

DANCING
Kensington Rink
TO-NIGHT

Floor in Excellent Condition
 A Thrilling Time is Promised
 Everyone as the Music
 O. K. PRESBY & HIS BAND

Follow the CROWDS to Kensington on WEDNESDAY NIGHTS.

L-555-7-17-Wed-Fri.

The Eastern Guardian

"This column is reserved for news of local interest but advertising of a newsy nature may be inserted at 2 cents a word strictly payable in advance."

"SUBSCRIPTIONS to the Charlottetown Guardian may be had to their Post Office name."

RESERVE JULY 31st for Murray Harbour Tea Party and Boat Race. Proceeds for war purposes. L-522-7-1-6.

"THE BIG day you have been waiting for has arrived this afternoon at McArthur's race track, Kensington. Come and enjoy a good day's sport. L-576."

Personals

Rev. Dr. J. S. Bonnell, Mrs. Bonnell, and family, of New York are now at the "Highlands," their new summer home in Georgetown.

Mr. Edgar Lannon, Mrs. Lannon and two children, West Roxbury, Mass., Donnie and Jenn, are visiting Mrs. Lannon's parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Douglas, Georgetown.

Mr. Ralph L. Douglas of Montreal arrived on the Island on Saturday night to spend a two-weeks' vacation. Mrs. Douglas came home earlier in the season and has been with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Coffin, at Montague.

BEGAN ARMY
 (Continued from page 1)

and served with distinction until he was called to the command of the Western Canadian Infantry Brigade in the 1st division.

Bombing was General Peakes' specialty during his service in the trenches. He served as bombing commission in the field, served as a battalion bombing officer, early in 1918 he was appointed to command the 116th Battalion.

The Victoria Cross came to him, according to the citation for "his supreme contempt of danger and wonderful powers of control and leadership" at Passchendaele. He was wounded five times, mentioned in despatches and also awarded the Military Cross, the Distinguished Service Order, and the French Croix de Guerre.

After the last war General Peakes was appointed to the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, permanent force, with the rank of Major. He served as general staff officer at a number of the military districts, at Royal Military College, Kingston, and at national defence headquarters.

He also served as director of military operations and intelligence and his last post before coming to Calgary. He is a graduate of the Staff College at Camberley, England, and of the Imperial Defence College.

Col. Potts is also a native of England and started his military career as a private soldier. He is a graduate of the University of Edinburgh and of Cornell University. He served in the 1st Great War as a private, won his commission later. After the war he took an active interest in the militia.

An expert on dairying he recently held the position of professor of dairying at the University of Saskatchewan. He was formerly an instructor at Cornell University and at Iowa State Agricultural College.

In 1934 he was promoted to the rank of Colonel in the militia and to command the 21st Brigade. He was instrumental in the mobilization of the Saskatchewan Infantry as a unit of the 1st Division he was given command of the battalion and led it overseas.

TO LET—FURNISHED HOUSE.
 Apply 4 Hillcrest Avenue.
 T-578-7-17-21.

LOOK OUT NOW! A PAIR OF
 Ladies' shell classes. Finder please leave at Guardian Office.
 L-580.

FURNISHED SUMMER COTTAGE
 for rent, swimming pool, tennis court, etc. In beautiful location. Call L-581-7-17-21.

SPACIOUS DINING ROOM
 Where the Cheapest of Food is Served.

QUEEN HOTEL
 ROOMS WITH BATH
 HOT AND COLD WATER
 Private Phones in All Rooms
 Queen Street, N. B. One Block North of Main St.
 Canada.

J. M.'s MEATS

SPECIAL
 Hamburger 29c
 2 lbs. 29c

For YOUR ORDER, Phone 81
 J. M. Roof, Prop.
 Market Building

Central Guardian

This column is reserved for news of local interest but advertising of a newsy nature may be inserted at 2 cents a word strictly payable in advance.

TROUT ROD BARGAINS, 25% discount, all new 10's, Jameson's Drug Store. L-513-7-17-11.

