CAPITOL
SUMMERSIDE

"H. M. Pulham, Esq." At Capitol Theatre, Summerside

Directed by King Vidor, with Hedy Lamarr, Robert Young and Ruth Hussey offering topnotch portrayals, M-G-M's filmization of "H. M. Pulham, Esq.," came to the Capitol Theatre yesterday.

The picture faithfully follows the story of the young Bostonian who seeks to escape the mound of tradition in which he is cast, finds the one great love of his life, then is forced back to the convetions of his class. He marries the woman his family had chosen for him, then, at middle age, discovers that he cannot recapture the romance of his lost youth.

Perhaps one of the greatest surprises of the production is the casting of the glamorous Hedy Lamarr as the cool, disciplined business girl, Marvin Myles. Not even the abandonment of her "glamour bob" or the addition of glasses can rob Miss Lamarr of her spectacular looks, but in this role she proves herself an actress first and a charmer last.

Ages Twenty Years

Young handles the title role expertly,even to the difficult job of aging twenty years, and Ruth Hussey gives an accurate and sympathetic portrayal of Kay Motford, the Boston girl who has no use for frivolities but makes every effort to make Harry Pulham a "good wife."

In the supporting cast are such well-known players as Charles Coburn, as Pulham, Sr., Van Heflin as Bill King, Fay Holden as Mrs. Pulham, Bonita Granville as Mary, Douglas Wood, Charles Halton and Leif Erikson.

Recommend War Memorial Fund

MONTREAL, June 1—(CP)—Delegates to the annual meeting of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire heard today a recommendation for the establishment of a "new" $500,000 war memorial fund, to provide bursaries and overseas post-graduate scholarships for sons and daughters of ex-servicemen and women of the second great war.

The fund, which would be patterned after a similar fund set up after the first great war, would "pay permanent tribute to the service and sacrifice of Canadian men and women in this war."

A notice of motion on the new fund was read by Mrs. J. D. Detwiler of London, Ont., convener of the first great war fund. A copy of the notice will be sent to each of the 900 I.O.D.E. chapters across Canada pending action at the national chapter's next annual meeting.

The notice called for the annual award in each province of a post-graduate scholarship for overseas study and a bursary to be held in a Canadian university, with preference to be given to the son or daughter of an ex-serviceman or woman of the present conflict.

The War Memorial committee recommended that overseas post-graduate scholarships be not awarded this fall due to war conditions. However the committee suggested that all scholarships held over last year because of the war be held again for one year, providing the recipients still are eligible.

Americans Are

Calais where the sound of gunfire could be heard. Nine British planes were lost and two German machines shot down during today's operations.

The forthcoming part of the United States in the aerial offensive, which might outweigh even the deluge of 6,000,000 pounds of explosives the R.A.F. loosed over Cologne was drawn in plain words by Gen. Arnold.

He said his conferences in London, now nearly completed, had hastened the day when our air arm shall "join in an air offensive against the enemy which he cannot meet, defeat or survive."

Replying to Arnold's congratulations on the Cologne raid, Air Marshal A. T. Harris, chief of the R. A. F. bomber command, said, "we are supremely confident that with their aid our common enemies—faced with certain destruction of their own land—will have cause to bitterly rue the day on which they forced our two countries into war.

Harris said that time was "now so near," and Arnold predicted that the hour of joining offensive would be at hand "very soon."

Press Hails Statement

The Evening Standard hailed the statement with a headline saying: "U.S. to join soon in devastation of Germany."

"Air knockout—by U. S. chief" was the Evening News banner.

Informed air observers, noting that three-fourths of Cologne was left ablaze under a three-mile-high pall of smoke, said it would take months to put the great war manufacturing centre back into working order.

One authoritative source said Marshal Goering had put Heinrich Himmler, chief of the Gestapo, in control on air raid precaution services throughout Germany as a result of the raid, thus broadening police control.

"Not A Thing Left" Texan Airman Says

(By Drew Middleton, Associated Press Staff Writer)

WITH THE R. A. F. BOMBER COMMAND, June 1—(AP)—. . . "Listen brother, there's not a damned thing left in Cologne."

