Naval Casualties More Than Other Two Services

By The Canadian Press

Canada's second destroyer loss of the war —the sinking of the Margaree in a North Atlantic collision —raised Royal Canadian Navy casualties since war started to more than the number of casualties reported by the other two branches of Canada's armed services combined.

One hundred and 40 officers and men are missing and believed lost in the sinking of the Margaree Oct. 22, naval service headquarters in Ottawa reported last night. This announcement, together with a single casualty announced last night, raised total Canadian Navy casualties since war started to 213.

Canadian Active Service Force casualties reported since the outbreak of war are 98 dead and missing. The Royal Canadian Air Force losses to date are 73 dead and missing.

Combined, these two services have lost 171 men, dead and missing — 42 less than the navy alone.

Aside from the Margaree sinking, the navy suffered another heavy loss of men in sinking of the Canadian destroyer Fraser in a collision off Bordeaux, France, last June.

The Fraser's commander, Cmdr. R.W.B. Creery, survived the sinking of his ship but the commander of the Margaree, Cmdr. J.W.R. Roy of Ottawa, was lost with his vessel.

He was the first Canadian naval commander to lose his life since war began.

Death toll of the Fraser disaster was reported in the House of Commons at 45.

The 28 other naval casualties reported since the war began included deaths from natural causes and accidents, as well as from enemy action.

Boston Market For Lobsters Has Been Good

The outstanding event of the fortnight, says the latest issue of the Maritime Merchant, was the extension of the season for another week in the Tormentine district to give the fishermen there who suffered so much in the September hurricane a chance to recoup some of their loss. No doubt some of the live lobsters that were swept back into the sea by waves washing up on wharves and breakwaters have been caught again. We had not heard definite reports of the success of the additional week's work, but as many factories had already closed before the gale and as much of the fishermen's gear was destroyed by the hurricane, it is thought the addition to the catch was probably not very large. The season closed on Saturday, so that operations in the lobster industry are now at an end until Dec. 1, when the season on the shore west of Halifax opens again.

As a consequence of the shortage of supplies the Boston market has been very good of late, ruling around 22 to 24 cents, fishermen realizing about 15 to 18 cents after United States premium added and expenses and shrinkage accounted for. For the canning lobsters the fishermen in the Tormentine district received 7 cents, a price 1¾ cents above the government minimum.

Sales of canned lobster continue quite satisfactory, notwithstanding that this season of the year is usually a quiet one. Independent packers as well as those marketing through the government agency, agree that the publicity campaign of the Department of Fisheries has been very effective in stimulating popular interest in the canned article. It is expected the pack will have been entirely taken up before a new season's supply commences to come on the market.

Martin Dies Says Active 5th Column In U. S.

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 27— (AP)—Martin Dies (Dem.-Texas) chairman of the United States congressional committee investigating un-American affairs, declared here today there "is a better organized and more highly-financed fifth column in this country than there were in the countries overrun by Stalin and Hitler."

He spoke before a district convention of the Nebraska state teachers' Association.

In combatting fifth column activities, Dies said, "we must not violate the Bill of Rights, but, on the other hand, we must not permit the Bill of Rights to be used as a shield for traitors. The founding fathers never intended these constitutional safeguards for the citizen to be abused in that way."

Heed The Cry of British Children

The following message is from Norman A. MacKenzie, President of the University of New Brunswick; Chairman of the Canadian Committee of the Save the Children Fund:

"Now that it has been decided, temporarily at least, to abandon the plan for bringing the British children to Canada, it becomes increasingly important, with every air raid, that Canadian support for the children in Britain should be resumed and greatly increased.

The Save the Children Fund, which had its origin in Britain, has for a generation, been caring for the child victims of war and disaster in many lands. Today its chief concern is and must be for the children of Britain itself,—though others will not be forgotten—and every cent that Canadians contribute to it will go direct to London, there to be used by an organization, the Save the Children Fund of Great Britain, that is better equipped than any other, by its purpose and its twenty years of experience in actual work of this kind, to serve the children of Britain today.

Your contributions are urgently needed and should be mailed to Mr. R. J. Dilworth, 588 Huron Street, Toronto, the Honorary Treasurer, and remember every cent that you give goes direct to London. There are no organizational or 'overhead' charges."