FUNERAL TODAY—The funeral of the late Isadore Doucette will be held this morning at 10 from his late residence, 139 Sydney Street.

THE BIG day you have been waiting for has arrived this afternoon at McArthur's race track, Kensington. Come and enjoy a good day's sport. L-576.

HOMINY FEED used in nearly all feed mixtures such as Pig Grower and Poultry Mash. The fat content is twice that of whole corn or chop. Get your supply from The Dominion Silver Box Farm Limited. L-314-7-10-13-17-20.

DIES UNEXPECTEDLY—Mr. John Nicholson, 35-year-old farmer in this Queen's County community, died unexpectedly at his North Willbourn farm yesterday. He had been ill for six weeks ago, but considered making satisfactory progress and was able to be out the day before his death. He had a leg broken when he became caught in a potato machine he was using to plant the season's crop. He survived by a wife and two children—a son and a daughter, both at home. Funeral arrangements were not complete last night.

TO HEAD RED CROSS DRIVE—Mr. George J. Tweed, was again appointed chairman for the National Red Cross War Appeal in Prince Edward Island at a meeting of Red Cross representatives held last evening and presided over by the Provincial President, Dr. W. J. MacMillan. Plans for the 1940 Appeal were under consideration by all those present among whom were Mrs. L. B. Chamney, Miss Mary Fielding and Mrs. Clarke, of the Alberton Red Cross Branch, and Mayor Campbell and Mr. W. A. Currie, of the Summerside Branch. September 23 is the date set for the coming National Red Cross War Appeal when the objective will be five millions.

FUNERAL YESTERDAY—The funeral of the late Mrs. Margaret Buchanan was held yesterday afternoon from the residence of her mother, Mrs. George Warry, 230 Eglon Street, where services were conducted by Rev. G. Carlyle Webster, who also officiated at the grave. Interment was at the cemetery. The pallbearers were Messrs. J. M. MacMillan, Perley Mutch, Frank Haley, K. Gallant, Robert Wakeling and Otto Gallant. The remains of the late Mrs. Buchanan arrived from Haverhill, Mass., on Monday evening, accompanied by Walter Warry, who was taken to the MacLean Funeral Home and yesterday morning re-interred in her mother's residence for her funeral.

LARGE NUMBER OF TICKETS SOLD—It is announced that 1460 tickets were sold at the Prince Edward and Capitol theatres in the City at Monday night's performance. In all $730. was paid for entrance tickets. Each person was given two War Savings Stamps for the admission price of 50 cents. If all the applications which were filed out it will amount to $8,350 in War Savings Certificates. Mr. A. R. Cooper, Manager of the Theatres, privately sold $940 in Certificates to several parties.

SUPREME COURT IN GEORGETOWN—The mid summer term of the Supreme Court was held in the Court House at Georgetown yesterday with His Lordship, Chief Justice MacKinnon presiding. He was presented with a pair of white gloves there being no criminal cases on the docket. There was one appeal case on the docket, the King vs. Foley. This was a Prohibition case which was heard by a former hearing and will be tried in Charlottetown, July 30th. By consent a civil jury case, Crouchant, plaintiff and McNeill, defendant, was set aside and will be tried in St. John's. There was also a jury case and arose out of a debt against an estate, Messrs. J. J. Johnson, K. C., and Donald MacKinnon appeared for the plaintiff, and Messrs. J. A. Macdonald, K. C., and M. Alban, appeared for the defendant. The Court adjourned sine die.

Personals

Miss Dorothy McCarron is vacationing at her home in Auburn.

Among the visitors to the City yesterday were Mrs. Mary McCarron and daughter Francis.

Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Fullerton, of Detroit, Michigan, have arrived on a visit to Mrs. Fullerton Greenfield Avenue, Charlottetown.

Many friends of Mr. James Kiggins who has been a patient in the Charlottetown Hospital for the past three weeks will be glad to know that he has returned home.

DRASTIC BILL
 (Continued from page 1)

war-swept areas.

