Jaffar had reported that there was not a thing in all the stranger's garments — only the usual pocket dust, not a portemonnaie, not a card, not a coin, not even a bronze baish-para. As delicately as might be she strove to put Jebb at his ease.

"It shall be pleasure to me to greive to Jebb Effendi what I have of money." Seeing his look of horror, she hastened to amend. "And he shall pay it again when Allah sends him riches once more."

But Jebb put up his hand to check her. He could not endure this.

"I have heard the feeling of Jebb Effendi by other men of mine," she said. "Now Allah has decreed to me how Jebb Effendi shall earn much money quick and much power and fame."

"Tell me in—Allah's name."

"Jebb Effendi is impish effendi," she said. "No, no, I'm not English, I am American."

"But she's all the same to an Osmanli," Jebb Effendi is great phreeseean, great soorgoon. In our country we think the Frank doctors work necessities. Of other men one believed that Allah sent sickness and—and—" She paused in dread of the great wrath which the Moslem avowed that he kept far from you—the Cup-bearer of the Sphere. At the promenade today, Janine Hanin is expected. But she comes not. She says her son, her worship son Gani Bey, is in pain most frightful. The Bey sheek somebody is give them of poison, but he is too young to have enemies and he does not die in his pain. If Jebb Effendi can cure that son, the father pays much. The father is Turkey in straight lines. The Osmanli, like nature, love a cure.

"Wh—what am I to do, then?" said Jebb.

"There is in Uskub a large kham, a hote—the Hotei Turati. Jebb Effendi shall go there and command the best room and wait."

"I can command the room, but do I get it? I have no money — not even baggage."

"Or that also I have thought," said the amazing woman. "You shall say your baggage is sent to Stamboul. You stop but for one, two days."

OTTAWA, Nov. 20—(CP)—Investment by Canadians in war savings certificates and stamps up to Oct. 31 totalled $22,297,405, according to information tabled in the House of Commons today in reply to a question from Gordon Graydon (Con. Peab). Distribution of certificates by provinces with the total purchase price and the market value in brackets include: Prince Edward Island $105,776, ($122,220); Nova Scotia, $1,050,464 ($1,213,080); New Brunswick, $660,480 ($823,600).

In Canada, the United Kingdom, and elsewhere is reflected in the packing house and butcher demand for a hog with light smooth shoulders, long sides, meaty backs, full and curly hams, and a uniform medium finish. Progressive breeders are endeavoring to produce such hogs, and the practicability of these efforts is indicated by the fact that the bacon hog of approved type and finish meets fully the requirements of the market and at the same time is a profitable pork-making machine. The producer has developed a national type of hog, but not in sufficient volume to meet the full requirements of the market. Canadian hogs must be of the type which will allow them to compete successfully in world markets. The bacon hog makes an ideal product, not only for the export market but for the retail trade in Canada. Hams and shoulders of desired weights and finish provide the means where by Canada's bacon surplus can be marketed abroad in competition with the product of other countries, thus maintaining a steady demand and a good market for hogs throughout the Dominion.

The bacon hog, particularly well adapted to Canadian farm economy. It provides a market for the by-products of Canadian milling and dairy industries, and a medium through which Canada can export to market annually, and with profit a large part of small grains production.

Men Want Bridge Game Reformed

The males are on the verge of a strike, according to an article in Esquire Magazine. Unless some changes are made in a big hurry, bridge will be reformed as a sort of emotional orgy for a bunch of disappointed women. And the men? Back to a sort of passive such as straight, draw or even stud, with deuces wild.

Due to women's making a cut-out of bridge, it is now played much like chess. Even a heavy sight during the deep contemplation of one player brings forth a flock of nasty looks. A lot of snark about intricate bidding makes a bridge-session one of constant nervous tension. And the female variety of "politeness" in bridge makes it all a bitter frustration.

After all, the game is supposed to be for amusement. As introduced in Esquire, a new system would put some life into the old game. The thesis of this new system, called "Hand over Hand" contract, is the "hand over hand" of bridge. Now, according to strict bridge etiquette, all bids must be made in a monotone, so that you can't see your partner know by the tone of your voice that you think things have gone far enough. Furthermore, bidding—either while it is going on or during the play of the hand, Nor should there be any comment on the play until it is over. And on top of that, there should be no comment on anything else.

Open Conversation

The Hand Over Hand system adopts instead a system which permits any combination of comments, by all four players at all times, during the bidding and the play. In instance, if Mrs. Smith opens with one spade and her partner jumps to three hearts and Mrs. Smith then bids three spades in a "know he'd better" tone, why under this system of bridge, it's perfectly all right for Mr. and Mrs. Smith to talk. If Mrs. Smith opens with one spade and her partner jumps to three hearts and Mrs. Smith then bids three spades in a "know he'd better" tone, why under this system of bridge, it's perfectly all right for Mr. and Mrs. Smith to talk. If Mrs. Smith opens with one spade and her partner jumps to three hearts and Mrs. Smith then bids three spades in a "know he'd better" tone, why under this system of bridge, it's perfectly all right for Mr. and Mrs. Smith to talk.