It was a 21-year-old Texan, Bud Cardinal of Fort Worth, speaking and Bud ought to know, for he was one of the first R. A. F. airmen to fly over the now-ruined German Rhineland city in Saturday night's 1,250-plane raid.

"You had to line up as though it was a movie," he elaborated. "We went in plane by plane and when the boys really got swinging you couldn't see the explosions of the bombs because the fire down there was so big."

Bud, who came out of Texas to join what he called "the Royal Texas Air Force" in Canada, was among the 6,000-odd English, Scottish, Australian, Canadian and Barbadoes airmen who wheeled the big bombers over Cologne and its industrial environs.

Bridge Destroyed?

Jock, a 19-year-old Scottish veteran—Cologne was his 18th big raid—said the huge Hohenzollern bridge across the Rhine "must have been blown to bits; nothing could stand in what we gave them."

Cardinal took this correspondent over to meet Leonard Johnson, 28, of Corpus Christi, another "Royal Texas" airman—but a disappointed one.

Even before introductions, Johnson said sourly: "Don't ask me, I never reached Cologne. One of my motors conked out and I had to turn back. A hell of a note; I've been over five times on big raids but I missed the brass ring."

British Are Good

Both Cardinal and Johnson agreed that "the British are good."

"They get you down some time because they're so anxious to be correct," said Johnson. "But after the way they organized this raid and carried it out, I take off my hat to them."

"They got guts too," Cardinal put in. "Though they don't go around hollering about it.

"A kid in my plane got a machine-gun bullet through his leg Saturday night. We didn't know about it until he collapsed getting out of the plane.

"The British learned this business the hard way and the right way. And say, these mass raids are the thing.

"Those Krauts didn't know what to do the other night. Fighters and flaks all fired wild. If we keep rollin' and our air force comes in we'll end this war sooner than you think."

BEFORE-THE-WAR MATCHES

LONDON—(CP) —It's taking a long time to use up enemy-made goods imported into Britain before the war. A box of matches sold recently in Bloomsbury bore the inscription, "Help the Italian Benevolent Society."

Stresses Value Of Air Training Corps

OTTAWA, June 1 — "The Air Training Corps in Great Britain has indeed an enviable record—a real goal for young members of the Air Cadet League of Canada to aim at," said Hon. C. G. Power, Minister of National Defense for Air in a broadcast yesterday.

"It seems almost incredible, however, that it will be just a year ago on June second since the Air Cadet League of Canada came into being. Since that time, and mainly due to the unwavering efforts and zeal of public-spirited citizens, the League has been built up until today it now comprises one hundred and thirty-three squadrons of Canadian boys between fifteen and eighteen years of age. We can feel a deep measure of pride in that knowledge, for it means that well over fifteen thousand boys, spread across the nine provinces of this Dominion, are contributing a very vital part to Canada's war effort.

"Already practically one hundred young graduates of the Air Cadet training plan are making history with the Royal Canadian Air Force here and abroad. That, of course, is one of the primary ideas behind the Air Cadet movement—to provide a short cut to actual flying training, paralleling as it does the initial training of air force trainees.

"I would like you to realize that the Air Cadet League is not to be considered just child's play. It is of tremendous importance to our winning the war. This is a young man's war. This is an airman's war. We have to have young men and we have to have them trained.... just as quickly as possible. We look to the Air Cadet League as our reservoir. It is living, vital....not a showpiece. What is more, it is providing thousands of boys with knowledge and training that will make them invaluable in the days when the world's skies will be filled with wings of peace.

"Early this year the Royal Canadian Air Force assumed all the details of administration and training as well as provision of equipment for Air Cadet Units and this policy was ratified by the League on March 30th, 1942. In line with this plan, during July thousands of Air Cadets will receive a week's actual camp training with the R.C.A.F. Furthermore, in June, instructors and officers of the League will take a special two weeks' course with the senior organization.

Germans Concentrate Tanks In Southwest

Each Side Digs in on New Lines in Crimea And Ukraine.

(By HENRY C. CASSIDY)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

MOSCOW, June 1—(AP)—Each side dug in on its new lines in the Crimea and the Ukraine and prepared for a possibe outbreak of even greater battles on the southern front today as dispatches from that theatre reported inaction for the first time in three weeks.

The midnight communique said there was no essential change in positions anywhere on the front during the day.

