WOULD CURB GOVERNMENT INTERFERENCE

BY HAROLD FREEMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer
SEIGNIORY CLUB, Que., Sept. 30 (CP)—Canadian business men, insofar as it is represented by the dominion's chamber of commerce, appear today for "freedom" from unnecessary government interference and other restrictions to permit it to develop the nation's commerce from coast to coast.

In a 17-point manifesto, the representatives of 20,000 business men called on governments to stop competing with private business except where necessary, to decrease taxation by economy, to repeal the prohibition of bans on commercial relations, to cut down the number of legislators in all categories and cut out the small and often unnecessary restrictions on the conduct of business.

RAILWAY PROBLEM

Before adoption of its "freedom" plea, the 200 delegates adopted also a resolution recommending re-organizing of the senate committee on railways, which sat at the last session of parliament. A solution to the railway problem should be found "with all possible speed," the resolution said.

A clause dealing with the railway situation was embodied, too, in the "freedom" declaration.

In other directions the chamber, recognizing the ethical responsibilities of business, demanded "freedom" through:

1. Fewer restrictions as possible upon individual efforts.
2. "The most favorable conditions possible for agriculture."
3. "The lessening of the exactions resulting from continued government deficits."
4. Elimination of "duplication of laws imposed by dominion, provincial and municipal governments."
5. Check on the progressive imposition of bans on commercial relations which produce restriction of credit."
6. A "more efficient" system of controlling and distributing relief funds.

SUGGESTS FEDERAL TOURIST DEPARTMENT

SEIGNIORY CLUB, Que., Sept. 30 (CP)—Suggestion that Canada should have a federal tourist department headed by a minister was advanced before the Canadian Chamber of Commerce today by D. H. Gibson, vice-president of the Toronto Board of Trade.

Speaking at a luncheon meeting during the Chamber's 121st annual convention, Mr. Gibson said the tourist trade as a national business, the common ground of interest which could become a unifying influence in the life of the Dominion.

The idea of a tourist minister in charge of Canada's fourth ranking industry came from Senator W. H. Dennis of Halifax, the speaker said. Senator Dennis had written he "strongly" of the opinion that the time has not arrived when we should have a separate department at Ottawa, presided over by a full-time minister charged with the duty of promoting the tourist trade.

The contract is one under which the John Inglis Company of Toronto is to make 7,000 Bren gun machine guns for the Dominion Government on a cost plus 10 per cent basis. The investigation results from criticism of the contract in a magazine article by Lieut.-Col. George Drew of Toronto. The company also holds a contract from the British War Office for 5,000 guns.

Air Of Armistice

Tonight's demonstration had an air of an armistice celebration—a celebration of an armistice before war rather than after.

The feeling that a new period, if not a new era, or peace lay ahead in Europe found its way into Italy's internal politics. Political circles said they heard that the word had gone around to discourage incipient Jew-baiting.

A new Europe was emerging, in the Fascist view, from the renigment of frontiers and also from the fact that for the first time Britain, France, Italy and Germany had been brought together for settlement of a major problem—as Mussolini had proposed in his project for a four-power pact.

Some diplomatic circles considered it was likely a start towards withdrawal of Italian legionnaires from Spain would follow the Munich accord.

Victory Of Peace

The swift developments of Friday were hailed as a "victory march of peace."

Hard on the heels of the sealing of the Four-Power Accord on the Czechoslovak-German dispute Prime Minister Chamberlain and Reichstuehrer Hitler made a joint declaration of their "two peoples never to go to war with one another again."

Hitler's and Chamberlain's signatures under a document outlawing war between Germany and Britain, a Foreign Office spokesman said, "is the best proof of the road opening to a new and better European future."

The British and German leaders in their declaration also declared "we are resolved to use the method of consultation shall be the method adopted to deal with any other questions that may concern our two countries."

GERMANS AND ANGLO-GERMAN PLEDGES AS BREAKING DOWN LONG-STANDING BARRIERS TO IMPROVED RELATIONS BETWEEN THE TWO COUNTRIES.

