BLACK THE VOGUE IN BLOTTING PAPER.

Blotting paper was discovered purely by accident says T. P.'s Weekly. Some ordinary paper was being made one day at a mill in Berkshire when a careless workman forgot to put in the sizzing material. It may be imagined what angry scenes would take place in that mill, as the whole of the paper made was regarded as be quite useless. The proprietor of the mill desired to write a note shortly afterward, and he took a piece of waste paper, thinking it was good enough for the purpose. To his intense annoyance the ink spread all over the paper.

All of a sudden there flashed over his mind the thought that this paper would do instead of sand for drying ink, and he at once advertised his waste paper as "blotting." There was such a big demand that the mill ceased to make ordinary paper, and was soon occupied in making blotting paper only, the use of which spread to all countries. The result now is that the descendent of the discoverer owns the largest mills in the world for the manufacture of this special kind of paper.

The reason the paper is of use in drying ink is that really it is a mass of hairlike tubes which suck up liquid by capillary attraction. If a very fine glass tube is put into water the liquid will rise in it owing to capillary attraction. The art of manufacturing blotting paper has been carried to such a degree that the product has wonderful absorbent qualities.

All blotting paper is made from rags. The original blotting paper was of a pink color, due to the fact that red rags were used—rags which could not be used for making the ordinary paper, as the color could not be removed. Here was a method for using the apparently useless matter, and so, for a long time, pink was the predominent color.

It is a matter for surprise what curious preferences are shown by various people with regard to the color of the blotting paper they use. Business greatly prefer that of a buff color. This is preferred to white from the fact that it is more easily distinguished from the letters that are handled while at the same time it is not sufficiently striking to seem out of place in an office. It is only in this country that buff colored blotting paper is the favorite.

Countries which possesses hot climates prefer green and this preference can readily be understood when it is remembered that green is such a restful color to the eyes. The people on the continent have quite a different taste from our own with regard to the color of the paper—they prefer vivid colors, showing especial preference for deep pink.

Ladies of all lands prefer more dainty colors, chiefly mauve. This colored blotting paper, by the way was also accidentally produced in the first place; in this case some blue and red rags being mixed together, and so this color was produced.

There is an opinion which seems to be fairly prevalent that colored papers do not blot as well as white. As a matter of fact the color makes no difference at all to the absorbent quality of the paper, the particular tint depending purely upon the blending of the rags. Quite the newest tint is black. This is preferred by persons who do not wish anybody to see what has been written. If an ordinary piece of blotting paper, say white, has been used it is quite easy to read what has been blotted simply by holding the paper up to a mirror. The black paper, however, absorbs the ink marks without showing them.

In the case of the sovereign any piece which has blotted His Majesty's signature is at once destroyed. As a matter of fact, King Edward VII. always uses an extra thick white sheet of blotting, known technically as "Ford's 80-pound white," though until recently very thin pink paper was that preferred for official use.

BOGUS BARONET DOOMED NOW.

LONDON, April 7—The bogus baronet who has flourished long in England is doomed. The Kings of Arms are engaged in preparing a roll of baronets and when it is completed no man shall be entitled to the style or honor of a baronet in court or official documents unless his name appears on the roll.

For many generations the record of the baronetcy has been a lax and casual business, says the Observer. A man might assume a baronetcy on the ground that it was his by descent, although his predecessors had dropped the use of it, and it was nobody's affair to test his claim, or to say him nay, saving of course the accident of his claiming possessions dependent on the title as well as the title itself.

"Your name is Smith," he would say to an ambitious client, "and your great-grandfather's name was William. Now, Sir William Smith died in such a year and the title dropped into abeyance. Take it; it is undoubtedly yours."

There are about 1,000 baronets in the United Kingdom. Not more than thirty are at present believed to hold false titles, and only one is of a social standing which would be likely to bring his claim under review.

The rest of the false baronets are in comparatively humble circumstances. Nobody troubles much when a shoe-maker calls himself a baronet, but if he rises in life, becomes a justice of the peace or a deputy lieutenant, or wishes to put his sons in the army or the navy, he finds it prudent to drop a title unless he is sure that it was rightly assumed by his family.
