CHRONIC ECZEMA

CURED BY CUTICURA

I was troubled several years with chronic eczema on my head and face. I took medical treatment from two doctors and several lotions, but received little relief. At times, the dreadful itching became almost intolerable. When I was treated, the eczema became painful, and almost distracted me. I tried CUTICURA REMEDY. The eczema rapidly disappeared, and I am well, with no trace of my obstinate disease. J. EMMETT REEVES, Feb. 22, 1898. Box 125, Thorntown, Ind.

CHARLOTTETOWN BOY

Thomas D. McLeod, Son of Charles McLeod and Nephew of Hector McLeod of the P. E. I. Railway Meets His Death at Santiago.

(BOSTON POST, AUG 14th)
Another Boston boy has passed away. A telegram was received yesterday announcing the death of Corporal Thomas D. McLeod of Company B of the Ninth Massachusetts Volunteers, who died late Friday night at the Governor's Island port hospital from typhoid contracted at Santiago. He had been sent north on the Concho, but continued to fail until Friday evening.
—He left Boston on May 11, hale and hearty, expecting to return soon. Ten minutes before he left Boston he had been married to Miss Johnson of Rogers street, South Boston, his sweetheart for three years. All the time he was away his letters to his bride indicated he was well; and it was only when the Post published the list of sick and wounded Massachusetts men at Long Island that she knew of his illness. She immediately made application to the Volunteer Aid Association for transportation to her husband. She was ready to go yesterday noon, and then the news was given her that it was then too late. She is now prostrated with grief.

Corporal McLeod was born at Charlottetown, P. E. I., June 26, 1877. At the age of 6 he came with his parents to Boston and had lived in South Boston since. He attended the Andrews Grammar School there and graduated from it well in his class in 1892. Then he entered mercantile life, being employed in several places, at the last place holding the position of shipper in a large leather firm.
He was a thorough business man. He joined the Massachusetts militia four years ago, entering Company B of the Ninth. He was an attentive soldier, taking particular interest in drill. Soon he was made corporal. When war broke out he determined to go to the front immediately; he felt he would see plenty of fighting and come back all right. He was a tall, athletic man, and was never ill in his life. In his company he was quite popular; his pleasant, easy manners making friends with the men easily. In Washington Village he was a well-known figure and universally respected. His father, Mr. Charles McLeod, has made arrangements to have the body brought to Boston for interment.

(BOSTON GLOBE, Aug. 16th.)
Funeral services over the remains of Corp T. D. McLeod of Co. B, 9th Massachusetts volunteers, who died in the marine hospital of Governor's Island, New York harbor, last Friday morning, were held yesterday afternoon at the home of his young wife, 372 Dorchester st., South Boston.

The services were to have commenced at 2.30, but there was considerable delay owing to the fact that a detail from the 5th regiment was to have attended the funeral, and there was a wait until long after 3, but no detail arrived.

The services were conducted by Rev. E. J. Helms of the Morgan chapel on Shawmut av. which house of worship young McLeod frequently attended. There was a large gathering of relatives and friends.

"We Never say Goodbye in Heaven" and "Nearer My God, to Thee" were sung by Misses Grace Full and Josie Roiland.

A brief yet touching eulogy was delivered by Rev. Mr. Helms, who dwelt upon the life of the young man, which he said could well serve as a model for many young men. He spoke of the sacrifices made by our soldiers, young and old, who left their homes and families and went to the front to uphold the honor of our country, and said that the people should ever be grateful for what they did and what they endured.

"I well remember," said the minister, "this young man's last visit to me. He came up to me just after meeting one Sunday and told me that he was going to the front with his regiment, and that he knew full well that there were chances of his not coming back. He asked me to give him a small Bible that he might carry it with him during the war. My heart was filled with thanksgiving at this request, and I readily granted it, saying to young McLeod 'Will you promise me that you will read one chapter every day,' to which he quickly responded that he would."

There were many handsome floral tributes, among them a large bunch of choice flowers from the "Mother's meet" of the Morgan chapel, bunches of flowers from his wife, his father and his cousins and a large plaque from 15 of the companions of the young man.

Shortly after 4 the expected military escort not having arrived the funeral cortege proceeded to Mt. Hope cemetery, where the interment took place.

CUBANS MUST DISBAND

Archbishop Ireland Looking After Church Interests—Porto Rico's New Tariff—Anglo-American Goodwill.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—[Special]—A Guatemala cable announced the dramatic death of General Morales, leader of the revolution and the collapse of the uprising.

Oroona was occupied on the 10th by the government forces. Morales retreated to Cusamades Mountains, where he was surrounded and captured. On Thursday Morales was ordered removed to San Marcos, but his constitution was completely broken by deprivation and he died before reaching that place.

Orders were given today for the return of several regiments to their respective homes.

Archbishop Ireland had an interview today with the President in reference to protection of the interests of the church of Rome in the new territorial accessions especially Porto Rico.

The tariff rates for Porto Rico were promulgated today. The rates are the Spanish minimum rate here to fore enforced on the island.

New York, Aug. 19.—[Special]—The Times Washington special says there has been a conference between representatives of the Cubans and officials of the United States relative to what would be done with the Cubans. The representatives were told the best the Cubans could do was to advise the men in arms to disband, retire to their homes and engage in peaceful pursuits.

The Cuban Junta, it is said, will send emissaries to try and persuade the Cuban leaders that resistance to the United States would result in further distress in Cuba.

SANTIAGO, Aug. 19.—[Special]—The National Conference on foreign affairs of the United States opened today. Henry Wade Rogers of Chicago in the opening address, after reference to the peace now proclaimed, referred to the close friendship between Americans and British which would promptly lead to international arbitration and finally to universal peace.
