DAILY SELECTIONS FOR GUARDIAN READERS

THE DOOR OF THE LIPS.

Say not the things ye mean not. Words are knives That cut deep gashes in our little lives; Gashes that reach deep down within the heart. And all our lives leave some unhealed smart.

Say not things ye mean not. Words will live To mock your grief, when you, perchance, would give

Your very life to take away the pain That you have made; alas! 'twill then be vain. Ah! many a word that was in passion said Has left a wound that secretly has bled, Till love has come to be a trickling stream, And earthly joys like some past happy dream.

Yea, all that brightens life has fled away, Leaving but work the dreary livelong day, Say not the thing ye mean not. There be few Whose life within and life without are true,

Yet be ye true, yea, though ye suffer wrong, If true, then real, and being real, strong; And being strong, some little word ye speak May help some struggling brother who is weak.

Say not the thing ye mean not. Sure our life Is not for meanness, pettishness, or strife; great and high Souls who have destinies so great and high Must not defame their immortality.

Rather wipe eyes that weep, cheer those who mourn, And whisper comfort into hearts forlorn. Impute not wrong, lest thou shouldst add to strife Or mar with bitterness some noble life.

Speak not the words ye mean not. Death is nigh: Thou knowest not but soon that one may lie In the cold grave, whose cats so sadly heard The harsh, unfeeling, bitter, unkind word.

MAUD LAMBERT AND "THE ANTIQUE GIRL" AT B. F. KEITH'S, BOSTON. With Jesse L. Lasky's big musical production, The Antique Girl, and Maud Lambert, late of Over The River as the two star features, next week's bill at B. F. Keith's Theatre promises to be one of the strongest of the season. Mr. Lasky is the most skillful and prolific producer in vaudeville to-day. His productions are internationally famous for their lavishness and beauty. This season he has outdone all previous efforts. In many respects The Antique Girl is the best thing he has ever done. The book is by Cecil DeMille, and the music by Robert Hood Bowers, composer of The Red Rose. A pretty love story runs through the plot, and the score is very tuneful. Mr. Bowers has written many tinkling melodies that are bound to be whistled all over town before the week is up. The cast of The Antique Girl includes Fletcher Norton, Charles Pusey, Doris Wilson, and Maud Earl. The supporting company numbers sixteen pretty girls, and the stage setting is both elaborate and beautiful. Miss Lambert last appeared in Boston in Lew Fields' Midnight Sons. She makes her vaudeville debut in a new act, assisted by Ernest Ball, the well-known song writer. Miss Lambert will sing several new and original ditties, and wear some wonderful gowns. Other big features will be Freeman and Dunham a clever pair from the West; Keppler and Brunay, two entertainers with something new; Toreat's Roosters, a wonderful troupe of educated game cocks; Robert Demont Trio in Hotel Turnover; James F. MacDonald in songs and sayings; Edgar Bergar, the contortionist; and The Kemps in a singing and dancing specialty.

You Can Distinguish a Piano Made by Ye Olde Firme of Heintzman & Co., Limited, by Its Pure, Vibrant Singing Tone

The reasons for this are well known to those who are familiar with the structure of the instrument and with the strict methods of the Heintzman & Co. factory.

The Material

Every piece of metal with the slightest flaw, every piece of wood imperfect in its grain or not thoroughly seasoned, is rejected—it is not tried out to see if it will do—it is not even given the benefit of a doubt.

The Workman

Each workman, too, brings to his task skill of the highest order—and that skill is still further developed and kept to the highest possible standard by the rigid discipline for which the Heintzman & Co. Factory is well known.

Its durability and continued increase in the beauty of its tone as it ages have caused all world-great artists on their visit to Canada to use this piano exclusively. . . .
