THE NOVA SCOTIA ELECTIONS.

The Nova Scotia elections resulted in the vindication of the Murray Government, which at this distance seems no very bad thing, by securing two-thirds of the elected representatives in its support. The majority, which had been far too large for the best working of parliamentary institutions, was considerably reduced, and this also must be regarded as a good thing. The pretty close division in a good many counties would further indicate that the majority secured by the Government in the House is considerably larger in proportion than its popular majority at the polls. This often happens in elections.

The Liberal party has had a very extended term of power in Nova Scotia, dating from August, 1882. In all that time it has had but three leaders, Hon. W. T. Pipes, 1882-84, Hon. W. S. Fielding, 1884-96, and Hon. George H. Murray since the latter date. Premier Murray has already enjoyed a continuous term of fifteen years, and should he hold on to the end of the Legislative term he will have had a term of nineteen years, which would be almost a record in that regard, and only exceeded by Sir Oliver Mowat's long term as Premier of Ontario.

Sir Oliver Mowat was Premier of Ontario from October, 1872 to July 1896, a period of over twenty-four years. The long continuous term of power of the Liberal party in Ontario extended from December, 1871, to February, 1905, a period of over thirty-three years. Four years hence, should the Liberals continue to hold power in Nova Scotia until that date their term of power will be very close upon thirty-three years. This is the more remarkable from the fact that the long Liberal term in Ontario was stated to have broken all records of duration in the parliamentary history of the British Empire and the world.

The result in Nova Scotia was about what was expected, outside of that Province. Mr. Murray's victory, though a signal one, was not so sweeping as was expected by some of his supporters. As for the Opposition, which had no particular leader nor so clearly defined policy, it may be said that they hardly hoped to win a majority, and should be fairly well satisfied with the gains they made. The significance of the contest in regard to politics in Canada generally, seems not to be very great. Reciprocity was not distinctly an issue in the contest, except in a few localities, although the Murray Government had distinctly endorsed the trade agreement.

CANADIAN SHIPPING.

The list of Canadian shipping recently issued by the Department of Marine and Fisheries, traces the growth and decline of our mercantile marine from 1874 down to 1910. The record shows that during the first four years of this period there was a gradual growth from 6,930 vessels of 1,158,363 tons in 1874 to the maximum of 7,169 vessels of 1,333,015 tons in 1878. Then the decline began, slow at first but proceeding with accelerated velocity.

A prime cause was no doubt the change from wooden tonnage to iron and steel. The older countries, notably Great Britain, developed metal ship-building considerably in advance of us. In fact it has only been in comparatively recent years and upon a small scale, mostly on the Great Lakes, that steel tonnage has been constructed in Canada. The protective policy has been also proved injurious to ship-building in both the United States and Canada. Its introduction was coincident with the beginning of the decline in our tonnage.

The lowest figure was reached in 1906 when the total registered tonnage of Canada had fallen to 654,179 tons. This was considerably less than Nova Scotia and New Brunswick had in 1879, their total being over 892,000 tons, while Nova Scotia alone had 552,159 tons.

It is noteworthy that the turn of the tide in shipbuilding has apparently been reached and since 1906 there has been a slow but gradual increase. The tonnage registered in Canada at the end of 1910 was 7,904 vessels of 750,929 tons. It will be seen that the vessels built and registered in Canada are much smaller than they were thirty years ago. We have indeed more vessels than we had in 1878 but with only about one half as much tonnage.

REMOVE THE ELFIN.

For years past the burned and partly sunken wreck of the old ferry steamer Elfin has formed an unsightly object between the ferry wharf and the railway wharf on the harbor-front. It ought long ago to have been broken up and removed. This has been talked of from time to time, but it has been neglected, supposedly on the ground that what is everybody's business is the business of nobody in particular.

The steamer formerly belonged to the Provincial Government, but we understand was sold some years ago to a party from Rustico, presumably with the intention that it should be removed by the purchaser. It is only the Government that has power apparently to compel the removal, and it is looked to by the public to see that this is done. It is due to the city, to the appearance of our fine harbor, and to the credit of all concerned that this spectacle of ruin and dilapidation shall not be much longer left to offend the public gaze. We trust the matter will receive the earnest attention of the Commissioner of Public Works and the Government.

NOTES.

Halifax returned three Liberals instead of two Liberals and one Conservative, as stated in The Guardian's despatch yesterday morning. This makes the relative strength of parties 27 Liberals to 11 Conservatives.

There are the usual charges and counter charges as to corrupt practices and the use of whiskey by both parties in the Nova Scotia elections. The fact is that in both parties and in all the Provinces there is a debased and debasing element that does not hesitate to use both money and rum to influence the electors at such times. It is not likely, however, that this accounts for the very large majority in the Nova Scotia election.

BRITISH SAILORS CAN'T STRIKE IN AMERICAN PORTS.

BOSTON, June 13—The seamen on British steamers in United States ports will not strike in response to the strike call to be issued in England tomorrow.

Wm. A. Frasier, secretary of the International Seamen's Union of America, with headquarters in this city, said today, in response to inquiries received from union men, that the United States immigration laws and terms of shipment of men themselves prevented any strike being declared here. The seamen will have to carry the ships back to their home ports before they can join the strike.