WINS "SPECIAL MENTION"

Air Marshal W. A. Bishop announces he has made "special mention" of Corp. Ian Hamilton Collins, young Ottawa airman, in his report on his visit to England. Collins, who acted as his chauffeur, refused to take shelter during air raids because "he always wanted to be on the job," Marshal Bishop said.

member fool rules of play, or with having to cheat.

Poker Rules

Esquire would apply the rules of poker to bridge — except that the deuces wouldn't be wild — and all "politeness" would be taken out of it. After all, it's really not politeness — it's cruelty. When a man's partner freezes him out with "it's too bad we didn't see that a switch to clubs would have defeated the contract," he has no answer. He can't get tough, for that marks him as a boor. If he starts to explain, he simply looks silly. On the other hand, if the lady really says what she thinks it's "You big ape, even a child would have had enough sense to switch to clubs!" To that you have an answer — "To matter how shoddy-like 'Why don't you stick a few aces in your sleeve so you can win occasional?'" or "What the devil are you talking about when you rave up the hand by leading away from your ace-queen in the opening play?" And then everybody's relieved.

LEADS MECHANIZED UNIT

The only man in Canada who ever attempted and succeeded in putting a military band on horseback is the commanding officer today of Canada's newest light mechanized unit, the 2nd Regiment of the Governor-General's Horse Guards, Lieut. Col. W. L. Rawlinson, long known as one of Canada's outstanding horsemen and one of her most experienced cavalry officers.

In Memoriam

MRS. JOHN CAREW

On October 21 Mrs. John Carew of Wheatley River passed away at the home of her daughter Mrs. Ernest Stead. Mrs. Carew had been in failing health for the past eight years. During that time she showed wonderful patience and Christian fortitude. Her long life of eighty-eight years had been spent in devotion to her Master and Lord. She was an earnest Church worker and in her earlier years taught in the Sunday School. She was always interested in everything for the betterment of the community and took an active part in every good cause. In sickness and in trouble all found her a friend ready to give a helping hand.

Mrs. Carew had been married twice. Her first husband, John Brooks of Fredericton passed away forty-three years ago leaving her with three small children. Three years later she married John Carew and moved to Wheatley River where she lived until her death.

She is survived by three daughters Mrs. Ernest Stead of Wheatley River, Mrs. Maude Wall of Milton, Mass. and Mrs. Melissa Wall of North Granville. Her only son predeceased her three years ago. Of a large family of six brothers and five sisters only two sisters remain, namely Mrs. John Godfrey and Miss Isabel Prizell both of Wiltshire.

The funeral was held at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Ernest Stead in the presence of many friends and relatives. At the request of the deceased Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Carey sang the duet "Meet Me There". The services were conducted by her minister Rev. Lewis M. Murray assisted by a relative Rev. Bruce Carow of Welsford, N.E. Interment was in the family plot at Wheatley River. The bereaved are Mrs. Carew's nephews, William Nelson and Alfred Carey, Warburton Godfrey, Robert Reeves and a close friend, Chester Rackham.

President Pierre Dupont of the Independent Grand Duchy of Luxembourg paid a formal visit to Montreal city hall recently, where he was welcomed by Acting Mayor Edmond Hamelin. There he signed the Golden Book of distinguished visitors (RIGHT). At LEFT is the Grand Duchesse Charlotte-Adelgunde, an exile since the little country was overrun by German invaders.

Central Provinces Get Lion's Share Of War Contracts

OTTAWA, Nov. 20—(CP)—Of a total of $33,941,515 worth of war orders placed in Canada on Canadian account, Ontario and Quebec received $20,422,820. Munitions Minister Home told the House of Commons today.

The Minister referred to interest shown by members of the Commons in the distribution of war orders among the provinces. He said in his opinion "the matter of distribution is secondary to that of obtaining efficient production."

Hydro-electric power is an essential of low cost production and large blocks of surplus power are obtainable only in Quebec and Ontario, he said.

That fact had much to do with location of new plants in these provinces. Figures given in his statement did not cover all war orders but were representative, he said.

Of the amount shared by Quebec and Ontario, the former got $12,307,000 and the latter $12,115,720. In the case of Quebec the complete distribution was $39,100, and in Ontario $48,54.

Other provinces shared as follows: Prince Edward Island, $1,794,150; Nova Scotia, $1,050,464; New Brunswick, $660,480; and Newfoundland, $14,555 per capita.

OTTAWA, Nov. 21—(CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King told the House of Commons today the Government is giving consideration to tabling the main estimates before the long Christmas adjournment is taken.
