The Great Eastern TEA PARTY

At St. Peter's Bay, Tuesday, July 15th, 1913

The parishoners of St. Peter's send hearty greetings to their hosts of friends and well-wishers throughout the Province, and cordially invite them all to the

to be held at St. Peter's on Tuesday the 15th day of July.

In issuing this general invitation they confidently promise that their GREAT EASTERN TEA PARTY will afford both young and old, a most delightful holiday and outing, in one of the beauty spots of this beautiful Island.

St. Peter's with its magnificent Bay, and attractive surroundings, is unquestionably a very dreamland of beauty in mid-summer, and, at that season, would well repay a visit under any circumstances. But on Tuesday July 15th, it will offer the added attractions of a great assemblage of people, cheap excursion rates by trains, pleasant and varied amusements, and a bill of fare in every department that cannot fail to please the most exacting taste.

The Tea-party will be held on splendid grounds in close proximity to the beautiful Catholic Church, and within a stones throw of the unrivalled Bay with it's shimmering expanse of waters.

Should Tuesday, the 15th July, prove unfavorable the tea-party will be held Thursday, 17th or the first fine day following.

Special trains will be run from Summerside, Charlottetown, Elmira, and all intermediate points, according to schedule printed below, which will also be found in our big YELLOW POSTER.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JULY 13.

MOSES PREPARED FOR HIS WORK.

Ex. 2: 11-25.

GOLDEN TEXT.

"Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth."—Matt. 5: 5.

POINTED SUGGESTIONS.
By Rev. D. W. Snider.

The demands of the moral nature run deeper and reach farther than the prejudices of racial instinct. Many find it easier to act in harmony with their prejudices, and the more so if they are begotten of blood inheritance, but Moses made choice to follow the guidance of conscience and to walk by faith. You cannot settle the choice of Moses upon the basis of racial instinct.

He separated himself from that offensive, but all too common, class of persons known as parasites or sycophants; poor courtiers who hang upon the skirts of the rich or officially great, and too poor and truckling to acknowledge the acquaintance of any others. God made Moses too big for that, and He did not permit court life to reduce him to so low a level.

And he had good hot blood in his veins. He was quick to judge and quick to act and dared to face the consequences. It is well to take notice of the strong, fighting qualities in the character of Moses. It is only in such soil that the Christian grace of meekness can take sufficient root that as a plant of righteousness it can come to flower. Meekness does not mean a juiceless acquiessence with the Divine or any other will.

Show your authority. "Who made thee a ruler?" etc. That is a proper question and a rightful demand. A man walked into an Ontario post office and walked out with a book of blank money orders because the postmaster did not insist on the showing of his authority as an inspector. The man was an impostor. Moses could not show his papers, while he could show some qualifications, and he took a walk out to Midian. His parchment was made ready there.

Genuine courtesy is bedded in courage If genuflections and the demands of social etiquette, which vary so much with time and circumstance and country, were all there is in courtesy, then a little training in calisthenics while smiling in the looking glass might answer to give a polished veneer to politeness. But the courtesy of Moses went as deep as his courage. It was not veneer. In him the polite defence of the weak was essential character.

There is suggestive interest in the story of Moses and how he "met his fate" in the home of Jetho,, priest of Midian. Many a chap may well wonder why he cannot secure a certain man as his father-in-law. Fathers like Jethro can see without glasses those who are worthy. And the daughters of men like Jethro will not marry without their father's consent. The priest of Midian saw the right stuff in Moses.

Opportunities come to men in a variety of ways. They often come through the death of others. That is no reason why one should be useless until some one dies. God is not looking for Micawbers. But He knows where those in training are, like Moses, and when the time is ripe the world is made conscious of the divinely appointed leader; its Luther and Wesley, its Cromwell and Lincoln.

Let the lesson teach this fact with deep impressiveness, namely, that the cry of the oppressed never fails to reach to God. And more impressive still, God is always on the side of the oppresses. The history of the world stands to the proof and the word of the Lord stands to the pledge. The relief of the oppressed is the credential of the ministry of Jesus.

What yoke is upon you? What is the measure and what the character of your bondage? Some have come under the yoke of mammon, or the yoke of evil habit, or the yoke of guilt. No matter how it came about, Jesus Christ will set you free. Matt 11: 28-30.

MOSES CALLED TO DELIVER ISREAL.

Exodus 3: 1-14.

GOLDEN TEXT.

Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God."—Matt, 5: 8

POINTED SUGGESTIONS

By Rev. D. W. Sinder.

The faithful performance of the task which is at hand, however humble it may be, is the best commendation and most likely to be the open way for the higher service and duty which is calling for its men of destiny. The lives of the great leaders of history give ample illustration of this and give witness to these axiomatic statements: He that is faithful in that which is least is faithful also in much"; "whosoever hath, to him shall be given."

Solitude is the most effective school for the development of the character of those whose service is to be signally public, impressive, humbling, enriching solitude, where God is felt. The serrated, grooved and rugged grandeur of the hills of Horeb, with their red, rocky peaks and spire-like summits, became to Moses the School of the infinite. Noble natures come into tune with God in such surroundings.

None are fitted to be the leaders of the people of God who are not reverential with the consciousness of the nearness of God. The first and last and most important qualification for Christian leadership is reversed. Possibly there is nothing our age needs more than that preachers and people, teachers and scholars should act under "the hush of God."

