CANADA HAS SENT HEAVY GUNS WITH HER VOLUNTEERS

Dominion Has Given Many Pieces of Artillery to the British War Office WHY WHOLE FORCE GOES Premier Borden Says Intention is to Create Reserve Depot to Supply Reinforcements

OTTAWA, Sept. 26.—Sir Robert Borden, who has returned to Ottawa from Valcartier, made the important announcement that Canada has given to the British War Office for use at the front, 104 pieces of artillery of various calibre, and about 60 machine guns. Some of these will go forward with the troops. The Premier stated that the delay in forwarding the Canadian force has been altogether due to difficulty of meeting the requirements regarding transport.

"In company with Sir George Foster and Mr. Rogers I spent three days at Valcartier Camp," said the Premier. "We met Col. Hughes and had the opportunity of seeing nearly 25,000 men under review. During the past fortnight the men have improved wonderfully in appearance, and I have no doubt in efficiency. The organization of the camp seems excellent in every way. Everywhere I found most intense anxiety, and even impatience, to get to the front as soon as possible.

"After careful consideration it was determined to send to the front the most effective men in camp, that is, all those who leave past the necessary medical examination. The expeditionary force, including the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, will number approximately 31,200 men and 7,500 horses. It will comprise eleven batteries of horse and field artillery of six guns each.

"These guns are of the most modern type, and are the same as those used in the British army. In addition four heavy guns, known as six pounders, will also go forward, as well as a number of machine guns, many of which have been generously donated by patriotic citizens whose gifts have already been acknowledged, and to whom the very sincere thanks of the Government and people of Canada are due.

"The news that the entire force will go forward was received with the keenest delight and satisfaction. Yesterday I visited every brigade, shook hands with every officer of the force who was available, and addressed the assembled officers of each brigade. In speaking to the officers I said that Canada was proud of a splendid response to the call of duty; that the Canadian people bade them God-speed in the full assurance that when the Canadian force was called on to perform the soldier's sternest duty in meeting the foe we were confident that officers and men would see their themselves as to bring pride to the hearts of all Canadians. I said also that while Canada was proud of the response which had been evoked by the call to arms for the defence of our institutions and liberties, the officers and men inspired by the duty of service to the State should also be proud that the occasion gave them the opportunity and privilege of performing that duty.

REINFORCEMENT REQUIRED.

The reasons for sending forward the entire force are obvious. These men have come forward with great earnestness and enthusiasm, and have spent some weeks at Valcartier in training and in preparation. The numbers assembled, while greatly exceeding the strength of the force at first proposed to be sent forward, are of considerable extent be necessary for the purpose of reinforcement which from time to time will be required. The total reinforcements required for the first year of a great war are estimated at from 60 to 70 per cent. If the reserve depots necessary for supplying such reinforcements were established in Canada, eight or ten weeks might elapse before they could reach the front through difficulties of transport, convoy, etc. If, on the other hand, such reserve depots of men are established in Great Britain, the Canadian expeditionary force can be reinforced to its full strength within four or five days. For this reason as well as others of a like character, we deemed it advisable that the reserves should be kept on hand in Great Britain, as the force at the front must continuously be kept at its full strength, and that without the slightest unnecessary delay.

"The great demands upon the British Government in providing guns and rifles have made it essential that Canada should assist in every possible way.

FORTY-SEVEN 18-POUNDERS.

Therefore, in addition to the seventy field guns and the machine guns with which the Canadian expeditionary force is equipped, we are arranging to supply the British Government with the following: (1) Forty-seven 18-pounders of the most modern type which they export most modern type, which has been ordered by the Canadian Government in Great Britain before the outbreak of war to be handed over to the British Government; (2) fifty-one guns of the same type which the Department of Militia has on hand, will go forward on the transports; (3) six 60-pounders will also be sent forward at the same time; (4) about thirty machine guns, ordered by the Canadian Government in England before the outbreak of war. All this is being done by the Canadian Government at the request of the War Office in order to assist in equipping the great army which is being assembled in the Mother Country. It is also expected that a considerable number of rifles will be supplied from Canada to the

THE TRANSPORT PROBLEM.

"The delay in forwarding the force has been altogether due to the transport requirements, which it is very difficult to meet. The force must be under convoy, and the steamers, numbering twenty-eight or more, must sail at the same time. It will be generally understood that the provision of so large a number of steamers suitably equipped for the transportations of men, horses, guns, lorries, field transport and the very numerous articles necessary for the equipment of a modern army is no slight task. The services of Captain Lindsay, of the Marine and Fisheries Department, who is an expert in such matters, have been engaged for many weeks past in assisting the transport department in X this matter.

New Clothes Styles For Fall

And they are enough different from ordinary clothes to win your most enthusiastic approval.

The fabric in each suit is wool—thoroughly shrunk and fast color. The models are designed by the foremost designers of America. The tailoring is the work of highest class workmanship and the styles are the most popular of the season's entire showing.

In fact, these garments are of such unusual worth that we are especially anxious to have every man in this vicinity see them.
