FAREWELL

Rev. T. F. Fullerton Presented With a Purse

BY HIS CONGREGATION

Evidence of Loyalty to Their Pastor Who Leaves This Morning.

On Thursday it became definitely settled that Rev. T. F. Fullerton had accepted the position of Protestant Chaplain to the Canadian Contingent, and in view of that fact a meeting was held in St. James' Church last evening to bid farewell to the esteemed pastor and wish him God's speed and a safe return.

By 8 o'clock every seat was occupied and people stood in the aisles and doorway eager to hear Mr. Fullerton's last words prior to his departure.

Mr. A. Kennedy presided over the meeting and in a few well chosen remarks made known the object to the evening.

He then called upon the committee which consisted of Stipendiary Haszard, W. A. Stewart and A. E. Morrison to come forward and make the presentation. Mr. Morrison then presented Mr. Fullerton with a purse of $400 dollars in gold. Mr. Kennedy thanked the donors for their liberality, and Mr. Stewart stated that with the exception of about half a dozen personal friends, the purse was made up among the congregation, and added that had the citizens been asked to donate there is no knowing the amount that could have been secured.

The chairman then introduced Mr. F. L. Haszard who delivered the address of the evening. Mr. Haszard said that he had been asked to join the committee in the capacity of a person outside of the congregation. He was proud that Mr. Fullerton had been called upon to go to the front, but regretted the loss the city would sustain in his departure. He had heard Mr. Fullerton's regret on Monday evening in the Opera House that he was not permitted to go with contingent to the front. On the same evening a number of other gentlemen expressed themselves in the same way, but some of them were like himself—they knew it was safe to speak in that manner. To-morrow Mr. Fullerton goes to carry out the wish of that hour and to serve his country. He had met the Rev. gentleman on many occasions and found that he had an opinion of his own and did not hesitate to express it. If we always express our feelings we would, in many instances, forfeit our friends. Mr. Fullerton has always expressed himself fearlessly and has done good by it. His selection out of the whole of Canada as chaplain to the Canadian Regiment is an honor to this congregation and an honor to the province. As a citizen outside of the congregation he wished to express his deep sense of sorrow at his removal and he was sure that he would do credit to himself and to Prince Edward Island in his office on the battle field. He hoped that he would return safe to the bosom of his family and to the pastoral charge of this congregation.

When Mr. Fullerton arose he was greeted with rounds of applause and it was some seconds before he was permitted to speak. It was apparent that he was much impressed and found it difficult to conceal his emotion. He said that he found himself inadequate to express the feelings of his heart and he did not think he deserved the praise that was being bestowed upon him. He had said some severe things, but he had never done so out of malice. If he got his deserts it would not be manifested in a demonstration as on this occasion. It is a consolation to know that those who he would leave behind, would have the loving sympathy of so many friends. The loyal company that left our shores a few days ago will be glad to see the little Scotch parson and as he was something of a sailor, perhaps he would be permitted to act as nurse on the voyage. He thanked them one and all for the kind expressions of the evening and if he never stood on this platform again he never would be able to blot out the memory of tonight.

At the conclusion of Mr. Fullerton's address, Mr. McPherson made a short speech.

Then Mr. Fullerton took leave of his congregation by shaking hands with the (continued on 8th page.)