It listed 432 German planes destroyed in the week ending May 30, against 134 Russian losses for the period.

In something resembling a standoff, the Russians about Kharkov were holding on to the wedges they had driven into the German lines and to a bridgehead across an important river where they had brought the German counter-attack to a stop after their own drive had slowed down.

As their part of the fruits of the first flurry of the 1942 spring campaign, the Germans now held all of Kerch Peninsula.

As an indication of the latent force in the area, a Pravda correspondent said Soviet reconnaissance had discovered that one German armored column, which wound through a city and reached on to the horizon ,was moving toward the front.

The correspondent did not make clear, however, whether these were fresh forces or troops which had moved up in the course of the battle. He said Soviet aviation in three days destroyed 50 of the tanks.

Local activity over the week-end northwest of Moscow on the so-called Kalinin front, where the Germans moved up reinforcement and the Russians attacked, suggested to observers that the next great burst of spring fighting might come in that sector instead of in the south.

Believe Hitler

surprise both as to the time of striking and as to new weapons designed during the long winter of comparative inactivity at the front.

"We have a whole bag of tricks," my informant boasted.

Once Russia is smashed and prostrated—so Hitler still seems to think—the western world will be grateful to him for having removed the "curse of Communism from the earth" and will come to terms with him.

But to defeat Russia, he must have the oil of the Caucasus. And he can best take the Caucasus by a pincer movement. In other words one section of his gigantic army must approach the Caucasus by way of Turkey and Iran.

"Iran is practically ours already," my informant asserted. "England has had to take most of her troops out of there and hurry them down to India. There isn't any love for the Russian troops stationed there.

Von Papen at Work

Turkey's position has long been a matter of doubt. One must not forget that the German representative in Turkey is wily Ambassador Franz Von Papen, for whom diplomatic intrigue is duck soup. Despite innumerable rumors of his early retirement—probably usually started by the Nazis themselves to confound the enemy—Papen has been quietly at work softening up the Turks.

From this, one may deduce that if Turkey decides to cast her lot with the Axis, the day may come when Turkey will invoke German assistance to "protect" her from Bolshevism; if she decides to oppose a German march-through, Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop may some Sunday morning at daybreak in June or July summon the few remaining foreign correspondents in Berlin to the Wilhelmstrasse to inform them that the German army now was on its way through Turkey to save the Ottoman State from Russian Communism, the British secret service and "American Jewish intrigue."

It is now almost half a year since we last attended the press conferences in the Wilhelmstrasse. At one of our last meetings there the spokesman was positive in asserting that relations between Turkey and Germany were excellent.

The Berlin correspondent for the Turkish news agency told me shortly before I was interned that he was instructed to comment on the German news "in a family manner." The instructions came from Ankara.

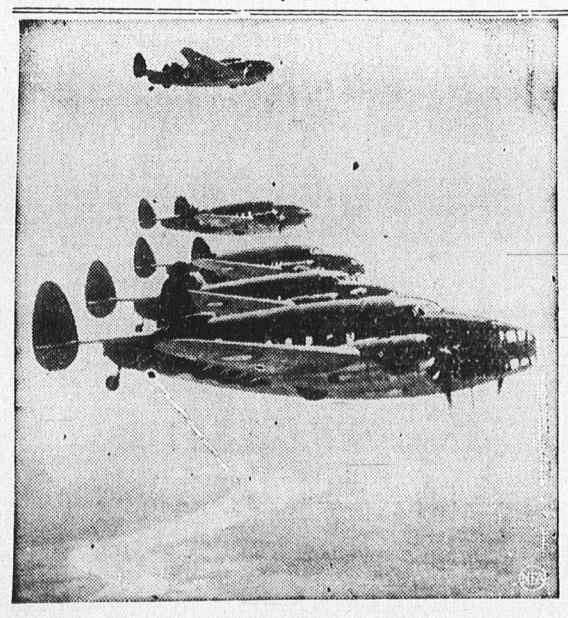
Germans Take No Chances

But Germany is taking no chances. One of our repatriates on the Drottningholm, who came from Greece reported that Germany was feverishly at work on the Greek islands in the Ionian Sea building barges with which to effect landings in the Dardanelles. Some 4,000 German workers, he estimated, were engaged in this construction project, besides all necessary native Greek help.