An interesting and profitable Biblical study is the tracing of the revealing of the presence of God in the Shekinah light, the light that dwelt between the cherubim. Trace it from the flaming sword which guarded the way to the tree of life to the cloven tongues like as of fire which sat upon the heads of the partakers of Pentecost. It was, doubtless, the fire which burnedbut did not consume the bush which Moses turned aside to see.

God is the witnesser of sorrow, of the unjust affliction and damnable oppressions of mankind. Make no mistake about it. The agitator who froths at the mouth telling of the woes of his fellows, as though God had resigned His seat and gone out of the world, impiously forgets this. It is not for the Christian man to forget it. As surely as the Lord knew the cause, instrument, purpose and result of the sorrows of Isreal in Egypt, in like manner He fully knows from A to Z the wrongs, social political, industrial and religious of today and has His Moses in training.

Anchestral worship has no defence but the worship of the God of one's ancestors has splendid justification in the appeal of the Almighty to Moses to trust him as the God of his father, and of Abraham, and of Isaac, and of Jacob. Did your parents worship God? Every man must show cause when he abandons the worship of the God of his fathers.

Those who are best fitted to become the leaders of others and not often, if ever, those who recognize in themselves the qualities for such leadership. The chief qualifications for leadership is the willingness to be led.

Wonderful and awe-inspiring is the revelation which God makes of Himself to Moses by way of telling him who he is, "I am that I am," "I am hath sent you." Over such a statement and under the light which admits of no shadow, of such a name let your spirit ponder and adore. Better still, trust and love,

What ever burns and is never destroyed? What cannot be consumed though racing fires are kindled beneath? Spell it, T-R-U-T-H.

Wherever the eternal God would have us go, whatever the eternal God would have us do against whatever Pharaoh, for the righting of whatever wrong, let us go and let us do. "To doubt would be disloyalty, to falter would be sin."

IN MEMORIAM

From Yesterday's Evening Guardian]
MR. ALFRED PHILLIPS.

A deep gloom, and sense of sadness, such as is seldom felt, was spread over a large community, and on every hand were heard expressions of sorrow and sympathy, when it was known that Alfred Phillips an honorable and highly respected resident of Arlington Lot '14, had passed to the Great Beyond. Only two short weeks ago, hearty, vigorous, and in the prime of life, he was taken ill with a very severe attack of pneumonia, still for some days good hopes were entertained for his recovery, but suddenly a change for the worse took place and in spite of medical skill, the attendance of trained nurses, and the loving ministrations of his family the end came on Saturday morning, July 5th. The deceased, a son of the late William Phillips, was born at Arlington, Lot 14, on March 22nd 1858, and resided on the old homestead until his death. He married Miss Sarah Gordon, daughter of the late John Gordon of Huntley, by whom he is survived. He also leaves four children to mourn the loss of of a kind father's loving guidance and care, the eldest Miss Mildred, a book keeper, in the employ of Rogers & Co, Alberton; a son William, just now on the threshold of young manhood, and two little daughters Mary and Isabel. Also two sisters, Mrs. James Millar, of Port Hill and Miss Emily of Worcester, Mass., who keenly feel the loss of an only, and, loved brother. The life of the departed is deserving of more than passing notice, It could be said of him, that he had not an enemy in the community in which he lived. A most enthusiastic worker in the Church and all matters that were for the betterment of mankind. Diligent and prosperous in his chosen occupation, yet, never so busy that his seat was vacant, at a prayer meeting, or any special meeting of the church where his presence was required. Having a thorough understanding of music, for many years he gave instruction in vocal music in various sections of Western part of the Island and for upwards of fifteen years was leader of the choir of the Presbyterian Church, Tyne Valley—the members of which now feel that a gap has been made in their ranks which never can be filled and when we ponder on these things, we with our narrow visions, cannot understand why such a life of usefulness should sundenly be cut off—but surely the God whom he served so faithfully knoweth what is best and had some wise purpose, in dealing so sad a blow on the home and community and to Him alone can the mourners look for consolation in their sore bereavement. The floral tributes were very beautiful among which might be mentioned "A broken Circle" of white roses and maiden-hair fern, sent by the members of the choir of Tyne Valley Presbyterian Church.

The burial service was conducted by Rev T. A. Wilson of Tyne Valley assisted by evangelist McKay of Lot 14. A procession of upwards of one hundred and thirty carriages, containing sorrowing friends and neighbor's. Eager to pay a last tribute of respect to the Dead, followed the remains to their last resting-place in the Presbyterian Cemetry Lot 14. where all that was mortal was laid away to await the Resurection call.

MRS. WM. O. GRANT.

The death occurred in Portland, Oregon, on June 9th. 1913 after a brief illness, of Myra E. Grant, beloved wife of Mr. Wm. O. Grant. Mrs. Grant was formerly Miss Hyde, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Artemas Hyde of Clyde River.

AMERICANS CONCLUDE TOUR.

BERLIN, July 9—Expressing themselves as well satisfied with the results of their month's tour of industrial Germany and more than satisfied with the warm cordiality with which they have been received everywhere, the members of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers who arrived at Hamburg on June 10 concluded their tour today at Munich. While the official itinerary of the trip is ended many of the American visitors will remain on the continent for some time longer. Others are planning to sail for New York at the end of the week.
