London Session

erged from the meeting.

When asked when Russia would send arms to the Spanish Madrid Government, Maisky replied:

"We are not doing anything pending the outcome of neutrality negotiations.

"We are not saying anything and not doing anything," Maisky continued. "We are still in the committee and will remain to see if there is actually a spark of life in it."

Saturday's meeting, it was reliably reported, was called in an effort to formulate new "supervisory powers" to halt alleged aid to both Spanish belligerents.

The Portuguese delegate, Francisco Calheiros, alone expressed irritation after today's session which lasted for five hours. He was contemptuous over the Russian declaration which he termed "just a bluff as always."

British informed sources expressed belief the Soviet communication was "plain hedging."

Informed observers felt the most hopeful sign for the Non-Intervention act was the fact Russia had not actually walked out of the committee session.

Her inclusion on the sub-committee which is to meet Saturday gives Russia another chance to renew violation charges against Germany, Italy and Portugal.

Portugal refused to countenance an Anglo-French naval patrol of her ports, suggested by Russia as a practical means of enforcing non-intervention.

Portugal, with Italy and Germany, denied categorically the Russian charges of aiding the Spanish insurgents.

Claims Free-Hand

MOSCOW, Oct. 23—(AP)—Russia today claimed a free hand toward the Spanish civil war in a note delivered to the international Non-Intervention Committee in London.

The Soviet Ambassador in London, Ivan Maisky, communicated to the committee that Russia "cannot consider itself bound by the agreement for non-intervention to any greater extent than any of the remaining participants in the agreement," but gave no indication the country actually will ship munitions to Spain.

Official sources said Russia is not actually bolting the agreement, but rather claimed for itself the same right to supply arms to Spain as, they say, is enjoyed by Germany, Italy and Portugal.

Maisky, charging the agreement was being "systematically violated by several participants," said it had become "converted into a simple, torn up scrap of paper."

"It ceased to exist in fact," he said in his communication, delivered to the Earl of Plymouth, Chairman of the Non-Intervention Committee.

The document contained a bitter denunciation of alleged violations by Fascist countries of the "Hands off Spain" accord and indirect criticism of the Committee for non-support of Russia's suggestions to it

Bride - to - be Is Showered

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Evald Lewin of Linkletter was the scene of much gaiety on Thursday evening when the people of the settlement gathered to tender a miscellaneous shower to Miss Moyra Murray, in honour of her approaching nuptials.

Miss Murray was escorted to the seat of honour, which was draped in yellow and white, by Miss Fern Clark.

A lovely array of gifts were taken from their dainty white wrappings by Miss Mabel Linkletter and Mrs. Lewin. The humorous verses which accompanied them were read by Miss Audrey Harvey. The gifts were arranged by Miss Blanche Linkletter and Miss Effie Jeffrey.

After the pretty things had been admired and the bride-to-be had acknowledged them with a few gracious words, the evening was devoted to music and games.

Later on ice cream and cake was served. Before leaving the guests wished Miss Murray every happiness.—S.

CORONATION PLANS STUDIED

OTTAWA, Oct. 23—(CP) — Arrangements for Canada's representation at the King's coronation in May will be placed in the hands of a committee following the return of Prime Minister Mackenzie King from Europe early in November. While a London cable today indicated the formal invitations to the Dominions Prime Ministers were now being forwarded it is understood Mr. Mackenzie King will personally discuss the arrangements

Canada's status has altered since during his present visit to London, the last coronation ceremonies in London, with passage of the Statute of Westminster which gives the Dominions right of direct access to the sovereign, and the Prime Minister will be attending in a slightly altered status. It is understood the general representation, however, will be similar to that at the coronation of King George V.

On that occasion the Dominion party included the prime minister and a representative group of members of both houses of Parliament; Liberal and Conservative. A picked composite military contingent of 700 officers and men from Canada also took part in the ceremonies.