NORMAN MacKENZIE,
Chairman

Citizens in Town and Country now have an opportunity to lend a helping hand to the children in Great Britain. Homes are being established outside London, and additional funds are urgently needed. A pamphlet describing the work of the Organization will be gladly mailed on request.

"Down Argentine Way" Greatest Of All Musical Extravaganzas

Masterpiece in Technicolor has Grand Blend of Romance, Laughter And Sparkling Music; Don Ameche, Betty Grable and Carmen Miranda Tops

The biggest musical extravaganza since "Alexander's Ragtime Band" opened yesterday at the Prince Edward Theatre, and in every respect this latest hit from 20th Century-Fox is even better. For "Down Argentine Way" has everything a musical should have—and more, for good measure. Songs—there are eight of them, all with a South American flavor that is definitely appealing. Stars—who could ask for more than a roster headed by Don Ameche, in a new and lively role; Betty Grable, fresh from her triumphant Broadway appearance and the sensational Brazilian star, Carmen Miranda, in her first appearance on the American screen. Produced in Technicolor with actual background shots from that South American dreamland, Buenos Aires, the picture blends Rhumbas, Congas, romance, glamour and laughter into a grand entertainment.

Keyed to the unusual, "Down Argentine Way" is spectacularly unique. The romance between Don Ameche and Betty Grable covers 6,000 miles from the staid atmosphere of Westchester to the alluring Argentine. The story concerns the scion of a wealthy South American family who is sojourning in America for the purpose of selling some of his father's choice horses. But horses become irrelevant when Don Ameche meets beautiful Betty Grable. Despite the fact that enmity exists between Betty's family and his, they fall in love and when Don returns to Buenos Aires, Betty hops a plane and follows him.

The things sought to happen with startling rapidity. It would spoil your enjoyment to divulge the unusual climax, but suffice it to say that it is in keeping with the rest of the superb film.

The grand featured cast includes Charlotte Greenwood, J. Carrol Nash, Henry Stephenson, Katharine Aldridge, Leonid Kinskey and Chris-Pin Martin.

Mack Gordon and Harry Warren created four catchy tunes for the picture: "Two Dreams Met," "Down Argentine Way," "Nenita," and "Sing To Your Senorita," while Carmen Miranda renders, as only she can, "Bamba," "Mamae Eu Quero," "Touradas Elm Madrid" and "South American Way" — the numbers she sang in "Streets of Paris."

"House Of Seven Gables"

Nathaniel Hawthorne's famous novel, "The House of the Seven Gables," has at last reached the movies. The screen dramatization of the immortal classic, filmed by Universal Studios, opened yesterday at the Capitol Theatre.

Contrary to general belief, this powerful novel of early nineteenth century New England has never before been filmed.

Few changes have been made in the original plot. The screenplay preserves the mystery and menace of the ill-fated, seven-gabled structure visioned by Hawthorne and peopled with the Puncheon family living under the scaffold-flung curse of the long-dead Matthew Maule, executed for practicing witchcraft.

Role Is Exacting

Margaret Lindsay is seen in the role of Hepzibah, first as a girl of eighteen and, in the later episodes of the story, as the stern, tight-lipped, forbidding recluse in the gloomy house while she awaits the release of her imprisoned lover, Clifford, played by Vincent Price. George Sanders is seen as Clifford's brother on whom the curse of the Maules descends, while Nan Grey portrays Phoebe who brings light and happiness to the Puncheons and who dissolves the curse that has blighted generations of the family.

Under the direction of Joe May, story progression and action move at a lively pace and he has enhanced the dramatic elements of the story with well chosen photographic angles. The camera work, by Milton Krasner, is excellent.

RELIEVE SUFFERING QUICKLY WITH KELLOGG'S ASTHMA RELIEF K65

Interpreting The War News

By Kirke L. Simpson
Associated Press Staff Writer

The first Italian participation in the bombing of Great Britain comes so late in that tragic struggle that its significance is not yet clear. It could be either encouraging or menacing for Britain, and the chances are that it is the former.

Had the Italian bombers joined with the Nazi air force in the assault on Britain months or even weeks ago, it would have had a grim meaning for defenders of the island. It was fully expected and would have been taken to mean that the axis partners intended to stake everything on the air attack in an attempt to achieve quick victory.

