PEACE PLAN

Mr. Bryan's subject was "Progress Toward Peace." He said that the part of the United States in the cause must of necessity be large because "more than any other nation it had a population which is attached by blood to nearly all other nations."

Peace for all time between the United States and Great Britain was the keynote of other addresses of the evening delivered by Lord Weardale, chairman of the English delegation; Sir Edmund Walker, of Canada; Sir George Houston Reid, of Australia, and Judge George Gray, of Delaware. Tonight's function marked the last of many that have engaged the delegates here during the past week, for tomorrow they start for Boston.

Don't Grow Bald Young Man!

Take Care of Your Hair While You Have It. Take Care of.

It's a safe bet to one bet that the young man who uses PARISIAN Sage as an occasional hair dressing will never grow bald.

There's a reason, of course, and it's a very good and sufficient one. Dandruff germs cause falling hair and falling hair means thinner hair and in due time baldness.

PARISIAN Sage prevents baldness, by destroying the cause of baldness—the little persistent voracious dandruff germ.

If you have dandruff or itching scalp it means that dandruff germs are sapping the vitality from the roots of your hair. Get rid of all hair troubles by using PARISIAN Sage.

It is not a dye, mind you, neither does it contain poisonous sugar or lead or even sulphur. It is a scientific preparation that abolishes dandruff, stops falling hair and scalp itch, and makes hair grow lustrous and luxuriant.

Many young women as well as men are growing bald and for the same reason.

Use delightful, refreshing PARISIAN Sage; it nourishes the hair roots, if the roots are not dead, and brings to every user a head of glorious hair—radiant and fascinating. Large bottle for 50 cents at drug stores and toilet counters. See that you get PARISIAN Sage. Geo. E. Hughes guarantees it.

C. P. R. STEAMER IN HONG KONG

HONG KONG, May 9—Welcomed by a thousand crafts of all descriptions and sizes, the new Pacific ocean steamship the Empress of Russia passed through Sulphur Channel today and dropped anchor in Hong Kong harbor. Chinese junk and noisy crackers and gongs, several gunboats flying the flags of foreign nations and a conglomerate fleet of launches, sampans and other boats of all nationalities, joined in greeting the new Canadian Pacific liner. It is just twenty-three years since the Duke and Duchess of Connaught witnessed the same scene on their way back to England from India.

It is the intention to drydock and thoroughly inspect the Russia before proceeding to Shanghai, Nagasaki, Kobe, Yokohama, Victoria, and Vancouver. This allows the passengers about ten days to see the many interesting phases of China.

JACK JOHNSON IS HISSED

CHICAGO, May 9—The effect of Judge Carpenter's censorship of attendance at the trial of the negro prize fighter, "Jack" Johnson, on a white slavery charge, was apparent in the empty benches at yesterday's session of court. A few negro friends of the defendant and a half dozen white men constituted the audience.

For appearance in court the fighter has discarded his diamonds and other jewelry and presented himself in a suit of a subdued shade of blue. At the Union depot where Johnson went to meet a friend before court opened, he was hissed by the crowd. Estelle Henderson, alias Painter, proprietress of a resort at Pittsburg, testified that she had dismissed Belle Schreiber, the "white slave" of the present case, from the house. The government had hoped to show that this action was due to the Schreiber woman's associations with Johnson, but objection of the defence to this line of examination was sustained.

Whether testimony that Jack Johnson beat the white woman with whom he associated is to be permitted in his present trial on charges of violation of the Mann law, will be decided by Judge Carpenter today. Belle Schreiber, the woman Johnson is said to have transported from Pittsburg to Chicago, told on the stand yesterday that Johnson had provided the money for trips from Chicago to New York and from Chicago to Oakland.

Keep the Balance Up.

It has been truthfully said that the disturbance of the even balance of health causes serious trouble. Nobody can be too careful to keep this balance up. When people begin to lose appetite, or to get tired easily, lose weight, or debility. The system needs a tonic, craves it, and should not be denied it, and the best tonic of which we have any knowledge is Hood's Sarsaparilla. What this medicine has done in keeping healthy people healthy, in keeping up the even balance of health, gives it the same distinction as a preventive that it enjoys as a cure. Its early use has illustrated the wisdom of the old saying that a stitch in time saves nine. Take Hood's for appetite, strength, and endurance.

BACK TO THE LAND

Duke of Marlborough is Putting Blenheim Park Under the Plough

The Duke of Marlborough proposes to put Blenheim Park under the plough. He says:

"So far as I am concerned I mean to make an effort to show that in my locality it is possible to grow corn stuffs and vegetables for suitable markets. The Park which you know so well, and on which a brigade of yeomanry has been trained, will no longer be offered as a training ground for national defence, but will be employed for the purpose of producing food for a national food supply. A thousand acres or more will be under the plough, and a greater number of laborers employed. When I have succeeded, as I mean to do, I shall then have given a lead to my farming neighbors. I shall be a captain in a different kind of an army from that which I have previously had the honor of commanding in Blenheim Park, but it will be an army quite as useful and quite as necessary to the welfare of the State."

