QUEBEC CATHOLIC BOYS ARE WELL DISCIPLINED

Speaker At Montreal Catholic Teacher's Convention Compares Them With Other Boys.

(CANADIAN PRESS) MONTREAL, Que. June 7. A comparison between the English speaking Catholic boys and other lads when they began to work was made lately by A. A. Gardiner, Knight of the Order of the Holy Sepulchre, in an address at a session of the 15th annual convention of the Montreal Catholic Teachers' Association. A survey made in many business firms had brought forth the fact that children from Catholic schools in general, and the English Catholic schools in particular, were better disciplined than other schools. Mr. Gardiner stated. On the other hand because of the fact that Catholic lads had been brought up in an atmosphere in which everyone had the same ideas, they sometimes found it difficult to adjust themselves when they entered a large office with many different types of persons. French boys were found to be, on the whole, more polite than the English ones.

Are Good Looks A Drawback

LONDON, June 7.—Good looks seem to be a drawback to a girl taking up engineering work. This assertion was made by Miss Hazlett, organizer of the Women's Engineering Society, at a conference here on new careers for women.

"We put forward a woman for a drawing office appointment," said Miss Hazlett, "and her qualifications were excellent, but the director said quite frankly that she was too good looking for the job, and would probably upset the men in their work. Another director, expressing the technical qualifications required by a girl, added, 'And she must not jump if the foreman says 'Damn!'"

"A girl must also get rid of the idea that if she goes in for engineering she will spend the rest of her life in dirty boiler overalls. She passes through that phase, but it soon goes. Parents are often a great handicap for they think that a girl is abnormal if she wants to take up engineering—that is not a nice, ladylike profession like secretarial work. This is true in a way, for a girl has to work with men, wear knickerbockers on occasion, and sometimes do night work. But this does not make us abnormal, and we want to cease to be regarded as curiosities. We want to work with men and not against them."

Miss Hazlett later informed enquirers that the lady she had in mind had received a very good post abroad.

Leaders of industry, to whose attention Miss Hazlett's remarks have been directed, are not inclined to agree entirely with Miss Hazlett's conclusions.

Sir Stanley Machin, a former president of the Association of British Chambers of Commerce, said: "My view is that good looks are rather an advantage than otherwise. Good looks in the hands of
