WEDNESDAY The death of J. J. Chappell of the P. E. Island Railway which occurred yesterday morning, was not unexpected as he had been for a long time seriously ill.

FRIDAY From time to time a smooth adventurer comes to Charlottetown, starts some line of business makes friends by plausible manners, also incurs considerable liabilities for rent, lighting, board, horsehire and so forth, borrows what he can from trusting acquaintances and then departs between two days, leaving the unwary and trusting ones to mourn.

There is little doubt that adventurers will continue to appear in our midst, with designs to separate some of our good people from their earnings and savings. The object of this writing is to place our citizens on their guard so that the tactics of the adventurer may not be quite so easy as it has been.
