

NEWS of the WORLD in PICTURES

When the first Dominion-wide shipment of air-express matter was made this week on the Trans-Canada Air Lines from Montreal to Vancouver a varied assortment of goods was carried. Mayor Raynault of Montreal is shown as he handed a package of cheese to E. Belerose, general manager of the Canadian National Express for delivery to the mayors of six Canadian cities. From Toronto Lieutenant-Governor Albert Matthews sent orchids to the Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia. The lower picture shows the plane being loaded with general express matter.

What are the Duke and Duchess of Windsor doing these days? Well, for one thing they're going to the movies just like other folk. The duke, cigar in hand and smiling, is pictured with his lady, arriving for a Danielle Darrieux premiere at a Paris theatre.

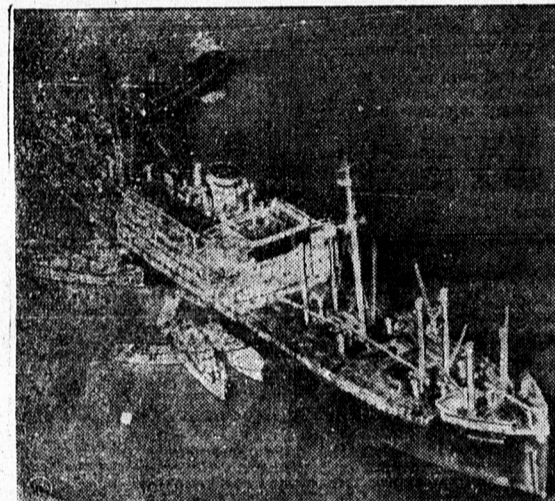

Passengers on the burning German liner Deutschland, which caught fire 200 miles off Cape Race, Newfoundland, refused to get panicky during the 10-hour fight to control the blaze. Pictured are third-class passengers who spent the night on improvised beds in the ladies' tourist class parlor after smoke drove them from their staterooms. Capt. Karl Steineke brought the ship to port without a casualty. There were no pictures of the blaze.

His ship safely docked at New York after a 10-hour battle with fire at sea, Capt. Karl Steineke of the German liner Deutschland is pictured as he reported none of the crew of 390 or the 600 passengers had been injured.

In a playground of a Stockholm school children learn safety first under the direction of a real policeman. In the picture, the pupils are forming lines to simulate trams and cars while a policeman shows them how to obey a traffic light. These lessons are a part of the curriculum.

With coast guard craft alongside, the German freighter Vancouver is pictured shortly after an explosion tore a great hole in the ship's bottom as she lay in the estuary at Oakland, Calif. Several of the crew were injured and a federal investigation of the mysterious blast was begun at once. An unidentified informant called an Oakland newspaper 10 minutes before the explosion with the announcement that a "bomb just went up on a German ship."

Back to Southampton a few days ago went "Mercury" upper component of the pick-a-back sea-plane after just missing setting a world long distance mark in a flight from Dundee to the mouth of the Orange River in South Africa. The return trip was made by easy stages. The plane was piloted by Capt. D. C. T. Bennett, who during the summer flew the Mercury to Montreal and New York, the flight from Britain to Montreal being made non-stop. In the picture, from left to right, are Mrs. Bennett, Capt. Bennett receiving the congratulations of Mayor G. E. H. Prince, of Southampton, and co-pilot J. Harvey.

Nicholas G. Tserepis, newly appointed Consul-General for Greece in Canada, shown here with Mme Tserepis, has come to Montreal to take up his duties.

Mae Patsy Wilcox, 21-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Wilcox, Woodbridge, Ont., was drowned in the Egan River when she tumbled down a steep bank at the rear of the home the family just moved into. She was playing near her elder brother and sister, but they did not hear the little child call out. Photos show the baby, the spot where the accident occurred, her playthings still scattered about the yard where she had left them, and the sorrowing parents.

Husky Fleming Tackett, 34-year-old coal miner, and his 10-year-old bride, Rosie Columbus, pose for their wedding picture in the backhills of Kentucky near Paintsville. Married by the Rev. W. G. Ratliff, a blacksmith, Tackett and his wife—the neighbors say she's "just a baby"—and the authorities are now investigating the legality of the marriage.
