JUST THE THING Bug Auto: My, I'd like to have a set of those nice balloons!

PESSIMISTIC Mrs. B.: Adam was in a deep sleep when his ribs were removed. Most men don't wake up until after they are married.

But, hubby, you said we'd go to Florida, the land of palms, this winter. Yes, but now it's become the land of itching palms.

DRY, NOW "Is your cellar damp?" "Not now; my husband made his farewell trip to it this morning."

SLOW GROWTH Reggie: I have to wait hours in the barber shop for a shave. Miss Sharp: I should think it would be years, Mr. Sapp.

Girls just must curl and wave bobbed hair to appear their prettiest. But constant curling and waving burns and dries the luster, vitality and very life from the hair.

YELLOW STUB

CHAPTER XXVIII

The letter was lying in the same spot where Mrs. King put all his mail—on the little table beside the telephone.

"From Sis, he murmured, at sight of Janet's familiar handwriting. 'Wonder how everything is at home.'"

And then he frowned. "They're not satisfied with trying to bother me," he growled. "They're worrying the folks back home."

For out of Janet's letter had fallen a single sheet of paper. It was written in the same scrawl that had characterized the two anonymous notes he had received, ordering him to leave town. And it was very brief, but in plain language and with no salutation, stating that if Jimmy's family ever wanted to see him alive again they would persuade him to return to Grafton—at once.

That was all. "I haven't the faintest idea," Janet wrote, "what's it's all about. Jimmy you are concealing things from mother and me! The envelope was addressed to mother, but she happened to be lying down when it came and, without giving it much thought, I opened it."

"I haven't shown it to her, because she worries enough about you as it is. But Jimmy, I'm afraid. I wanted you to go in the first place, but I can't bear to think of you there with this unnamed danger hanging over you. Do you know what it is? If you do, please tell me. If anything happened to you Mother and I'd never forgive myself for urging you to go to Montreal."

"I've told Barry Colvin about it. He still comes to see us nearly every evening and I think he's an old dear. He's alarmed about it and he says he is going after you if you don't come back."

"There was more, but it dealt with family gossip and the state of Mrs. Rand's health. The recurrence of the anonymous warning had Jimmy thoroughly enraged. What had at first amounted to nothing more than an annoyance was now beginning to get on his nerves. He picked up his empty pipe and stuck it savagely in his mouth. It was not that he feared anything, but he was really annoyed at the thought of his unknown person eternally keeping watch over him and his affairs, knowing his every movement."

"He lay in bed for a long time, cursing himself for his inability to banish the thing from his mind and go to sleep."

"Good morning, Mr. Hilton," and at the cheery note in Mary Lowell's greeting the chief clerk of the Q. and R. Railroad looked up in some surprise.

"Good morning, Miss Lowell, I er— He stopped and rubbed his chin. She waited. "Yes, Mr. Hilton?" "Oh, nothing," he said, and bent over his desk.

She had told her mother that morning—told her with definiteness and firmness—that she had broken with Samuel Church. It was no use, she had insisted when her mother had protested and, later, had cried. She didn't love him and never would. She told of the incident of the dog and the little boy as if such a thing against any man were enough to damn him forever.

"He thinks Mother, that his money can buy anything. He thought he could buy me with it, just as he thought he could buy the boy a new dog."

And she had put on her hat and rushed off to work, feeling strangely light and free.

Shortly before noon Church came to the office putting papers out of his pocket, and immediately went into conference with Hilton. But he was engaged very briefly and Mary sensed, when he came out of Hilton's inner office, that it was only a pretext to see her.

"Mary," he said, leaning over her desk, "you've had time to think it over now. Tell me that you didn't mean what you said to me yesterday."

Her fingers never once paused as they typed over her typewriter. "I meant it," she said shortly. "Mary, you couldn't. You don't realize what you're saying. Listen, I was angry when that—that accident happened, so angry that I didn't see the dog until it was too late. I had been saying things to you and you weren't answering me. I was sorry it happened—just as sorry as you were." He held out his hand pleadingly.

