There are professional standards
in LIFE INSURANCE SELLING

Like a doctor or lawyer, the modern Life Insurance salesman ascertains the necessary facts before he gives advice. Having before him the picture of an individual's present and future responsibilities, he then recommends the insurance plans best adapted to meet those requirements.

Life insurance companies give their salesmen a thorough grounding in the principles and functions of Life Insurance. In addition, the Life Underwriters Association of Canada, with a membership of over 5,000 Life Insurance salesmen, has instituted a three-year course of study for its members, which is establishing professional standards in life insurance selling. These studies lead to the designation "Chartered Life Underwriter" (C.L.U.).

As you can see from the text books illustrated, those who are qualified Life Insurance salesmen study a variety of subjects which enable them to assume the role of Life Insurance counselor with a truly professional background.

A message from the Life Insurance Companies in Canada and their agents.

It is good citizenship to own LIFE INSURANCE

Let's Eat More
Peaches

Fruits always boast "appetite appeal," because of their colour and fragrance, and perhaps the luscious ripe peach with its soft pink cheek has this quality more than any other.

Peaches, eaten from the hand or sliced and served with cream cannot be beaten as a dessert but there are many other ways in which they may be served, both raw and cooked.

Canned peaches are a standby in winter but on account of their tendency to discolor they require care in preparation for canning.

To prevent the peaches turning brown before they are packed in the sealers, drop the fruit, as it is peeled, in a brine bath. The home economists of the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture, recommend 1 teaspoon of salt to each quart of water for this bath and they say that only sufficient fruit to fill two or three sealers should be prepared at one time. Long standing in the brine bath will give the peaches a salty taste.

For an easy way to can peaches for use later in pies, puddings and frozen desserts, the experts recommend the Solid Pack Method. The peaches may be canned by this method either with or without sugar. Many homemakers will be preparing peaches for freezing, so the following directions should prove of interest. Even if one hasn't storage space for canned or frozen peaches, there is usually some place to store a few jars of delicious peach jam.

PEACH JAM

12 cups peaches cut in pieces
2 cups sugar
1 tablespoon vinegar or lemon juice.

Wash, blanch 15 to 60 seconds and cold dip the peaches. Remove skins, pit and cut in pieces. Measure fruit and add sugar. Let stand 1 hour, add vinegar or lemon juice. Bring to boil and cook uncovered 15 to 20 minutes or until jam stage is reached. Yield approximately 9 cups.

Peaches make a better jam if extra acid is added, that is why the home economists recommend this jam recipe.

Freezing Peaches

Choose firm, ripe fruit, blanch 30-60 seconds, dip in cold water, remove skins and pits. Slice fruit directly into syrup in containers. Use cold, moderately thin syrup (1 cup sugar to 1 1/2 cups water) to cover. Ascorbic acid added to the syrup is effective in preventing such discoloration. 200 milligrams to 1 cup of syrup is considered a sufficient quantity. The tablets should be crushed and the powder stirred into the syrup. This adds to the cost but helps to retain the clear natural colour.

Solid Pack Peaches
Blanch peaches to loosen skins, and cold dip. Halve, peel, remove pits, and drop in brine bath (1 teaspoon salt to 1 quart water). Remove from brine, drain and slice. Place in kettle and heat slowly until the juice starts to flow. (do not cook) adding a little water to prevent scorching if necessary. Pack into clean hot sealers, crushing the fruit down slightly until covered with juice. Leave half an inch headspace. Adjust rubber rings and tops. Process in the boiling water bath 20 minutes for pints and 25 minutes for quarts.

If desired the solid pack peaches may be sweetened. Add 2-4 cup sugar per quart, sprinkling the sugar between layers of peaches as they are packed.