The work of the International Commission set-up under the Munich Accord to work out details for the evacuation of Sudetenland by persons not desiring to join Germany was already underway.

The Commission met early Friday in Munich before the departure for home of Mr. Chamberlain Premier Daladier of France and Premier Mussolini of Italy, and conferred in Berlin late in the afternoon at the foreign office.

Court Ernst von Weizsaecker, German State Secretary, was named chairman. The other members of the Commission are: Sir Neville Henderson, British Ambassador; Bernard Attolico, Italian Ambassador; Andre Francois-Poncet, French Ambassador; and Dr. Vojtech Mastny, Czechoslovak Minister.

Count von Weizsaecker in accepting the chairmanship declared the spirit of friendship and conciliation should animate the Commission's work.

Dennis at the first meeting were not announced beyond the fact that a sub-committee was named which worked over military questions.

today among the fishermen in different parts of the country.

"In some areas the fishermen have been doing equally as well as the men engaged in other primary industries; elsewhere as a result of location, questions of marketing, transportation problems and so on, they have been having difficulty.

"Conditions in these latter districts cannot be wholly remedied by any one single step but the prime need is increased demand for fish. Canadians who want to help the people of these districts, and to improve the position of the industry generally, can best do so by making increasing use of the fishermen's products.

"The Government has been doing a good deal to assist the fishermen in the past two or three years but the people at large, by using Canadian fish more frequently, can do much more than governments. Fish week will be an excellent time for them to make a start, and in buying Canadian fish they will be getting one of the most nourishing, tasty and healthful foods."

Michaud Urges Observance Of Fish Week

(C. P. by Guardian's Special Wire)
OTTAWA, Sept. 30—Canada's Fish Week begins Monday. In a statement issued today Fisheries Minister Michaud urged the Canadian people "who wish to help the fishermen and further the development of the fishing industry can take an effective step in that direction by joining wholeheartedly in the observance of Fish Week.

"Arrangements for Fish Week," the statement continued, "are made by the fishing industry itself but the idea of observing such a week has my entire approval. I hope that the public everywhere throughout the Dominion will participate in the observance, giving thought to the national importance of the industry and making generous use of the excellent foods which the fishermen put upon the market at all seasons of the year.

"The fishing industry extends to every province and it follows that improvement in conditions in the industry as a result of increased popular interest and greater use of fish must bring benefit to every province. Conditions vary

In fact it all seems pretty tiresome to Paddy Reilly, 11-year-old Welsh terrier, who was given a Boy Scout life-saving badge recently by acting Mayor Morris, of New York. Paddy is credited with having saved the lives of more than 40 persons, including his owner, Miss Alice Manchester. Scouts and members of the Dog Welfare Society also conferred a citation for bravery on Paddy.

New Anglo-German Peace

Supplementary Agreement

Mr. Chamberlain disclosed the supplementary Anglo-German pact in an interview before he took a plane back to London. He read the agreement as follows:

"We the German Fuehrer and Chancellor and the British Prime Minister, have had a further meeting today and we are agreed in recognizing that the question of Anglo-German relations is of first importance for the two countries and for Europe.

"We regard the agreement signed last night and the Anglo-German Last Agreement as symbolic of the desires of our two peoples never to go to war with one another again.

"(The 1936 Anglo-German Naval Treaty limited German naval tonnage to 35 per cent of the British tonnage.)

"We are resolved that the method of consultation shall be the method adopted to deal with any other questions that may concern our two countries, and we are determined to continue our efforts to remove possible sources of difference and thus to contribute to and assure the peace of Europe."

Relaxed and Jubilant

Mr. Chamberlain seemed relaxed and jubilant when he received newspapermen at his hotel suite before returning to London.

"I have always had in mind that we could find peace on the Czechoslovak question a way might be open to appeasement in Europe," he said. He puffed on a cigar which he held at a jaunty angle.