The belated appearance over England of Italian planes, announced from Berlin and Rome, could still mean that. It also could mean, however, that some question of Italian public morale required a token participation in the air struggle at this time. If so, it would encourage rather than dismay Britons.

Long-distance British bombers have been crossing the Alps occasionally to rasp Italian nerves. That is about as close as the war has yet come to Italy, except for minor sea clashes and the campaign in Egypt.

Italian counter bombing over Britain would have distinct homefront propaganda values for Mussolini. It may be designed not only to answer British raids on Northern Italy, but also to imbue Italians with new confidence in Fascist air power which in four months has signally failed to blow the British forces out of the eastern Mediterranean or Egypt.

Word of Italian participation in the great air battle comes, also, amid axis efforts to harness conquered France and uncertain, if friendly, Spain to the Hitler-Mussolini war chariot. The supposed military objective is to quicken the war on the southern front.

Indian war spoons and the New Zealand native idea of making terrific faces are among old devices for intimidating a foe.

Cardigan Head And Vicinity

The people of this vicinity wish to extend to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gill and family, Elliotvale, their deepest sympathy in their recent sad bereavement on the death of a loving son and brother, Sapr. Leo Augustine who passed away after a short illness while serving His Majesty, somewhere in England.

Mr. Jack McAulay, Cardigan Head has accepted a position with the P.E.I. Telephone Company in Charlottetown.

A very pretty wedding took place on Wednesday morning October 16, 1940, at St. Cuthbert's Church, St. Teresa, when Mary Catherine Carter, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P.J. Carter, 48 Road, became the bride of Raymond Duncan Carmichael, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Carmichael, Elliotvale. To the strains of the Wedding March played by Miss Mayme Cameron, the bride entered the church leaning on the arm of her father, who gave her away. The bride looked very winsome in a floor length dress of white embroidered lace, and tulle veil with a halo of orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations with maiden hair fern. She was attended by her sister Lily who also wore a floor length dress of pink taffeta with blue velvet trimmings, and carried a bouquet of mixed flowers. The groom was ably supported by his brother, Mr. John Carmichael. The church was prettily decorated with autumn flowers and potted plants, while the ceremony was performed under an arch festooned with wedding bell and pink and white streamers. Nuptial Mass was performed by Rev. Fr. Basil Croken, pastor, appropriate hymns being sung by the Children of Mary Choir led by Miss Cameron during the services. After the ceremony a delicious breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents to immediate relatives and friends, also Rev. Fr. Michael Rooney, Cardigan and Rev. Fr. Peter Sullivan, Alberton. The usual toasts were made to the bride to which the groom responded. After which the wedding party left on a short motor trip, the bride's travelling clothes were a biege coat with fox fur and blue accessories. The groom's gift to the bride was a gold locket, the bride's gift to the groom, a combination silver cigarette case and lighter, and the bride and groom's gift to the bridesmaid a compact also the groom's gift to the best man a safety razor. In the evening the wedding party returned to the home of the groom's parents, where a marvellous supper, was served to a large number of relatives and friends, after which a pleasant evening was spent in music, songs and dancing. The many beautiful and useful gifts received tends to prove the popularity and high esteem of this happy young couple.

Senator J. A. McDonald, Cardigan was a visitor to the city during the latter part of the week.

Miss Mary McDonald, Cardigan, motored to Summerside on Sunday.

Baldwin's Road School has reopened after the usual two-weeks' fall vacation, under the capable management of Miss Mary McGillivary of Tracadie.

Mr. Phillip McInnis, City, potato inspector has been engaged at Cardigan for the past week.

On Sunday evening October 18th the members of the Children of Mary Society of St. Teresa, tendered a surprise party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Carter, 48 Road, for their daughter Mary Catherine in honor of her forthcoming marriage, and presented her with a beautiful dressing gown. An address was read by Miss Bernadette McDonald, Peakes, and the presentation made by Miss Agnes Bradley, St. Teresa.

The season's first fall of snow in this province started on Sunday night. The large flakes which fell, melted almost immediately, but on Monday evening the ground was completely covered white, making the roads very dangerous for motorists. This snowfall also caught a number of farmers napping and stealthy laid a firm covering over their potato fields making it impossible for them to continue their digging. —L.