Father Landry, of Cape pele, saw two strangers go by his place yesterday afternoon in the direction of Barachois. The police are searching for them.

CARGO OF KOREAN COPPER COINS REACHES BOSTON.

BOSTON, June 12—Nearly 20,000 bags of old Korean copper coins formed an interesting shipment in the British tramp steamer Seneca, today, unloading a cargo of Oriental stuffs at Mystic wharf. The coins, valued only as junk, are consigned to New York parties. When the Japanese got control of the island the currency of Japan was introduced and the Korean coins became valueless. The coins were collected and it is understood that about 20,000 tons of them have been sold for junk to American dealers. Transportation of the shipment on the Seneca cost $7.500.

SEAMEN'S STRIKE HAS BEEN DECLARED

LONDON, June 15—The threatened seamen's strike was formally declared last night at London, Glasgow, Liverpool, Cardiff, Bristol, Southampton and other British ports, and also at Belgian and Dutch Ports; but the chances of any real International strike being declared seem remote.

AN INTERESTING LETTER FROM FAR-OFF CHINA

Dr. F. M. Auld, a son of David H. Auld, Freetown, who is at present stationed at Weihei Fu, Honan, China, as a medical missionary of the Presbyterian Church, has written a descriptive letter home from which the Guardian has been permitted to make extracts.

Dr. Auld is a gruduate of McGill of 1909 and in December last was sent to China as a missionary of the Canadian Western Presbyterian Church.

The doctor's letter is to his sister, Miss Dorothy, Freetown, and the following extracts will undoubtedly be read with keen interest by many:

Weihwei Fu, Honan China.
March 25 1911.

My Dear Sister:

This is the first letter on our new typewriter and you must not be surprised if there be a few mistakes. It seems so strange to be writing on a machine that one finds the flow of thought not as lree as usual. This is particularly so because a good deal of attention must be given to the machine until practise makes this mechanical part a habit performed without thought.

The fine June weather at the beginning of March was not long continued. Since then we have had cloudy drizzly weather good for the crops but not especially pleasant for the population. In spite of the cool weather the crops are growing very fast and the wheat is already four or five inches high, and gives the country a fine rich green appearance as you look out over the fields.

The epidemic of Plague about which there was so much alarm a few weeks ago; has almost entirely disappeared. About the end of January the outlook was very serious but as the warm weather began the disease began to subside. At the present time the newepapers scarcely mention it at all.

A good number of medical missionaries from various missions volunteered for work in Manchuria to help the Chinese Government suppress the disease. Although many thousands of lives were lost the occurence of the Plague has done more than anything else could do to help on the cause of progress in China. It has shown them how helpless they are in dealing with such an outbreak as occurred. The hopeful feature about it all is that the nation as a whole has learned that much can be done to control disease. Hitherto this outbreak would have been regarded as the workings of Fate and nothing that could be done would be of any avail. Now however they have realized what can be done and have not hestitated to ask for help from foreign nations a thing which Chinese pride would not permit on any former occasion. The good work done by medical missions is entitled to most of the credit for this great change. I do not think that any other cause begins to compare with medical missions in this regard. The Chinese seem at last to have realized that missions have no selfish or political aims. In this very epidemic they had further illustration of the unselfish aims of missions because a few missionaries laid down their lives in helping rid China of the Plague. One very sad case was that of Dr. Jackson a young man who came to China in November last, contracted Plague and died. His death made a profound impression on the the Chinese. To give you some idea of the impression made I shall tell you of the attitude and utterance of the viceroy of Manchuria. This official rules over 20,000,000 people. And is one of the highest officials in China. He attended the memorial service of Dr. Jackson and made a speech which I think wellworth passing on.

"We have shown ourselves unworthy of the trust laid on us by our Emperor. We have allowed a dire pestilence to overwhelm the sacred capital. His Majesty the King of Great Britain shows sympathy with every country when calamity overtakes them. His Subject, Dr. Jackson moved by his Sovereign's spirit and by the heart of the Saviour who gave His life to deliver the world, responded nobly when we asked him to help our country in its need. He went fourth to help us in our fight daily where the pestilence lay thickest, midst the groans of the dying he struggled to cure the stricken to find medicine to stay the evil. Worn by his efforts, the pestilence seized upon him and took him from us long before his time. Our sorrow is beyond all measure, our grief too deep for words. Dr, Jackson was a young man of high education and great natural ability. He came to Manchuria with the intention of spreading medical knowledge and thus conveying untold blessings to the Eastern peoples. In pursuit of his ideal he was cut down. The Presbyterian Mission has lost a worker of great promise, the Chinese Government a man who gave his life in his desire to help them. Oh! Spirit of Dr. Jackson, we pray you intercede for the 20,000,000 people in Manchuria and ask the Lord of Heaven to take away this pestilence, so that we may once more lay our heads in peace upon our pillows. In life you were brave, in death you are an exalted spirit. Noble spirit who sacrificed your life for us; help us still and look down in kindness upon us all."

This is the utterance of a heathen man, because it is impossible for any other to hold office in any civil or military capacity, and at the same time be a Christian.

The language continues interesting and difficult, but still it is coming. There are many interesting things I could tell you about it but I must stop now and see some other time I shall write a whole letter on the subject of the language.

With love to you all from us both.
Ever your loving brother.
Fred.