GEORGE OF GREECE A GOOD MONARCH

The assassination of George of Greece came at the very time when his life work was being crowned with success. That lifework was the creation of a nation in the land which had been the cradle of European civilization. It was no light task. The pessimists of Europe said 50 years ago that it was an impossible task. More than one eligible younger son was offered the chance to try it and was held back by the wise advice of older monarchs, who reasoned from precedents that only assassination or deposition after insurrection could be the lot of the man who seated himself upon the throne of Greece. In a sense the gloomy prediction was fulfilled in the case of King George, but assassination did not come till after a reign of 50 years had raised a half-savage population of warring tribesmen into a compact, orderly and civilized nation and had brought under its flag a greater territory than was ever at any one time united into a single government even during the most glorious days of ancient Greece. This, of course, assumes that Phillip and Alexander are properly to be classed as Macedonians and not as Greeks, and that the Greece of their day was a conquered province, not an independent nation. Upon the resignation of Othofia whose reign there was constant insurrection the powers of Europe looked around for a successor, and finally offered the throne to Christian of Denmark's son William who at the age of eighteen was crowned King George of Greece. This Danish boy was no weakling. He could ride, run, box, fence. He was an unerring marksman. He is said to have repeated the feat of Lysander by swimming in the Hellespont. After he had established himself, he was accustomed to enter athletic contests, and he carried off many a prize. Once he was denounced as a professional and precipitated a riot, escaping only by disclosing his identity to the police. He mastered the Greek language, making himself a genuine Greek in speech and sentiment. He established a constitution and a free parliament. He adopted the principle of ruling by allowing his people to rule themselves, but at the same time he kept always a guiding hand on public affairs. When rival politicians quarreled so fiercely that it became impossible to form a ministry, King George calmly announced that he could get along without a ministry, and he did until the politicians came to their senses. He fostered education. He gave all possible aid to the study of Grecian antiquities for the purpose of reviving among the modern Greeks a proper pride in the achievements of their ancestors. And most of all he set himself to develop an army, for he was ambitious to place his country in a position in which it would no longer be obliged to depend on the protection of the powers for its existence.

HANDS UP

Shot by Fellow-Student at Eglar School—Would Not Box

Once more the danger of young people being in possession of firearms has been demonstrated. The practice nearly ended in the death of Manuel Coello, a Spanish student at Forest House School, Woodford, when Frederick Sauri, sixteen, a Mexican, also a student at the school, was charged with attempted murder. Inspector Ellis saw the injured boy lying on a table, with a bullet-wound in his stomach, and a doctor was attending him. In consequence of what he was told, he informed Sauri that he would be arrested on a charge of attempted murder, and when they walked into the latter's bedroom he said:

"We were playing here with boxing gloves, and I said, 'Shall we box?' and he said, 'No, no.' I said, 'Hands up! Hands up!' I took the revolver from the top of my desk and put it close to his stomach. I said, 'I will kill you.' I had no intention of shooting, but the revolver went off. The revolver fell on the floor, and he began to cry. I took hold of him around the waist and assisted him to the nursery. I am very sorry, as he was my best friend."

The inspector added that Sauri also told him that he purchased the revolver for $5 about three months previously, and the revolver in question—an automatic one—with three live cartridges in it, was handed to him by one of the masters at the school. On the door in the prisoner's bedroom was a spent cartridge, and also a live one.

In opening the case, Mr. Baines (prosecuting) said the scholars in the school were mostly foreigners, who resided there. Coello and Sauri went out for a walk, and Sauri alleged that Coello had played some tricks on him, and he would "have it back on him in some way." Sauri tried to induce Coello to box, but he would not, and Sauri said, "If you won't fight I'll take my pistol and kill you." Whether that was said out of bravado or not he would not say, but it was certain that the pistol was loaded, and that it was fired by Sauri. Coello had since been at the London Hospital, where the bullet was extracted.

Coello, a youth of sixteen, said when they got back to the school they went into Sauri's room and put on boxing gloves. Sauri wanted him to box, but he would not, and took off the gloves. Sauri then said, "I'm going to shoot you," and picked up a pistol, which was loaded, and "took aim." He then unloaded the pistol, "because he did not want to shoot me," and, believing there was no other cartridge in the revolver, pulled the trigger.

