which has been considerably exceeded. The Centennial Convention will undoubtedly be a record breaker, with the prospect of more than one thousand delegates. The staff of leaders and speakers include, Dr. W. O. Lewis, Secretary of the Baptist World Alliance; Mrs. Leslie Swain, ex-president of the Northern Baptist Convention, U. S. A.; Henry Clifford Porter of Charlottesville, Virginia, former Maritime who has been an outstanding minister in the Southern Baptist Convention, U. S. A.; and Dr. W. O. Smalley, Gen. Sec'y of the Baptist Union of Western Canada.

Also present as the Convention soloist will be the renowned Portia White, Preliminary to the Convention, taking addresses dealing with the Centennial are being broadcast over the various Maritime stations. Last Sunday, Dr. P. W. Patterson, President of Acadia University and Mr. K. A. Wilson of Saint John were the speakers on the local station. Tomorrow, the program will seek to advance the work of every one of its Boards. They face the future with a determination to carry to greater heights all that have been the tasks already undertaken, and are endeavoring to enlist every one of its parents for active Christian service.

The Baptists of the Maritimes are launching a Post-Centennial program which will seek to advance the work of every one of its Boards. WHO... IS CANADA'S No. 1 CITIZEN?

IT IS YOU... OR SHOULD BE.

If you are a No. 1 citizen, you will be doing your share to ward off the menace of inflation facing Canada today.

How? . . . By conservation in your personal finances . . . Here are five ways you can fight inflation:

- Hold on to your Victory Bonds
- Buy only those goods which are in fair supply and save your money for the day when goods now in short supply will be readily available
- Avoid black market purchases
- Keep up your insurance
- Build up your savings account

This is conservation—the first requisite for personal security—the first attribute of good citizenship.

If we all help in all five ways, the threat of inflation—rampant in some other countries and now menacing us—can be beaten and stamped out.

Let us all be No. 1 citizens. Remember, if you are a No. 1 citizen, you will look after No. 1 . . . Save for yourself and you save for Canada.

emotion to override reason for a brief period, "how much you mean to me, always will you remember the things I told you that last night at the lake."

"I remember," Anne said. "You're the only one I ever loved, ever will love Anne."

"But you mustn't say that—yet."

"Why not? What's wrong with my saying it? Tubby, tell me—'re you not, came over to her, looking down into her eyes—you do still care just the same for me, don't you?"

"I . . . I don't know . . ." Anne got up too, almost too quickly. Her heart was thumping so madly that she could not think whether it was because she was unable to decide whether she did or not. She knew she must not let David talk this way again, not while he still was bound to Camilla, with everything so unsettled and indefinite. He had been right; they must get things straightened, settled. They must make sure, once and for all. David must have felt that too. For now he stepped back from her, just as she had been sure he was about to touch her, take her into his arms, perhaps, when she had been afraid he might—or that he might not! "I shouldn't ask you that," he said. "I really shouldn't expect you to have entirely forgiven me. I must go now."

But only if you promise I will come again soon. I'll want to tell you how it works out, after I've talked with Father Payne, and you will let me come again, won't you, Anne?"

"As long as I know you are waiting for me, I'll be glad to go on. I shan't be so miserable. Darling Anne, why do you know I'm almost happy again."

"Of course David was glad of that, oh, very glad. But somehow David's last words continued to ring in her ears. "As long as I know you are waiting here . . ." It had always been like that, David had always been happy as long as she knew she was waiting. Would he be satisfied now, content to go on with another period of waiting, stretching indefinitely ahead, with nothing straightened out or settled, with things in this terrible mood? Was she destined to spend all of her life waiting, waiting, with no recompense, no happiness of her own, no fulfillment? Her questions were answered, in part at least, by the telegram she received that same night from Gil:

Arrive Saturday for showdown. Have invited David and Camilla and you for dinner at Silver Grill. Love will find a way my child Courage and kisses.

The Silver Grill had been redecorated during the summer months and the Saturday night of Giles' dinner party was its full reopening. Every table had been reserved in advance. Giles' conversation was near the dance floor, yet this particular table for four was set in a small alcove that brought a certain amount of privacy.

"It's really frightfully nice of you to give a party for us," Camilla said to Gil in her bored, drawing tone. "Is there any special reason for this anniversary anything of that sort?"

"No special reason," Gil returned with his mocking grin and looked at her eyes. "Except the one you already named. The party is given especially for the four of us. For you and David, Anne and me."

"I understand," Camilla threw Anne a glance from under her miraculously long lashes, "that my husband and your fiancée have had no trouble in getting together lately. David tells me, Anne."

In Memoriam

MARGARET ANN MACDONALD

The death occurred at the home of J. Milton MacDonald of Newbury on Monday July 18th, 1946 of Margaret Ann MacDonald in her 89th year. She had been in failing health for the last six months, but she bore her sickness with great patience and cheerfulness.

She leaves to mourn one daughter, Mrs. J. M. MacDonald, Catherine Rosebury and one sister, Catherine Hurly of the same address. Her son, William Daniel of Quincy, Mass. The pallbearers were Russell Patton, Wm. MacInnis, Hector Morrison, Ernie Morrison, Angus L. MacLean and Percy MacKenzie.

Maritime Baptists Observe Centennial

The year 1946 is one of more than ordinary significance to the Baptist people of the Maritime Provinces, as it marks the 100th anniversary of the first Baptist Convention in Canada to maintain an unbroken existence throughout the entire century. This Centennial year marks the end of a century of achievement and initiates the beginning of a century of adventure in Evangelism, Stewardship, Missions, Religious Education and Social Service.

The Centennial Convention to be held in Wolfville, N.S., from August 28th to Sept. 1st, will fittingly commemorate the past, record the successful completion of the Centennial Program in general which has been promoted during the past seven years, and in particular the successful completion of the Centennial Fund of $125,000.

Inflation, to the citizen, means simply less and less value for his dollar . . . his living costs soar as free and careless spending drives up the price of goods still in short supply. Inflation is no respecter of persons . . . like the rain, its evil falls on the just and the unjust alike.

Thus, Canada's fight against the menace of inflation is your fight . . . the fight of each of our citizens — 12,000,000 strong.
