a funny story, that set a dinner table in a roar, over Mamie's shy little account of her first date sealed Mamie's lips forever, as far as Mother is concerned. No girl is ever going to be confidential with the mother who listens in on her telephone conversations and opens her letters and reads them. Would you?

Then there are the children who lie to their parents about what they do and where they go. Practically always that is because their fathers and mothers drive them into doing by denying them the pleasure and liberty they are entitled to at their age. Children would like to be on friendly terms with their parents if they could. They would enjoy planning things with Father and Mother if they would cooperate. And they would think it just tops to be able to have their pals dropping in their homes if there was "welcome" on the doormat.

It is when parents persist in treating their half-grown children as if they were little idiots, who had to be held by the hand and tucked in to bed at nine o'clock, that turns them into liars and cheats, as it does every grownup who is under the thumb of a tyrant. The moral of all of which is that if you want your children to love, honor, and obey you, treat them as if they were regular fellows. Treat them the way you would like to be treated and they will react to it just as you would.

The office staff of Fisher Bros. presented Miss Muriel Prizell with a lovely magazine rack prior to her leaving for Halifax to take up her position as stenographer with the Canadian Industries Ltd.

The King has personally ordered the dispatch to Winston Churchill, Britain's wartime leader, of five Star, the Africa Star, the Italy Star, the France and Germany Star and the Defence Medal. Mr. Churchill's war services, which entailed 80,000 miles of world travel, entitle him to all five awards. He is the third prime minister to be so honored. The others were Herbert Asquith, Liberal prime minister at the outbreak of the First Great War, and David Lloyd George, who succeeded Mr. Asquith.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek quietly celebrated his 50th birthday Saturday. A family dinner was the only scheduled observance of the occasion. Many high officials and civic leaders presented birthday cakes and gifts during the morning but all were returned by his aide-de-camp's office. A note explained that because the Generalissimo was leading the nation's campaign for frugality and simplicity, no gifts could be accepted.

The temperature sometimes rises from near zero in the morning to 60 degrees in the afternoon during the dry season on high Inca peaks in southern Peru.

ELLEN'S DIARY

By an Island Farmer's Wife

A tranquility lay like a benediction across the countryside this morning, to make one remember with regret the swift passing of the month at hand. The glaucous green of the foliage on the rose trellis had a background of gold when the silver birch behind it was a lacquer screen against the rising sun. The robin's nest there is more easily seen now—the same well-built nest, snug in a crotch of branches, about which "a man and his maid" wove bright colored dreams last spring. Deserved now to be one day wrapped in the soft blanket of winter.

At the noon hour we seized minutes of leisure to wrap an early red blanket about our spring flowering bulbs, in our newly-made bed. We worked hastily in the sunshine and light breeze and as we worked, I caught the pond's sparkle and a blue-jay's call. "A whole hour wasted," James said not impatiently but rather in surprise on the importance of the farm interests, thus delayed. When the older wood of the land is James' day is equal to several of mine, I am not sure. At any rate this was our exchange. All this lamp-brightness was the charm of "upland and lowland" and the indoors called, we were billeted in the barn, where an almost continuous low potatoes were presented for our minute inspection. As a consequence, any housework in preparation for the Sabbath, that had not been set in order before noon had to await the "moon-beams' misty light" or several hours of burning of the wash, a cake, when the breakfast things were cleared away, which as a courtesy might be passed as a fruit cake, contains currants in place of raisins, stewed prunes to supplement these and to give it piquancy. The Annual Church picnic was held at the farm on Saturday. The picnic was a success and the weather was just what was needed for the occasion. The picnic was a success and the weather was just what was needed for the occasion.

"Well said the doctor, 'you're cured at last. How do you feel?' "I feel," said the patient, looking at his pocketbook sadly, "I feel as if I must start life all over again."

HOW CAN I!

By Anne Ashley

Q. How can I find the proper working height for a kitchen table? A. By holding the upper part of the arm close to the body. Then bend the arm at the elbow. The correct height is the distance from the floor to the elbow minus two inches. Q. How can I iron round table cloths properly? A. Always iron the round table cloth from the center to the edge, and then roll instead of folding. Q. How can I relieve a child's sore throat? A. Applying a liniment of two parts of sweet oil mixed with one part of spirits of hartshorn.

Living & Leisure THE WOMAN'S REALM

A PRAYER FOR LOVE

God, give me Love! I do not only pray for love, but I want it. Perfect Love may be bestowed on me; but let me feel the lovability of every soul I meet along the way; though it be hidden from the light of day. From every eye but Love's. Oh! I would see My brother in the high and in the lowly, in every spirit clothed in mortal clay. Give me the gift of loving! I will claim No other blessing from the Lord of earth. For he who loves needs no high-sounding name. Nor power, nor treasure to proclaim his worth: His soul has lit at life's immortal flame. A lamp that may illumine all the earth. —Eko.

COOK'S CORNER

NUT BARS

If you have a little fruit sugar to spare for the purpose, you might like to roll these bars in it, after cutting them. My Homemakers and I tried them both ways and thought that the sugared bars had a slight edge on the others. 1/8 cup flour, 1/4 teaspoon baking powder, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup crisp breakfast bran cereal, 2 eggs, 1 cup sifted brown sugar, lightly packed, 1 tablespoon butter or shortening, melted, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla, 1/2 cup chopped nutsmeats. Measure and sift together twice the flour, baking powder and salt. Crush the crisp breakfast bran cereal into fine crumbs and stir into flour mixture. Beat the eggs very well, then gradually beat in the brown sugar, melted butter or shortening and vanilla. Add dry ingredients and nutsmeats to the liquid mixture, mix lightly and form into a buttered shallow 8-inch square cake pan. Bake in a hot oven, 425 degrees, about 15 minutes. Immediately upon coming from oven cut into squares or bars.

GENTLE SLEEP!

In an article in the Lancet, Captain E. Lipman Cohen, R.A.M.C., after interviewing 500 young women during an investigation on sleep, states that heavy sleepers do not awaken as refreshed as light sleepers. Eight hours is the average night's sleep, but at the age of seventeen, eight and a half hours is more usual.