"The Fuehrer and I have had a long talk this morning. We have both signed this new declaration."

After he read the agreement aloud he was asked about Europe's gigantic preparations for war. He replied, smiling, that he expected mobilized armies and navies would quickly be reduced to normal.

"I hope there now will be obvious measures of demobilization everywhere."

His homecoming was one of the greatest receptions ever given for a Prime Minister. He received a personal message from the King as he stepped from his plane and was whisked away to Buckingham Palace to report personally.

Cheered To Echo

While he was at Buckingham Palace thousands of Londoners massed before the gates and cheered until the King and Queen and the Prime Minister and Mrs. Chamberlain appeared on the balcony.

Later Mr. Chamberlain addressed a packed throng in front of his official residence in Downing Street.

"My good friends," he said, "this is the second time in our history that there has come back from Germany to Downing Street peace with honor.

"I believe it is peace for our time. We thank you from the bottom of our hearts," Mrs. Chamberlain stood at his side. The crowd

HERO OF PEACE

But whatever the opposition might think or might say, Mr. Chamberlain was a "conquering hero of peace" to tens of thousands who greeted him today.

There was talk of a national subscription, and perhaps a statue, a person to make up a fund to present to the Prime Minister and there were suggestions that Mr. Chamberlain be proposed for the Nobel Peace prize.

The Archbishop of Canterbury issued a call for "national thanksgiving and prayer" on Sunday afternoon. The stark memorial shirt in Whitehall commemorating the Great War dead. At the base of the pillar lay a little bunch of red poppies and attached was this note:

"Then after all, they did not die in vain."

NOTE DEMANDS

Radio programs were cancelled as a signal of national mourning. Only an occasional news bulletin or appeal for order went on the air.

General Szyrov, in a broadcast earlier in the day telling of the Government's capitulation to the accord, declared:

"The Czechoslovak Government in making this decision sends at the same time to the world its protest against this agreement, which was made in a unilateral manner and without its participation," said the veteran campaigner who lost an eye in the Great War.

"We have been abandoned. We are all alone. Our enemies are under us. Our position is like that of a fortress besieged by crushing forces.

"My duty was to consider everything. As a soldier I had to choose the way to peace."

General Ludwig Knefel, commander-in-chief of the army, appealed to the army to protect loyally the new, smaller state benefit of the rich industrial and agricultural Sudeten areas.

The trade unions went on the air with an appeal for all working classes to remain orderly and refrain from demonstrations.

More than 50,000 Sudeten German Social Democrats who do not share the same view of their fellow nationals among the 3,500,000 German minority, already have fled Sudetenland to seek refuge in interior Czechoslovakia.

Czechoslovak officials said they expected the number to be treated shortly. They said the problem of the refugees was over-shadowed by those of social democrats unable to leave the territory to be taken over by the German army.

Venceslas Jaksch, leader of the Sudeten German Social Democrat Party, said he planned to appeal to Great Britain for aid in setting at least part of the anti-Nazi Germans in some far-away country, perhaps Canada.

In Ottawa, an official comment was lacking, but unofficially it was indicated Canada has room for desirable settlers, capable of maintaining themselves on the land.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30 (AP)—

Stock market leaders swept upward 1 to 5 points today and a few much more as Europe's war scare evaporated with the signing of the "big-four" peace pact at Munich.

Overnight buying orders in blocks as large as 10,000 shares for some favorites such as U. S. Steel and General Motors swamped the stock exchange at the start and during the first half hour, the ticker tape was behind in the first hour the turnover amounted to 790,000 shares. Volume dwindled later as profit-selling appeared and closing prices, the majority of cases, were below the best for the day.

The Associated Press average of 80 stocks was up 13 points at 48.2 on top of yesterday's advance of 1.5. Transfers of 1,877,860 shares compared with 1,228,710 the day before and were the best since Sept. 14.

The old and the new in the history of Greece clash, as this modern air raid alarm looms before the ancient and beautiful Parthenon, atop the Acropolis in Athens.
