FOX AND FUR NOTES

We notice a marked increase in the interest among magazines and newspapers in fur farming. Several important publications are devoting space to the industry, notably The Family Herald and Weekly Star, Montreal.

Mr. Chester S. McLure has returned from a month's stay in the principal fur buying centres of North America.

We have often heard tell of a litter of foxes being raised on cats but it remained for a Wiscousin fur farmer to raise a litter of foxes on a female coolie.

It is good news to fox men to learn that our enterprising merchants have imported a quantity of English fox wire which is pronounced by experts to be the best. We doubt however if even the large quantities which they are receiving will be sufficient to handle this year's demand. Almost every ranch in the Province will add more pairs and a great many outside concerns are planning to ranch foxes here. There is also quite a foreign demand for this wire so we would advise those intending to build to place their orders as soon as possible and be spared worry in the future.

Sterling exchange was quoted at $4.34 yesterday. This is a decided increase in the past few months Parties who sold pelts in London will appreciate the rise. It is expected before another year that sterling will have recovered almost all its loss.

One of the most energetic and enthusiastic boosters for the fox business is Mr. F. C. Kaye, Editor of The Black Fox Magazine, New York. Mr. Kaye deserves the support and thanks of every fox rancher.

Yesterday we learned of another new ranch which will be built in the vicinity of Charlottetown. It will consist of thirty pens and will be up-to-date in every particular.

The Souvenir Magazine just published by the Guardian is replete with fox lore from cover to cover. It will be a valuable medium of publicity as its circulation will not be confined to the American Continent but will reach Great Britain as well.

We heard an interesting discussion a few days ago on inbreeding. A gentleman who had made a study of this subject states that there can not be any ill effects from inbreeding providing good specimens with good heredity are mated. This theory must be correct as it is reasonable to believe that beauty, size, length of fur, strength and other good qualities are transmitted just as the poorer qualities are transmitted.

A beaver ranch was established last fall on the farm of Mr. Coles of Milton, special wire fencing being used to enclose the animals. Parties who have visited the ranch recently state that Mr. Coles has a large number of beaver in captivity and that the dams constructed by them are wonderful examples of the industry of these creatures. Beaver pelts sold last fall at fom $40 to $60 each so there should be good money in beaver ranching as it costs nothing for food.

According to satistics the supply of beaver in the wilds is diminishing with startling rapidity and at the ratio of decreases will only be a matter of twenty years ywhen they will be practically off the market if steps are not taken to conserve them by fur farming.

We mentioned in these columns one time that fox ranching would be an excellent occupation for women. We learned yesterday that the Pioneer Fox Ranching Co., have a lady caretaker who has made herself so popular with the foxes that excellent results are assured this year.

We have been gathering opinions from various parts of the Province regarding the crop of pups this year and we are convinced that it will be very little greater than last year. This lack of great increase is due largely to loss from worms. People who have not experienced this state that their freedom from ill luck is due either to the fact that they have never had worms in the ranch or that they treated the old foxes in the fall of the year and cleaned the dens thoroughly.

Two Big Fires At Moncton

MONCTON, May 26.—Loss to the extent of between $30,000 and $40,000 was caused by a fire which broke out shortly after twelve o'clock today in the Bank of Nova Scotia building, corner of Main and East Market streets. The blaze originated in the Orange Hall on the third storey of the building and had gained considerable headway before being discovered. The fire department had barely returned from the Record Foundry Company fire where a property loss of about $40,000 occurred and the firemen continued on duty for another two hours before the second big fire of the day was drowned out.

The blaze in the bank building was confined to the top storey, but such a vast amount of water was poured into the building that the eastern half of the building was flooded, from top to bottom, causing the greater part of the damage.

The Bank of Nova Scotia, situated in the western part of the building escaped with a slight wetting and will be able to continue business. The second floor of the building was occupied principally by lawyers, six of whom have been temporarily put out of business.

On the ground floor Clogg and Gilmour, jewellers; F. L. Thompson, optician and offices of A. H. and M. B. Jones were put out of commission.

The damage to the building is estimated to be about fifty per cent of its value and is covered by insurance. All the occupants of the building suffered more or less from water damage, but all the losses are covered by insurance.

The Orange Hall, where the fire originated, was gutted, the roof being destroyed.

His neck was caught between the elevator and the floor and was broken. The elevator man who was running at the time was facing the other way and did not notice anything wrong and so did not stop. "CLEAN UP AND KEEP CLEAN"

Ramshackle. That is the word. Was just thinking of a farm that we visited a short time ago. It was not different from many others except in a degree—a gate broken down, a wire fence partly destroyed, a couple of old wagon wheels leaning against the fence; here a broken box, there an old washing machine. Ramshackle. I do not know whether it is of Greek derivation, perhaps from Rameses or some Egyptian god, but it fits. Does it fit your place?

Clean up. Destroy and burn as fuel all wooden parts, collect and sell to the junk man all castings. What you cannot burn or destroy, bury. You have not time? You have time. You cannot afford the time? If you have cows to sell, the impression given to prospective purchasers is a valuable asset in making a sale. Who wants to buy live stock from a man who has not the time to clean up the litter about his feet? If he is careless there he is careless possibly in keeping breeding records.

First impressions are lasting. That is why so much stress in the creamery to have the tubs clean, the paper neatly folded, the tub tins evenly distributed and well nailed. That is why the cheese salesman likes to have his cheese free from mould, from careless finger marks. First impressions are valuable. When one enters a home where things are well kept up and neat we mentally say that man knows his business and we are willing to pay for his knowledge.

Ramshackle. It sounds poverty stricken. It puts one in the class of the "down and outer." Clean up and keep clean. This will require constant attention, but it is worth it. It has a psychological effect on the buyer. It will have a similar beneficial effect on you. Get the habit. It, the habit of orderliness, is a good habit to get and the time to get it is now.

In a certain Yorkshire towns a landlord does not receive a very hearty welcome on Monday mornings and a tenant in one of the houses there recently handed the landlord half a crown toward the rent.

"Is this all you've got for me and you so much in arrears?" scowled the landlord.

"Go on, now, and be satisfied," replied the tenant. "You wouldn't have had that only my old man has been and sold the back door."

German Marks Rises in Value

(Dom. Press Special.)

BERLIN, May 27.—Owing to a spectacular rise in the value of the mark, Germany soon may be able to purchase raw materials on the markets of the world with which to resume her crippled manufacturing industries. For months Germany's purchasing power abroad has dwindled until recently her import trade had reached a point almost of stagnation. The turn for the better has come in the belief of both manufacturers and financiers here.
