Strict Regulations Govern Service Vote

OTTAWA June 5—(CP)—There are about 100 service candidates in the forthcoming June 11th general election but they all were nominated by civilians.

Service candidates and officers appointed to take service votes. The regulations—on the books for many years—mean servicemen, other than candidates, may not address meetings even if they don't wear uniforms. Thus, the only uniforms allowed at meetings would be those of the candidate on the platform or servicemen in the audience.

Regulations governing activities of service candidates have been relaxed so they can get leave immediately after dissolution of parliament or legislature and, at their own discretion, wear uniforms while campaigning. Previously, they could not apply for leave until the election writs were issued.
