Constance BENNETT in a story of the world, the flesh and the movies. WHAT PRICE HOLLYWOOD Short Subjects LOWELL SHERMAN NEIL HAMILTON GREGORY RATOFF

Colbert And Lowe At Capitol

A he-man duped into a proposal and scorned; an abducted beauty given retributive "taming" treatment by the jilted swain; a lunatic mad and amusing by turns, and loose in a hunters' arsenal chosen by the lovers for a hideaway, ought to give Capitol Theatre patrons all the excitement, laughs and romance that can be covered by the price of an admission ticket anywhere.

The World Behind The Screen Disclosed In "What Price Hollywood"

A vivid vignette of Hollywood and its environs, replete with the glamour and striking color of the "nation's most picturesque city," is authentically presented in RKO Pathé's new Constance Bennett starrer which opened at the Prince Edward Theatre yesterday.

FATHER OF 9 ADOPTS FOUR, WIFE SUES

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Oct. 3.—The father of nine children brought marital discord to his home when he adopted four more and today his wife was suing for separation before he fulfilled his plan to adopt 20 additional children.

Mrs. Stella H. Holden, charged in her suit that her husband, a descendant of Roger Williams, believed in two things, big families and Spartan simplicity. For years, she said, Holden subsisted almost entirely upon prunes, wheat biscuits and milk and sought to impose that diet upon his family.

BEDEQUE

The very interesting news has been recently received by friends in North Bedeque, of a quiet but pretty wedding which was solemnized at the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Armstrong, Thirteenth street, Port Huron, when her daughter, Miss Lorraine Elizabeth Armstrong, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony, to Mr. Claude M. Kelly, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Kelly of Lakeview Beach, Michigan, (former residents of North Bedeque, having gone to Michigan some six years ago, and have resided there for a number of years). The nuptial vows were spoken before a beautiful background of palms and autumn flowers, decorations over the fireplace. The bride, was given in marriage by her brother, Nelson W. Armstrong, of St. Clair, and was charmingly gowned in a robe of white satin of floor length, made on snug fitting lines with long sleeves. She wore a veil and carried a shower bouquet of tea rose and baby's breath. The bride was attended by her sister Mrs. Marvin Carter, who was prettily dressed in pale blue satin, also of floor length and carried a bouquet of roses. Mr. Whyman Kelly, brother of the bridegroom, ably supported the groom. The flower girl, little Miss Frances Willing, was daintily dressed in pink and carried a basket of flowers. Rev. G. M. Wood, pastor of the Gratiot Park Methodist Episcopal Church, Mrs. Emily Ryan, dressed in pale blue, rendered the wedding music very effectively. A wedding luncheon was served in the bride's home, at a table attractive with bridal appointments and a beautiful wedding cake, adorned the bride's table. Later a reception was held at which some forty guests were entertained. Among the guests were, Mr. and Mrs. John G.

The old saw-mill at Centreville Bedeque, has been going under a very careful renovation these last few weeks. Several carpenters and workmen have been engaged in putting in new cement posts, and other cement necessities together with a general renovation of the mill, which has not been used for several years. Mr. Harold Wright former manager, taking up his residence in Halifax, N. S. They expect to have the mill in working operation in about two weeks time. It is reported that Mr. Anthony DeRoche, former helper in the Central Bedeque saw-mill will be the capable manager. Since the closing down of this mill, the people have had to haul their lumber to Leard's Mill, Central Bedeque (formerly known as Wright's Mill) which is somewhat farther away. It is always interesting to note that the mills are opening up instead of closing down.—B.
