THE UNKNOWN SOLDIER

Arlington National Cemetery, Sunday Morning, October 6th, 1924

Homage by Lieut Colonel Thomas J. Dickson, Chaplain Corps, United States Army, Ret., of Washington, D. C. Delivered on the Occasion of the Pilgrimage of the Survivors of the First Division, American Expeditionary Forces, in the World War at the Tomb of

The History of the First Division is a closed book. I am not worthy to loose the seals thereof!

In the Chancery of Heaven, known to God alone, is the record of those whose dust we cover with flowers.

Ours is a pilgrimage of love and reverence, safely guarded by unseen legions.

We see forms and faces from that place we call home; anxious for loved ones through long days and longer nights.

The dark shadow fell on him, our every home.

Our homage to Woman who suffers, and of all!

This is neither time nor place for us to acclaim.

Leave that to others! Leave it to pious pilgrims—

To those who dwell on mountains capped with emotion.

To those who smelt the raging battles afar off.

Children will here clasp their hands in prayer.

Silent! Profound veneration attend this presence!

Attend all from the valley of the shadow of death, a once mighty substance.

Since all of Earth will come, will pass, will read—

It is well to speak the language God first gave man.

Oh leaves of oak! Come form our winding sheet.

Leaves of strength! Come from the oak that defies the storm!

Come rose leaves! See the place where daughters valor sleeps.

Come leaves of beauty, Leaves of beauty rest on Beauty's breast.

Come leaves of laurel, Mount high this Unknown Soldier's brow!

Soldier! You rose from these ranks! Receive our homage now!

Come emblem of every hope, Come light painted flowers.

Come those who first told man there is a God.

Come flowers of Easter, Come immortal Spring.

Come! Tell again the old, old story of His love.

Come bless our leaning crosses, Come to our veiled Calvary.

Come! Tell loud the Story! Let all the Earth rejoice!

Come! Oh welcome night, Cover us with thy star cloth.

Catch every tear that falls—those beautiful bugles of Reveille.

Lieut Colonel Thomas J. Dickson was the senior Chaplain, First Division, the regiment that fired the first shot for America in the World War. He was in all the battles of the First Division.
