Sugar Rationing Ends Today In United States

WASHINGTON, June 11 — (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Anderson today announced the end of sugar rationing for United States household consumers effective at midnight tonight, but kept the controls on sugar prices. Institutional users of sugar, such as hotels and restaurants, also will be exempted from rationing provisions. The secretary told a press conference that in industrial users we will still be subject to rationing, however. All sugar controls are scheduled to end Oct. 31, unless there is further action by Congress. As in Canada, sugar was the last of war-rationed commodities controlled here. Controls on others have been freed progressively as the United States' economy readjusted itself following the cessation of hostilities.

Haymaking Already Underway in England

LONDON, June 11 — (CP) — Two weeks of fine weather have enabled farmers in southern England to make an early start on haymaking. Most of the seed hay now is harvested and large farms in Sussex are reaping a great crop of permanent meadow hay which promises to be excellent. Farmers say hay has "grown overnight" as a result of the extreme heat following the wet.

Dining Room Colors Can Affect Appetites

(By Kay Rex) OTTAWA, June 11—(CP)—The case of the flet mignon which turned a delicate charcuterie beneath an infra-red light and the green peas which changed to purple were told to the Canadian Dietetic Association today as an interior decorator warned that the appetite of a restaurant's patrons often depends on color. Experiments have shown that color affects the mood—and even the appetite of the individual, said William Tucker of Toronto, adding that dining-rooms still are being decorated in yellow, slightly on the green side, when it has been proved this shade is capable of putting many a digestion off balance. Warm toasty shades are preferable. He recalled the story of the person interested in lighting effects who put on a choice banquet and when the food was served switched on a series of infra-red lights. The flet mignon turned a charcuterie, the glass of milk blood red, and the peas became purple. While the food remained as delectable as ever, not one of the guests finished the meal. Restaurants finished in tight blue tones often find their patrons complaining of feeling chilly and warmer tones have been known to cut down such complaints. Discussing the "institute kitchen and its equipment," Mrs. Margaret Mitchell of Cleveland, Ohio, asked delegates to remember that with so many new inventions in the making any discussion of ideas for the kitchen of today should be with reservations. In a few years the average restaurant may be using electronic energy to cook foods. Mrs. Beatrice Hall of Toronto, dealing with the qualities of the supervisor and what type of person she should be, said that the dietitian's position was largely supervisory and administrative and, because of this, she must possess all the abilities and personal qualifications enabling her to teach and direct others to apply her knowledge. While intelligence was of necessity the foremost quality, emotional control also played an important part.

Twelve-year-old Carl McKenzie Dies In Hospital

Carl McKenzie, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel McKenzie, 3 Young Street, Charlottetown, died in the Prince Edward Island Hospital shortly after 8 o'clock yesterday evening as the result of injuries received when a 500-gallon oil tank at the Somers Service Station, Malpeque Road, exploded. Information, pending an inquest, is not definite but it is understood that the boy in company with Ivan Williams, age 12, Malpeque Road, and Wendell Ford, age 12, of the same district were playing around the service station of Mr. Claude Somers. An underground 500-gallon tank had been taken up with the object of replacing it with a new one. The "fill" pipe, air pipe, and the pipe through which gas was pumped into the tank, were all open so that a match could easily be dropped within. There was no explosion. It is understood that the McKenzie boy was nearest the tank with Ivan Williams a little further away and the Ford boy a considerable distance. The explosion which occurred about 8 o'clock, blew the top off the tank, bulged out the other end, and "sprung" all seams. The Williams boy suffered a small cut in the head and was suffering for a time from a slight concussion. His hair was singed considerably. He remained under medical observation throughout last night. A coroner was not available immediately last night and no decision was reached as to an inquest.

Suggest Naming New Ferry After Commons Members

OTTAWA, June 11 — (Special) — Suggestions that the new ferry "Abegweit" be named after Prince Edward Island members of the House of Commons were made in the chamber today from both sides of the House. D. King Hazen, Progressive Conservative member for Saint John-Albert opened the discussion. "I crave your indulgence, Mr. Speaker," the New Brunswick member said, "to be allowed to ask a question of the Minister of Transport. I will make it brief and to the point. "In appreciation of the great interest he has taken and the increasing efforts he has made to hasten the construction of the Prince Edward Island car ferry, will the government give consideration to naming the vessel the "W. Chester S. McLeure?" Immediately, Transport Minister Chevrier replied: "I can assure the honorable gentleman that the minister as well as the government is quite prepared to give that

Priests Injured In Plane Crash

NEW GLASGOW, N. S., June 11 — (CP) — Two Roman Catholic priests were shaken up but uninjured today when their light plane crashed into a roller as it was coming in for a landing at the New Glasgow airport. The plane was piloted by Rev. D. R. Chisholm, parish priest at St. John the Baptist Church in New Glasgow. His passenger was Rev. John MacPherson, parish priest at St. Andrew's N. S. Father Chisholm, who has a private pilot's licence and is secretary-treasurer of the Pictou County Pilots Association, had taken Father MacPherson up for a spin over the town and was returning to the airport when a wing side-swiped the roller.

Feed Grain Shortage Probed By Experts

(By Shane MacKay) OTTAWA, June 11 — (CP) — Farmers and feed grain specialists rolled up their sleeves in a sweltering downtown Ottawa office today and studied what they said might turn into a full-scale crop disaster in Eastern Canada. They emerged with two recommendations and warnings. 1. That feed grain price floors, ceilings and drawbacks be continued "at least until July 1, 1948." 2. That special measures be taken to move "as large a supply as possible" of the western coarse grains to eastern points before fall freeze-up and the close of Lake shipping. Canadians will otherwise encounter a shortage of some farm products, the danger of "unnecessarily high prices", and a "bad fall-down" in export commitments to the United Kingdom. The conference, attended by some 30 officials of agricultural organizations across the Dominion, was called by the Canadian Federation of Agriculture. H. H. Hannam of Ottawa, president of the C.F.A., said prospects for Canada's food supply during the coming year had been "seriously undermined during the past two months," by "one of the latest, coldest, rainiest spring seasons on record, extending into early summer. Western Ontario had seeded little more than 50 per cent of its intended acreage, Eastern Ontario, five to 20 per cent, Quebec, five per cent and New Brunswick, 40 per cent. Mr. Hannam said there were three immediate problems: First, whether Western Canada will reap a normal crop this year; second, to what extent it will be needed to support an expanded livestock program on the Prairies; and third, whether transportation facilities could cope with shipments double the size of those brought east in a normal year. C. T. Fitzrandolph of Bridgeport, N.S., secretary of the Nova Scotia Farmers' Association, said Maritime fields were "waterlogged" by heavy spring rains.