The port of Piraeus, he also reported, was teeming with activity again, and all sorts of construction is under way. When I visited it a year ago following in the wake of conquering German armies, it was a scene of death and destruction.

The curtain of silence which the Nazis have dropped over Greece is thick and impervious. It is therefore hard to verify this repatriate's story.

It seems decidedly to make sense, however.



Royal Australian Air Force bombers cruise over Darwin peninsula, the island-continent's northern point. Here air superiority has been wrestled from Japs.

This is Mexico today, joining the nations fighting against the axis dream of world domination. This great country to the south is a good neighbor and a strategically placed one.

Rev. B. Fream Is Honored

St. Mark's Church Hall, Kensington, was the scene of a representative gathering on Thursday evening, May 28th, when members of the congregation gathered in force to tender the Rector, Rev. Benjamin Fream an official farewell and to enjoy a social evening together. With the members of St. Mark's Church there were also a large number of the members of St. Stephen's Church, Burlington, besides a number of friends and neighbours belonging to the other churches of the town.

Mr. J. B. Millman was appointed chairman and after introductory remarks called on Mr. Athol Cotton to read an address to Mr. Fream which was accompanied by the gift of a substantial sum of money presented by Warden Ernest T. Mill. The address expressed the deep regrets of the congregation at the removal of Mr. Fream after eight years of faithful service in the Parish of New London. Mr. Fream came to the parish an absolute stranger and in those eight years endeared himself to his people not by any tricks of pulpit oratory but by steady, quiet, unassuming service.

In reply Mr. Fream spoke in a reminiscent vein of his work, how he had enjoyed working with the people, their happy times together at socials. Sunday School entertainments and other church functions. He thanked them one and all for their kindness to him and assured them he would not forget his Rectorship of New London Parish.

Other speakers from the church were Mr. J. A. Thompson of Kensington and Mr. J. W. Murphy of Sea View. Rev. A. D. Stirling of Kensington United Church, Rev. John Stirling of the Margate United Church and Rev. Gordon Nichols Kensington Presbyterian Church also gave friendly and humourous addresses. Mr. Fream's relations with the other churches in the Town of Kensington were always cordial, he willingly co-operated with them in any special services. Miss Doris Stirling added to the pleasure of the evening by giving two splendid dramatic readings. Mrs. Cecil Mill presided at the organ for the singsong which was heartily enjoyed by all.

The members of St Stephen's Church also presented their rector with a nice gift of money and the Girl's Branch of the W. A. at French River had Mr. Fream as their special guest on Wednesday afternoon at a meeting at the home of Mrs. Lemuel Orr. At this meeting some beautiful and appropriate gifts were given to him.

Mr. Fream leaves on Tuesday, June 3rd for the Parish of Roundhill, N. S., and will be succeeded by Rev. H. F. Newman of Halifax who will begin his work in New London Parish on June 7th.

Rev. Mr. Fream preached his farewell sermon Sunday evening in St. Mark's Church, the service being attended by a large congregation.

Says Tea Is Rationed, Why Not Liquor

OTTAWA, June 1 —(CP) — Rev. A.M. Nicholson (C.C.F. Mackenzie) told the House of Commons tonight that it was "nonsense" for the government to say it could not enter into the field of jurisdiction over liquor traffic in wartime.

While tea and other domestic commodities were being rationed liquor business was increasing, he said, yet liquor involved ocean transportation that might well be used for more essential supplies.

Mr. Nicholson mentioned E. P. Taylor, a dollar-a-year man in the Munitions Department who he said was head of Canadian Breweries Limited.

He quoted from an interview in which Mr. Taylor was reported to have said Canadians would have to forego luxuries as a contribution to the war effort.

Then he quoted from Mr. Taylor's annual report to his brewery company, announcing a large export business and increased profits.

He estimated that Canada's liquor bill for one year would fully equip 800,000 soldiers or pay for 2,700 fighter planes. He said: A magazine called "The New World" was published by Mr. Taylor and carried many pages of advertising of domestic and imported liquor. It also carried advertising from the Dominion Government.

Yet church magazines very rarely had profitable advertising from the Government, said Mr. Nicholson.