While the House was sympathetic to the need of stern measures to safeguard the state, it refused to be hurried into one of the greatest revolutions in the law that Britain has ever known. Hearing how a man of judicial rank or one qualified to exercise high judicial office could sit with two local justices without a jury, the members told Sir John that he must proceed more slowly.

The Daily Mail editorially called the bill "the most drastic to emerge under the stress of war" and added that although its intention was no doubt excellent, its very sweeping powers must be carefully watched by Commons and public.

In response to criticism by H. B. Lees-Smith, Labor Leader in the House, that the bill is "too vague and a demand for Leslie Gore-Bellish Liberal-National, for safeguards when such extreme powers were handed to the executive. Sir John indicated that he would be satisfied with second readings.

He undertook to introduce into the bill words which would make it clear that any court established would be civilian. He also promised to consider whether the bill could

NEW ZEALAND FORMS UNION WAR CABINET

WELLINGTON, July 16—(CP)—New Zealand's Labor Government, which has formed the National Party Opposition in the fold today to form a war cabinet which Prime Minister Peter Fraser described as a move "to ensure unity in counsel and action in prosecuting the war effort to the fullest in support of Great Britain."

The war cabinet will have five members. The government members will be Mr. Fraser, Finance Minister Walter Nash and Defence Minister F. Jones. The opposition will be represented by Adam Hamilton, leader of the opposition and a former Postmaster General, and J. G. Coates, former Prime Minister.

In making the announcement, Mr. Fraser said the war cabinet would control the Dominion's war effort and its decisions would be conclusive. The general cabinet will continue to function with reference to all other matters, the existing ministers retaining their portfolios.

Unity of Action

In any action necessary to obtain governmental coordination consequent upon the virtual existence of two cabinets will be taken by the Prime Minister in accordance with his constitutional position.

"Formation of a war cabinet," Mr. Fraser said, "will give a complete opportunity for unity of action in war matters by the two existing parties without disturbing existing arrangements with regard to government control of the country's affairs."

He added that "this type of co-ordinated direction will meet effectively the needs of the difficult days ahead and insure a united front in the common task to achieve victory."

Mr. Fraser's statement was preceded by an announcement that the cabinet had approved formation of nine squadrons of mounted rifles for home defence in the hills where mechanized units of the territorial force are unable to operate freely.

Axis Powers
 (Continued from page 1)

and one raider was believed shot down.

Partners are Jittery

It begins to look a little as if the partners are getting frightened over the job they have set themselves. They have made so much noise about it that their own people that it might risk to back down. On the other hand their hope of quick success against the British Isles is extremely slim and the hope of a long-fought success virtually nil.

The longer the fight takes the more inexorably the wolves prowl toward the axis doors and other troubles are likely to accompany them.

Even today Marshal Petain, France's Chief of State, was reported in Grenoble to be anxious to get his administration back to German-occupied Paris because of certain elements there who were disloyal to him.

Nazi Invasion Plans

Another story, carried in the Grenoble newspaper Le Petit Dauphinois, said Germany was reported in foreign diplomatic circles in Switzerland to have assembled a force of 600,000 men and a vast number of tanks for an invasion attempt on Britain but that a division of opinion arose when Gen. Walther Von Brauchitsch became frightened at the risk.

This attempt, the newspaper said, was scheduled for the night of July 9-10, and a modified attempt may be made next Friday.

However, the possibility was voiced in some quarters that the rumors might be mere part of Gaid's kite, as Grenoble appears to be pretty close to Vichy which is now pretty close to the axis when it comes to unverified reports.

Axis Outlook Discouraging

When the war is over it may be that historians will find the major break in the striking force lay in its early success in conquering and absorbing its neighbors. Germany was not self-supporting when the war started. Italy was still further from being self-supporting. Of all the countries they seized not one was self-supporting, from Ethiopia to France.

They were forced and are still faced by the Royal Navy which probably has not diminished in strength since the war started, owing to rapid re-arming. Germany has lost most of her navy, her apparent plan to use the French navy to her advantage. Her navy has been to it and disarmed or sank it.

