A Morning Smile

He was a very painstaking golfer and it took him three hours to reach the fifteenth hole where he drove his ball into the rough.

After search, the caddy located a ball, which the player examined.

"No," he said, "this isn't mine. 'This is a very old ball.'"

"Yes," said the boy, in exhausted tones, "but don't forget it's a long time since we started out, sir."

What's Wrong With Marriage? Blames Lack of Effort Dorothy Dix

"It is Only Our Marriage Contracts That We Feel We Should Have a Right to Break if We Get Tired of Them or See Something New in the Husband or Wife Line We Would Rather Have"

The trouble with marriage is that we expect the impossible of it. We expect it to be a glorious success without our putting forth one effort to make it so and we complain that it is a failure when we have used less intelligence

To begin with, look at the casual way in which people marry. If a man is going into a business partnership with another man, he looks up his record.

But he goes into a life partnership with a woman for no better reason than that she has the come-hither look in her eye and a peaches-and-cream complexion.

And women use just as little intelligence in selecting their husbands. A girl wouldn't think of buying a dress without giving a lot of thought to whether it was becoming to her and had her lines and was suitable for the purpose she wanted.

A very large number of people, especially men, as disgruntled with marriage because they resent its bondage. They want to be free, untrammelled, able to come and go and do as they please.

The man who makes millions does it by slaving to his business. The great opera singer cannot even eat when he likes.

Lots of us make bad bargains. We buy things that don't look so good to us when we get them home as they did in the shop windows.

But it is only on our matrimonial bad bargains that we feel we have a right to wretch. It is only our marriage contracts that we feel we should have a right to break if we get tired of them, or see something in the husband or wife line we would rather have.

Admittedly a large number of husbands and wives live a cat-and-dog existence. Why? Because they make no effort to sell themselves to each other, as they do to those with whom it is to their advantage to get along.

And the queer part of it is that these two people who make life so miserable for each other do not sin through ignorance.

They have a row every morning over the coffee, but the wife never bothers to learn how to make it right. There are subjects that are just as good for a fight as a nickel is for a gingercake.

If men made the same effort to get along with their wives and used on them the arts and wiles that they do on their women customers and clients and patients, and if women tried as hard to placate their husbands and to rub their fur the right way as they do that of a grouchy boss, it would turn matrimony from being a scrapping match into a peace anthem.

Another charge that is brought against matrimony is that it is dull and monotonous. So is business. So is life. No thrill lasts long.

It is really no more monotonous for a man to come home every night than it is for him to go to the office every morning, and a woman can get just as tired of smearing her face with grease paint every night before she goes on the stage to act as she can of washing the baby's face or getting breakfast.

If marriage is a failure, it is because we make it so. No other institution would survive the rough treatment we give it. DOROTHY DIX.

Etiquette

Q. Is it proper to use sealing wax on the envelope of a social letter?

A. Yes, it adds distinction.

For The Cook

COFFEE-MAKING

Allow a heaping tablespoon of coffee to one cup of water.

After-dinner coffee should be made very strong and served black.

Coffee should be served boiling hot and the cream and sugar should be passed immediately.

Buy a good grade of coffee from a coffee roaster. Don't try to economize in the quality of coffee and expect good results.

If you buy your coffee already ground buy it in small quantities. It is bound to lose its flavor if kept for a while before using.

BURIED ALIVE TO ADVERTISE BOOK MEMOIRS

PARIS, Oct. 11.—The greatest French "murder mystery" in years has resolved itself into one of the greatest of publicity stunts which had been a complete fiasco.

Police questioning of Henry Boulogne, of Dunkerque, brought a confession that he had aided in burying alive in a wood near Paris Clement Passal, alias Marquis de Champaubert, in order that that notorious swindler might have publicity to help the sale of his volume of memoirs which was about to be published.

The affair had been a first-class mystery since the police, following directions given in anonymous letters signed by "Knights of Themis," went to the wood and dug up a coffin in which Passal was found dead.

But it is only on our matrimonial bad bargains that we feel we have a right to wretch. It is only our marriage contracts that we feel we should have a right to break if we get tired of them, or see something in the husband or wife line we would rather have.

"We find it a good safeguard," says mother

Follow these Instructions Ticking cough—A spoonful now and then relieves a rough throat and soothes the paroxysms of coughing after a cold.

Cold in the head—A bit snuffed up the nostrils makes breathing easier, helps heal inflamed membranes.

Constipation—Take a teaspoonful or less twice a day—one hour after breakfast and supper. It's tasteless and odorless. Reduce quantity for children.

ON MANY occasions mother has to be the family doctor, and "Vaseline" Petroleum Jelly is usually on hand to help her.

And remember, when you buy, that the trade mark Vaseline on the package gives you the assurance that you are getting the genuine product of the Chesbrough Manufacturing Co., Cons'd, 5520 Chabot Avenue, Montreal, Canada.

Boulogne last night told them that he made the acquaintance of Passal in prison and that his aid was enlisted in carrying out the publicity scheme. The two bought wood and fashioned the coffin and then carried it to Berneuil Wood, about 20 miles west of Paris.

They dug a shallow trench sufficient to lower the coffin a few feet below the ground, and then after inserting a tube through which he was to breathe, Passal entered the casket.

Boulogne according to the police, screwed the cover and covered it with earth. On the evening of the following day Boulogne returned to the spot but got no answer when he spoke through the tube.

Boulogne will be prosecuted for homicide by imprudence and for that the French Code calls illegal possession of the corpse. If convicted of these crimes he risks sentence of two years in prison with a fine of 600 francs or less.

The police say that other persons implicated in the attempted hoax will be brought to book.

When Purchasing Rugs

It is well to remember, when purchasing rugs that are to be subjected to considerable sunlight, that browns, dark blues and greens will fade more readily than lighter shades.

Washing Ribbons

When laundering ribbons, after they are washed wind them around a bottle filled with warm water and corked. The ribbons will dry quickly and smoothly.

Stains

To remove fruit stains from clothing and table linen moisten the spots thoroughly with pure glycerine and wash in the usual manner.

TO INQUIRE INTO SECRET OF BRITISH DOCUMENT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Inquiry into the source of the alleged secret British document now before it, will be undertaken next week by the Senate Commission investigating Wm. B. Shearer's activities for U. S. Shipbuilders at the 1927 Geneva Naval Conference.

The Commission will confer tomorrow. Photostatic copies of the so-called British paper were presented to it by Shearer at the hearings last week.

Sen. Allen, Republican, Kansas, who has a report from the Navy Intelligence attacking the authenticity of the paper, has demanded that complete investigation be made to determine how such a document was circulated.