Mr. Melville (defending) said, having heard the evidence of the injured lad—for they could not call him a prosecutor—he felt that there was no evidence to show that the affair was other than an accident. After it occurred somebody appeared to have lost his head and sent for the police. The case was dismissed.

HYDRO AEROPLANES

German Battleships and Cruisers are to be Equipped

The Berlin correspondent of The Naval and Military Record announces that at an early date it is probable that all the larger German battleships and battle-cruisers will be equipped to carry their own hydro-aeroplanes. The idea is, of course, only in the experimental stage, and is far away different from the huge, cumbersome erection of timber that made up the laughing stock of the flying world last summer. The Germans are quite aware of the fact that the aeroplane does not require a launching-platform able to stand a traction engine, and as a matter of fact have no launcher at all. The machine is simply let down into the water on the lee side of the ship and skims off the surface. The machine is carried on the ship out of the way of the artillery and out of the way of the general working quarters, and is housed in a light steel-framed shed to protect it from the weather. It is proposed to provide four machines to each of the latest type "Dreadnoughts" and two to the smaller craft. The Pritzg aerodrome near Dantsig where the budding naval flyer is taught his business, is a busy spot just now, and conveys a different impression from the usual empty "nothing-doing-to-day" look of our military and flying centres. The Teuton places no little reliance upon the hydro-aeroplane.—The Sphere, London.

WHITSUNTIDE MISSION IN CHARLOTTETOWN

to professing Christians to act up to the profession, and not to be a stumbling block in the way of sincere, inquiring minds. But we were not called upon to believe in Christians, but in Christ. People did not counterfeited anything that was not worth imitating; and sincere Christians were not evidence that Christianity was a failure. The man who had personal experience of Christ was in a position to say with Paul, "I know in whom I have believed." Personal experience must satisfy Christianity. The deepest things in life were spiritual.

"Canst thou not minister to a mind diseased,
Pluck from the memory a rooted sorrow,
Raze out the written troubles of the brain,
And with some sweet oblivious antidote
Cleanse the stuff'd bosom of that perilous stuff,
Which weighs upon the heart?"

As Shakespeare puts it: There was only one answer, the blood of Jesus Christ cleanseth from all sin. Forgiveness was the first and deepest need of the human heart. Personal experience of Christianity gave one grace to resist temptations, to overcome difficulties, and to withstand enemies. Spiritual reality was the result of the personal experience of the satisfied soul. Then there was the future, and personal experience assured us of future glory in the future life. "The dread of something after death, the undiscovered country from whose bourne no traveller returns." "The only answer to that was that Jesus Christ is the eternal guarantee of future life and glory hereafter. Every one who had put Christianity to the test of personal experience had felt assured of immortality for those whom they love and who live the Christian life here. "Christ in you the hope of glory." Personal experience was the strongest, simplest, most satisfying and most supreme test of Christianity.

END NAVY BILL THIS WEEK

disorderly sittings ever witnessed. All the galleries of the house were filled from eight o'clock till half-past three.

Liberals say that this riot was not intended, that orders had gone out for a quiet night. The orders, however, failed to command the obedience of the chief blockers and under their leadership the whole Opposition joined in the tumult.

The chief rioters were Hon. Wm. Pugsley, Mr. Frank B. Carvell, Hon. Frank Oliver and Sir Wilfrid Laurier. These men sought to hold the bill in committee by a trick. An effort was made to get in an amendment by Mr. Carroll, of North Cape Breton, after the Opposition had been warned by the Prime Minister that after two o'clock there would be no opportunity.

The amendment could have been moved early in the day if a vote had been taken on the German amendment first.

When chairman Blondin ruled that the motion of the Prime Minister, that the bill be reported, had priority there was a roar of anger from the Opposition. The chairman had seen the Premier first and hence the Carroll motion was out of order. The Liberal contention, that the closure notice did not cover the amendment adding a new clause, fell by the wayside when the question of priority was declared.

There were loud cries of "shame" at calls and howls. When the chairman reported the bill to the speaker his words could not be heard above the din. When the speaker attempted to be heard there were shouts of "No report, and Mr. Pugsley declared the chairman had made a false report.

He was warned (against) reflecting upon the chair. When the Speaker appealed for order Mr. Oliver got up and shouted "the prerogatives of the House have been usurped by the government. Mr. Pugsley called on the speaker to preserve the rights of the minority.

"The best way to preserve the rights of the minority," said the Speaker, is to maintain the rules. The Liberals shouted at the Speaker and the Deputy Speaker and at the Prime Minister.

In the midst of the row the Premier moved the adjournment of the House and the Speaker left the chamber. The Conservative members who had held themselves under great restraint rose to a man cheering their leader and singing the National Anthem, "Rule Britannia" and the "Red, White and Blue," while the Opposition cheered Sir Wilfrid Laurier and sang "O Canada."
