FAMINE IN TIMBER TREES.

Growing Scarcity of Wood Fit For Manufacturing Purposes.

It will be but a few years before durable timber becomes very much dearer than it is at present. Good chestnut and white oak posts are worth now 15 cents each and red cedar posts 20 cents apiece undressed and are hard to get at that. Ten years from now the supply will be much less. No more profitable use of land can be made than to plant walnut, chestnut, oak, hickory, spruce, ash, maple, poplar, willow, locust and other trees that have a value in the arts for their timber. Plant the rough land to trees. The eucalypts are now grown in the southwestern portion of our country more extensively than any other exotic forest tree.

These trees are originally from Australia. They are known there under the name of antifever trees, as by their rapid growth and large amount of foliage they absorb the poisonous gases of the swamps, making the air pure and the climate healthy. In California, Kansas and Indiana tracts of land several thousand acres in area have been planted with seedlings of the eucalypts restra for fuel, railroad ties and for windbreaks. On account of their rapid growth they make desirable shade trees for the dwelling and pasture lots. In many parts of the southwest the eucalypts are utilized to advantage to furnish shade in pastures. If set along the fences and along the irrigating ditches they can be made to protect the cattle in the pasture without at any time interfering with farm work. Seedlings may be had from the nurseryman in 100 lots at 5 cents each. There are some thirty different varieties, and all of them are said to grow equally well in the middle and southern states. Plant the hillsides in forest trees and farm the low ground.

A Queer Paperweight.

One of the most remarkable objects in the American historical collection which occupies the front hall of the National museum is the paperweight of Professor Henry, for many years secretary of the Smithsonian institution. It is a triangular prism of clear, transparent glass about six inches in height. Into the edge or sharp back of the triangle the skillful workman who turned out this singular paperweight carved a series of grooves and hollows which appear absolutely meaningless when viewed from the side, but when looked at through the broad surface of the front of the prism resolve themselves into a beautiful Etruscan vase.

In reality there exists only one side of this remarkable vase, the other two being a reflection on the two angles of the prism of the original. Viewed through the flat surface of the opposite angle the vase has four handles, but if the back is examined it will be found to have only two.

In all the collection of personal relics, jewels, objects of luxury, oddities and things of value of the great Americans from Washington down this without doubt is one of the most peculiar and interesting.

He Had the Price.

Senator Clark of Montana is a very unostentatious man. He has a habit of going around the streets down town without much regard to the niceties of his personal appearance. He was walking down Wall street the other day, with his hat in his hand, a very informal looking "magnate." At a corner Pat Curran, ten years old and Irish, stopped him.

"Shine, mister?" said Pat, pointing suggestively at the senator's boots.

The latter glanced down, noted the shoes were dusty, but remembered he had an appointment with the Harriman attorneys at his office.

"No, haven't time," he said.

"And the boy grunted savagely, "You mean you ain't got the price, don't yer, mister?"

The senator told the story on himself when he signed the check for $10,000,000 about ten minutes later that paid for 500 miles of Oregon Short Line.

Containing Fire.

Sometimes a fire breaks out in one of the holds of a steamship at sea. The captain tells the passengers there is no need to be alarmed. The hatches cover the hold; water tight doors and steel bulkheads separate it from the rest of the ship. Often the fire can be allowed to burn itself out for lack of air in its confined space. If not it can be extinguished by steam.

Architects try to make the modern fireproof building like a ship in this respect. The "steel cage" skyscraper is built so that a fire in one room or one story is bound to burn itself out locally without damaging the rest of the building.

The Kaiser and the Fountain.

When the kaiser went sightseeing to St. Peter's he admired the fountains, says a writer in Lippincott's. Well he might. After watching them some time he said: "Turn them off now. It's a pity to waste so much water." Thrifty, eh? Turn off Carlo Maderno's fountains which have danced in the sun and shimmered in the moon night 300 years!

Corsets For Men.

It is perfectly true, says Clothier and Furnisher, that fashionable young men wear corsets. The fashion of corset wearing by the male sex is an old one, dating back to George II. and the recent revival of the habit began in England last fall among officers of the army stationed in London.

A Famous Correspondent.

A man very much talked of lately, on account of his valuable press letters, is Dr. G. E. Morrison, the Pekin correspondent of The London Times, and for a man of only forty or so he has certainly had a crowded and adventurous career. He started it, it seems, while a school-boy, by navigating the River Murray from source to mouth, in a little canoe by himself. Then he walked from Melbourne to Adelaide, a sort of trial trip preliminary to his great and perilous solitary tramp of two thousand miles across Australia from farthest north to remotest south. This was the beginning of his connection with journalism, as he wrote a vivid narrative of his experiences in the Melbourne Age. Then he worked for a season among the pearl-shell divers of Northwestern Australia, subsequently shipping as an ordinary seaman on a Kanaka recruiting schooner for a voyage among the Pacific Islands, publishing the results in the Age. Next he led the same party's exploring expedition into New Guinea, where he was speared by a Papuan cannibal. A portion of the spear remained embedded in his body, and was only removed when he went to Edinburgh to qualify for his M.D. degree. Returning to Australia, he was appointed House Surgeon in the Ballarat Hospital, where he remained for two years, when his roving disposition again asserted itself. This time he chose China, and there he appears to have taken root at last.

London Parks.

London, says The Earl of Meath, now possesses 813 parks and open spaces, which have cost £2,199,000. This gives a proportion of one acre to 752 of the population, which now numbers rather more than four and a half millions. Twenty years ago the number of parks was and their cost £829,850, affording one acre to 951 of the population of 3,854,000.

A Case of Eczema.

No Pen Describes. After Three Years of Terrible Suffering Little Mary Millar Was Permanently Cured by

Dr. Chase's Ointment

Many of the cures brought about by Dr. Chase's Ointment are so much like miracles that people can scarcely believe them. When "Baby" Millar became a victim of eczema her parents did everything that could be done to get her cured. Three doctors tried all the means in their power, but without success, and then all sorts of remedies were used, with the vain hope that something would bring relief from the disease that seemed to be burning up the living flesh.

It was not until Dr. Chase's Ointment was used that relief and cure came. This case is certified to by a prominent Sunday school superintendent of St. Catharines.

Mrs. Wm. Millar, St. Catharines, Ont., writes:—"My daughter, Mary, when six months old contracted eczema and for three years this disease baffled all treatment. Her case was one of the worst that ever came to my notice; and she suffered what no pen can ever describe. I had her treated by three different doctors but all to no purpose whatever, and all sorts of balms, soaps and lotions were tried with no beneficial results.

"Finally I decided to use Dr. Chase's Ointment, and to my surprise she began to improve immediately, and after regular treatment for a time the disease of so long-standing completely disappeared. As that was four years ago, and not a symptom of this distressing ailment has ever shown itself since, the cure must certainly be a permanent one. At the time of this cure we were living in Cornwall, Ont., and the doctors there, feared that if she was not cured of eczema she would go in to a decline."

Mr. S. Richardson, Jun., Superintendent Christ's Church Sunday School, St. Catharines, Ont., writes:—"I am acquainted with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Millar and believe they would not make any statement knowing it to be in any way misleading or untrue."

Dr. Chase's Ointment, 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmondson Bates & Company, Toronto. To protect you against imitations the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box of his remedies.