Germany should never have her responsibility.

Axis Outlook Discouraging

When the war is over it may be that historians will find the major break in the striking force lay in its early success in conquering and absorbing its neighbors. Germany was not self-supporting when the war started. Italy was still further from being self-supporting. Of all the countries they seized not one was self-supporting, from Ethiopia to France.

They were forced and are still faced by the Royal Navy which probably has not diminished in strength since the war started, owing to rapid re-arming. Germany has lost most of her navy, her apparent plan to use the French navy to her advantage. Her navy has been to it and disarmed or sank it.

Germany should never have her responsibility.

Axis Outlook Discouraging

When the war is over it may be that historians will find the major break in the striking force lay in its early success in conquering and absorbing its neighbors. Germany was not self-supporting when the war started. Italy was still further from being self-supporting. Of all the countries they seized not one was self-supporting, from Ethiopia to France.

They were forced and are still faced by the Royal Navy which probably has not diminished in strength since the war started, owing to rapid re-arming. Germany has lost most of her navy, her apparent plan to use the French navy to her advantage. Her navy has been to it and disarmed or sank it.

Germany should never have her responsibility.

Axis Outlook Discouraging

When the war is over it may be that historians will find the major break in the striking force lay in its early success in conquering and absorbing its neighbors. Germany was not self-supporting when the war started. Italy was still further from being self-supporting. Of all the countries they seized not one was self-supporting, from Ethiopia to France.

They were forced and are still faced by the Royal Navy which probably has not diminished in strength since the war started, owing to rapid re-arming. Germany has lost most of her navy, her apparent plan to use the French navy to her advantage. Her navy has been to it and disarmed or sank it.

Germany should never have her responsibility.

Axis Outlook Discouraging

When the war is over it may be that historians will find the major break in the striking force lay in its early success in conquering and absorbing its neighbors. Germany was not self-supporting when the war started. Italy was still further from being self-supporting. Of all the countries they seized not one was self-supporting, from Ethiopia to France.

They were forced and are still faced by the Royal Navy which probably has not diminished in strength since the war started, owing to rapid re-arming. Germany has lost most of her navy, her apparent plan to use the French navy to her advantage. Her navy has been to it and disarmed or sank it.

Germany should never have her responsibility.

NEW ZEALAND FORMS UNION WAR CABINET

WELLINGTON, July 16—(CP)—New Zealand's Labor Government, which has formed the National Party Opposition in the fold today to form a war cabinet which Prime Minister Peter Fraser described as a move "to ensure unity in counsel and action in prosecuting the war effort to the fullest in support of Great Britain."

The war cabinet will have five members. The government members will be Mr. Fraser, Finance Minister Walter Nash and Defence Minister F. Jones. The opposition will be represented by Adam Hamilton, leader of the opposition and a former Postmaster General, and J. G. Coates, former Prime Minister.

In making the announcement, Mr. Fraser said the war cabinet would control the Dominion's war effort and its decisions would be conclusive. The general cabinet will continue to function with reference to all other matters, the existing ministers retaining their portfolios.

Unity of Action

In any action necessary to obtain governmental coordination consequent upon the virtual existence of two cabinets will be taken by the Prime Minister in accordance with his constitutional position.

"Formation of a war cabinet," Mr. Fraser said, "will give a complete opportunity for unity of action in war matters by the two existing parties without disturbing existing arrangements with regard to government control of the country's affairs."

He added that "this type of co-ordinated direction will meet effectively the needs of the difficult days ahead and insure a united front in the common task to achieve victory."

Mr. Fraser's statement was preceded by an announcement that the cabinet had approved formation of nine squadrons of mounted rifles for home defence in the hills where mechanized units of the territorial force are unable to operate freely.

Axis Powers
 (Continued from page 1)

and one raider was believed shot down.

Partners are Jittery

It begins to look a little as if the partners are getting frightened over the job they have set themselves. They have made so much noise about it that their own people that it might risk to back down. On the other hand their hope of quick success against the British Isles is extremely slim and the hope of a long-fought success virtually nil.