She paused in her typing and looked up at him. "You're not helping your case any by lying," she said coldly, and turned back to her work. His face darkened and his fists clenched. He was about to make some angry retort, but he controlled himself. The door opened and Hilton came in. "Oh, still here, Mr. Church?" "Yes, I was just going. I'll be back later. Something more I wanted to take up with you." The door closed behind him. Hilton said to Mary: "That's funny." He laughed. "He must be getting absent minded. He came in to see me about a matter that we'd already gone over thoroughly by telephone."

"Oh, I beg your pardon," he added hastily, his face coloring slightly. "I had forgotten you two were engaged."

"Did he tell you that?" asked Mary. "Yes. Said it wasn't generally known, but that you'd announce it later. Told it to me in confidence. Well, it's not true. At least, it's no longer true."

He whistled and then stuck his tongue in his cheek. Finally curiously got the better of him. "You mean you—you broke off with

NOVEL BOLERO TREATMENT

The Spanish influence is so sure of itself that it takes liberties with the mode. This street frock in dark brown velvet introduces the bolero back, while the front hangs in straight lines. Buttons trim the long close-fitting sleeves, while the neck is finished with a deep collar of self-material held together with a bright silk ribbon bow. Medium size requires 4 1/2 yards 36-inch material.

Home Bank Share-Holders Give Appeal Notice (Special to the Guardian) TORONTO, Mar. 2.—Notice of appeal from the Master's decision that the Home Bank shareholders must pay the double liability was today served at Osgoode Hall by J. G. O'Donoghue, K. C., acting for the shareholders. It is expected that the appeal will be heard in single court Monday.

Among other grounds for the appeal it is stated that the Master's judgment is contrary to law and to the weight of evidence and that the Home Bank never was a chartered bank after one year from its incorporation. The various irregularities brought out before the Royal Commission are also quoted as reasons why shareholders should not now be called on to pay double liability.

With the cape coming into a place of great fashion importance, what could be more effective than a Spring coat modelled after the cat's topcoat? The one above is developed in dark blue tweed, with dark blue velvet facing the tailored collar. A coat of this type would be smart in a colored tweed of tan and brown.

Home Bank Share-Holders Give Appeal Notice

(Special to the Guardian) TORONTO, Mar. 2.—Notice of appeal from the Master's decision that the Home Bank shareholders must pay the double liability was today served at Osgoode Hall by J. G. Heart Trouble Or Indigestion?

Heartburn, Pressure Around Heart Palpitation, A Feeling of Fullness Shortness of Breath THIS SIMPLE 3-MINUTE TEST TELLS WHAT'S WRONG

While there are many people who really have Heart Trouble, there are many thousands more who are literally "scared to death" because they think they have it.

To live in constant fear of Heart Failure is a terrible handicap, especially when probably 90 per cent of the self-diagnosed "Bad Heart" symptoms—Palpitation, shortness of breath, difficult breathing, a feeling of fullness or pressure around the Heart—are mainly caused by a sour, gassy, upset stomach.

To prove that this is true and that your past worries have been a sad mistake—simply make this three-minute test and watch results!

From any good druggist, obtain a couple ounces of pure Bismarck Magnesia, (either powder or tablets) and begin with tomorrow—take a teaspoonful of the powder or four tablets immediately after each meal—and if the usual distress symptoms fail to appear, you may safely rest assured that you have found your trouble.

This is a pleasant, inexpensive test that seldom fails to relieve stomach distress, Gas, Sourness and Bloating—almost instantly and a single trial proves its value! Be sure and ask Bismarck Magnesia, not a laxative.

COLOR CUT-OUTS MILES STANDISH

MILES STANDISH'S ADVICE This is the third day's chapter of the story of Miles Standish. Children who cut out the pictures every day will soon have a whole set of paper dolls with which to act out this story of Pilgrim life.

John Alden was writing letters to send back to England on the Mayflower which was ready to sail on the following morning. The letters he wrote were full of the praise of one Puritan maiden, Priscilla, Fairest, she was, and best of all Puritan maidens and John Alden loved her with all his heart.

Tired of pacing to and fro Miles Standish picked up a book of Caesar and started reading how Caesar once saved a retreat by seizing a shield from a soldier and putting himself at the head of his troops.

"That's what I always say," he said to John Alden, "if you want a thing well done you must do it yourself. You must not leave it to others."

(Color this suit of Miles Standish's grey with cloak and hat black. Tomorrow John Alden will appear.)
