WANT TO KEEP OPEN SUNDAY. VICTORIA, Sept. 29.—(Special).—The Licensed Victuallers Association is seeking to exact pledges from parliamentary candidates to support a bill allowing the saloons to be opened on Sundays except during church hours.

TENDENCY OF CATARRH IS TO SPREAD. Just a slight matter at first, and because slight, neglected; but the seed brings forth a dangerous harvest. Consumption, which is the harvest of death. Better spend a few moments each day inhaling Catarrhose, an aromatic antiseptic that relieves at once, clears the nasal passages, and restores lost sense of taste and smell. The immediate effect of Catarrhose is magical, so prompt and efficient. Cure is certain and permanent if you use Catarrhose. Price $1. Small size 50c. at Druggists or Poison & Co., Kingston, Ont.

MALPEQUE OYSTERS.

The Valuable Work Done by Toronto and Montreal Professors.

TORONTO, Sept. 23.—Professor Ramsay Wright, of Toronto University, has recently returned from Malpeque, P. E. I., where he has been directing the operations of the scientific station in connection with the Marine and Fisheries Department during the summer months. He states that the work of the station was curtailed by an accident to the laboratory on its way from Canoe to its new site, but that nevertheless a great deal of valuable work was accomplished, especially in relation to the oyster beds for which Malpeque is famous. Prof J. J. Mackenzie of Toronto University; Professor McBride and Dr. Stafford, McGill, Montreal, were also associated in the work, which was greatly facilitated by the fact that the services of the Dominion steamship Ostrea and of the Dominion oyster expert, Mr. E. Kemp, were placed at the disposal of the station for the season.

From Cadet to Admiral.

Particulars have recently been published throwing light upon the service careers of certain youths who entered the "Britannia" in the same term many years ago. Thirty-five of them joined, and of these six reached flag rank, and are now admirals. The proportion of one in five may be regarded as very high, and it would be interesting to have a comparison with the entries and promotion results in other years at intervals. These particular cadets might have done still better, if four of them had not died, and one been murdered, before donning the second stripe. Six of them left the service also in these junior stages and one was discharged, so that only twenty-three entered the running as lieutenants, and of these more than one in four reached flag rank.—Liverpool Post.

Why William Didn't Have One.

The Boss—Isn't it about time you thought about a new overcoat, William? You seem to have had that one for years and years? William (sadly reminiscent)—Yes, sir—I recollect. I bought it on the occasion of my last rise of salary, sir.—Sydney Town and Country Journal.

Canon Lamp Post.

The earlier lamp-posts in London, says "The Magazine of Art," were evolved from the cannon discarded as obsolete or faulty after the Napoleonic wars. These actual service cannon were freely used at Woolwich and probably other garrison towns, as street corner-posts, the bore being plugged with oak to keep out the rain and refuse, the emerging end of the plug being shaped in hemispherical form to represent the muzzle of a cannon-ball. Later on the actual cannon were superseded by imitation iron castings, the half cannon-ball and all. This cannon pattern for corner-posts found its way to London, where it may still be seen in many of our older streets and squares. The unsightly corner-post of the cannon pattern emerged the lamp-post of the period, which is familiar in London to this