The longer the fight takes the more inexorably the wolves prowl toward the axis doors and other troubles are likely to accompany them.

Even today Marshal Petain, France's Chief of State, was reported in Grenoble to be anxious to get his administration back to German-occupied Paris because of certain elements there who were disloyal to him.

Nazi Invasion Plans

Another story, carried in the Grenoble newspaper Le Petit Dauphinois, said Germany was reported in foreign diplomatic circles in Switzerland to have assembled a force of 600,000 men and a vast number of tanks for an invasion attempt on Britain but that a division of opinion arose when Gen. Walther Von Brauchitsch became frightened at the risk.

This attempt, the newspaper said, was scheduled for the night of July 9-10, and a modified attempt may be made next Friday.

However, the possibility was voiced in some quarters that the rumors might be mere part of Gaid's kite, as Grenoble appears to be pretty close to Vichy which is now pretty close to the axis when it comes to unverified reports.

Axis Outlook Discouraging

When the war is over it may be that historians will find the major break in the striking force lay in its early success in conquering and absorbing its neighbors. Germany was not self-supporting when the war started. Italy was still further from being self-supporting. Of all the countries they seized not one was self-supporting, from Ethiopia to France.

They were forced and are still faced by the Royal Navy which probably has not diminished in strength since the war started, owing to rapid re-arming. Germany has lost most of her navy, her apparent plan to use the French navy to her advantage. Her navy has been to it and disarmed or sank it.

Germany should never have her responsibility.

Axis Outlook Discouraging

When the war is over it may be that historians will find the major break in the striking force lay in its early success in conquering and absorbing its neighbors. Germany was not self-supporting when the war started. Italy was still further from being self-supporting. Of all the countries they seized not one was self-supporting, from Ethiopia to France.

They were forced and are still faced by the Royal Navy which probably has not diminished in strength since the war started, owing to rapid re-arming. Germany has lost most of her navy, her apparent plan to use the French navy to her advantage. Her navy has been to it and disarmed or sank it.

Germany should never have her responsibility.

Axis Outlook Discouraging

When the war is over it may be that historians will find the major break in the striking force lay in its early success in conquering and absorbing its neighbors. Germany was not self-supporting when the war started. Italy was still further from being self-supporting. Of all the countries they seized not one was self-supporting, from Ethiopia to France.

They were forced and are still faced by the Royal Navy which probably has not diminished in strength since the war started, owing to rapid re-arming. Germany has lost most of her navy, her apparent plan to use the French navy to her advantage. Her navy has been to it and disarmed or sank it.

Germany should never have her responsibility.

Axis Outlook Discouraging

When the war is over it may be that historians will find the major break in the striking force lay in its early success in conquering and absorbing its neighbors. Germany was not self-supporting when the war started. Italy was still further from being self-supporting. Of all the countries they seized not one was self-supporting, from Ethiopia to France.

They were forced and are still faced by the Royal Navy which probably has not diminished in strength since the war started, owing to rapid re-arming. Germany has lost most of her navy, her apparent plan to use the French navy to her advantage. Her navy has been to it and disarmed or sank it.

Germany should never have her responsibility.

Axis Outlook Discouraging

When the war is over it may be that historians will find the major break in the striking force lay in its early success in conquering and absorbing its neighbors. Germany was not self-supporting when the war started. Italy was still further from being self-supporting. Of all the countries they seized not one was self-supporting, from Ethiopia to France.

They were forced and are still faced by the Royal Navy which probably has not diminished in strength since the war started, owing to rapid re-arming. Germany has lost most of her navy, her apparent plan to use the French navy to her advantage. Her navy has been to it and disarmed or sank it.

Germany should never have her responsibility.

Axis Outlook Discouraging

When the war is over it may be that historians will find the major break in the striking force lay in its early success in conquering and absorbing its neighbors. Germany was not self-supporting when the war started. Italy was still further from being self-supporting. Of all the countries they seized not one was self-supporting, from Ethiopia to France.

