

News Of The World In Pictures

Eagerly awaiting official detailed announcements of tariff concessions to be made the United States in return for its offer to consider preferences on 1,000 items last week are people not only of Great Britain but the 50 crown colonies, protectorates and mandates involved. Typical of the wide variation of native types in countries to be affected are the girl of Ceylon in (1), and Gibraltar, where bread is delivered (2) by basket-carrying boys, will both be included

The house in which the late Sir Wilfred Laurier was born, shown above, at St. Lin. Que., has been purchased by the Dominion Government and will be maintained as a historic monument in memory of the French-Canadian leader who was Prime Minister of Canada from 1896 to 1911.

NO KIDNAPPING

Detroit police organized a wide search for Gertrude Bennett, 17 when she disappeared from the home of her father, a Ford Motor Co. official. Her parents thought she'd been kidnapped. Last week they learned she'd eloped with Russell Hughes, 21. The couple are honeymooning in Florida.

No longer will the face and figure of Betty Wyman adorn United States publications. The "girl on 1,000,000 magazine covers" has married Jack McGowan, Hollywood scenario writer, he announced over the week-end.

SEASIDE STYLES

Miami Beach bathers are discarding manufacturers' headgear in favor of this quaint headgear inspired by old ladies' hats in Russia. The new seaside millinery is made of cotton linen and silk.

One of the worst blizzards for ten years swept over parts of England Scotland and Wales last week. This picture shows a trawler fleet of fishing vessels buffeting through high seas under a threatening sky as it made for Aberdeen in the evening

ASSUMES PREMIERSHIP

Roumania's new strong man is Octavian Goga, who has been elevated to the post of premier, Goga, who is a leader in the National Christian party, formed a new cabinet in response to King Carol's invitation. Liberals in Roumania fear an anti-democratic coup.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

Pretty Miss Nang Sao Mayuri Vichaya Vichaya, recently crowned "Miss Siam" after a nation-wide competition. She is wearing the native dress of her country.

Formidable opposition for Canada's crack curlers is pictured above. They are members of the Royal Caledonian Curling Club team which arrived in Montreal on Tuesday, January 11, for a five-day visit as guests of the Canadian Branch. Shown in the group are: William Henderson, of Kinlochry, captain of the team, seated third from left; Walter Bain, Grangemouth; James E. Bett, St. Andrew's; Archibald Blair, Waverley; Thomas Brown, Holyrood; John M. Dykes, Bearsden; William Findlay, Stonekir; Frank Gibson, Waverley; Robert Grierson, Loch Connell; James Howie, Leven; Archibald Howie, Leven; Ralph Johnson, Loch Ard; James McConnell, Kirkcaldy; Walter C.S. McGlashan, Bridge of Wier; Hector MacKay; Laird, George H. N. Reid, Jacobites; Dr. Andrew Richmond, Paisley; St. Mirren; James Sharp, Stow; Hugh F. Smith, Ayr and Alloway Agricultural; John Walker, Methelston; Hugh Wylie, London Caledonian.

Dr. Otto Stader, at the University of Pennsylvania's school of veterinary medicine, demonstrates his new mechanical bone-setting device for horses. It's called the "Stader Reduction Splint", but what it means is that no longer will it so often be necessary to administer a merciful shot in the head to equine sufferers of broken legs.

Two stainless steel pins were bored into the bone above the break and two more were inserted below the break. The pins were joined by an adjustable steel bar which enables the surgeon to set the bones in place and hold them in position. The pins and bar arrangement allows the animal to rest its weight on the injured leg without damage to the broken section. It also eliminates the use of a plaster cast, thus giving more freedom for blood circulate to the tissues around the broken bone.

MAXIME RAYMOND, of Montreal, member of the House of Commons for Beauharnois-LaPrairie, is mentioned as Canada's next Minister to France.

Dr. Gabriel Lambert, chief lieutenant of Adrian Arcand, leader of the new National Social Christian party in Quebec is shown in the above picture snapped in Criminal Court just as he gave Judge Tetreau the Fascist salute before leaving after his case was postponed. Lambert is accompanied in the picture as in court by the leader of the new party himself, Adrian Arcand. Arcand and ex-provincial detective Lessard were the only two members of the group accompanying Lambert to court who did not wear blue shirts with swastikas on them.

Elfriede "Mickey" Pembauer, pretty Tyrolean skier who is ladies downhill and slalom champion has returned to defend her title. She has come back to get in practice. Here she is on her arrival in Montreal by plane from New York.

ANNUAL ABLUTION

When the pride of the British merchant marine, the luxury liner, Queen Mary, starts her 1938 transatlantic trips in February, she will be wearing a brand new face, both inside and out. She is seen entering the King George V graving dock at Southampton for complete overhauling.