Officials of the Government have not yet received any instructions to prepare for the coronation and have stated they are awaiting advices which the Prime Minister is expected to bring with him from London.

Nova Scotia Youth Instantly Killed

WALTON, N.S., Oct. 23—(CP) — Thrown over a 75-foot cliff when his foot became caught in the ropes of a hayrake, Albert Lake, 23, of Pembrook, near here, was instantly killed today.

Lake was lowering the rake to a beach below to lift seaweed. A week ago his mother persuaded him to return home from a cabin in the woods where he was living because she feared he might be shot by a stray bullett during the moose-hunting season.

Russia had expected "the agreement would be fulfilled by all participants, and that in consequence the length of the civil war in Spain, as well as the number of victims, would be reduced," the communication said.

Instead, it was said, "in consequence of violations the rebels enjoy a privileged position."

A suggestion by Russia the note said, was made "for the control of Portuguese ports, the chief base of supplies for the rebels, but that was not even included in the agenda of today's session.

"Not desiring to continue in the position of people involuntarily stimulating this unfair situation, the U.S.S.R. sees only one issue: to return to the government of Spain its right and chances to purchase arms outside of Spain, which right and chances are enjoyed by all the governments of the world, and that parties to the agreement be granted the right to sell and offer arms to Spain as they choose.

The front line Government fighters tonight slept only 10 miles from Madrid.

The wearied militia was backed up by a polyglot civilian army roughly estimated at 100,000, recruited by women during the past three days.

The Insurgent advance which has swept forward 10 miles within the last week was slowed up to await field artillery.

Most of the field pieces were of sufficient power to hurl shells into to Madrid from the Insurgent advance posts.

The battle map tonight showed little change during the past 24 hours.

The Insurgents were around Navalcarnero, 20 miles southwest of Madrid; at Mostoles, 10 miles southwest, and at Torrejon De la Calzada, 13 miles south of the capital.

The Insurgent activities during the day were devoted mainly to arching these three positions with infantry and cavalry units.

On clear days commanders of each of the Insurgent spearheads could see the buildings of Madrid.

On the other fronts the Government reported gains.

The war ministry reported Socialist troops stormed Huesca. Fascist-held city on the Aragon Front and other forces fought off an Insurgent attack at Navas del Marques, 35 miles due west of Madrid.

The Insurgent high command, however, declared its men successfully stormed the mountain defences before the strategic besieged city of El Escorial.

in the German capital long enough to attend a holy mass and repair a tire puncture," and did not visit the Wilhelmstrasse, as was asserted by anti-Rexists.

What interested observers more than his explanation, however, was the fact that the Pays Reel now admits what it has previously denied repeatedly—namely, that Degrelle was in Germany last weekend.

How seriously the Government views the Rexist defiance of the police ban was evidenced by Premier Paul Van Zeeland's order to all troops in the Brussels garrison to remain on duty Sunday.

Degrelle accused the Premier of violating the constitution by refusing the Rexists the right to assemble. He ordered his followers, however, to carry no arms.

That violence would develop seemed almost certain as Leftist groups laid plans to break up the rally. 'They shall not pass!" was the cry of those who regard the Rex as threatening a Fascist regime in Belgium.

Lady Rodney Expected In Montreal Sunday

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 23—Another cruise liner of the Canadian National Steamships will reach this port on Sunday at 6.00 p.m. with the arrival of the "Lady Rodney" returning from a 25 day cruise to Bermuda, the Bahamas Islands and Jamaica carrying a long list of passengers. The sailing of the "Lady Rodney" next Wednesday evening for a voyage over the same route will mark her last appearance in this port until next spring making Halifax her port of arrival and departure during the winter season.

Another "Lady" ship will yet be seen here before the close of St. Lawrence navigation season since the "Lady Somers" is due here on November 8. She sails again November 11 and will terminate her northbound voyage at Halifax, which she too will use as her winter port