They were forced and are still faced by the Royal Navy which probably has not diminished in strength since the war started, owing to rapid re-arming. Germany has lost most of her navy, her apparent plan to use the French navy to her advantage. Her navy has been to it and disarmed or sank it.

Germany should never have her responsibility.

Axis Outlook Discouraging

When the war is over it may be that historians will find the major break in the striking force lay in its early success in conquering and absorbing its neighbors. Germany was not self-supporting when the war started. Italy was still further from being self-supporting. Of all the countries they seized not one was self-supporting, from Ethiopia to France.

They were forced and are still faced by the Royal Navy which probably has not diminished in strength since the war started, owing to rapid re-arming. Germany has lost most of her navy, her apparent plan to use the French navy to her advantage. Her navy has been to it and disarmed or sank it.

Germany should never have her responsibility.

Axis Outlook Discouraging

When the war is over it may be that historians will find the major break in the striking force lay in its early success in conquering and absorbing its neighbors. Germany was not self-supporting when the war started. Italy was still further from being self-supporting. Of all the countries they seized not one was self-supporting, from Ethiopia to France.

They were forced and are still faced by the Royal Navy which probably has not diminished in strength since the war started, owing to rapid re-arming. Germany has lost most of her navy, her apparent plan to use the French navy to her advantage. Her navy has been to it and disarmed or sank it.

Germany should never have her responsibility.

Aberhart Accepted Mysterious Offer To Finance Bank

OTTAWA, July 16—(CP)—An offer by a mysterious "Mr. Sousa" to finance the proposed Alberta provincial bank, and its acceptance by Premier Aberhart two years ago, was revealed at today's proceedings of the Commons Banking and Commerce Committee.

Hon. Solon Low, Provincial Treasurer, told the story of Mr. Sousa under questioning by G. H. Ross (Lib. Calgary East) while the committee was considering Alberta's application for a provincial bank charter.

Mr. Sousa was head of a United States syndicate which wanted to establish a provincial bank in Alberta to handle the financing of a projected highway through that province to Alaska, Mr. Low said. Nothing came of his proposition.

Mr. Ross asked Mr. Low if he knew Sousa was a "house-to-house peddler," but the witness said he was not aware of it. Mr. Low said an option had been given the Sousa group to refinance Alberta's debt but the option had not been taken up.

Crises of "who is Mr. Sousa" were shouted by committee members when his name first crept into the discussion. Mr. Low declared all the negotiations with him were shrouded by committee members when his name first crept into the discussion. Mr. Low declared all the negotiations with him were shrouded by committee members when his name first crept into the discussion.

Axis Powers
 (Continued from page 1)

and one raider was believed shot down.

Partners are Jittery

It begins to look a little as if the partners are getting frightened over the job they have set themselves. They have made so much noise about it that their own people that it might risk to back down. On the other hand their hope of quick success against the British Isles is extremely slim and the hope of a long-fought success virtually nil.

The longer the fight takes the more inexorably the wolves prowl toward the axis doors and other troubles are likely to accompany them.

Even today Marshal Petain, France's Chief of State, was reported in Grenoble to be anxious to get his administration back to German-occupied Paris because of certain elements there who were disloyal to him.

Nazi Invasion Plans

Another story, carried in the Grenoble newspaper Le Petit Dauphinois, said Germany was reported in foreign diplomatic circles in Switzerland to have assembled a force of 600,000 men and a vast number of tanks for an invasion attempt on Britain but that a division of opinion arose when Gen. Walther Von Brauchitsch became frightened at the risk.

This attempt, the newspaper said, was scheduled for the night of July 9-10, and a modified attempt may be made next Friday.

However, the possibility was voiced in some quarters that the rumors might be mere part of Gaid's kite, as Grenoble appears to be pretty close to Vichy which is now pretty close to the axis when it comes to unverified reports.

Axis Outlook Discouraging

When the war is over it may be that historians will find the major break in the striking force lay in its early success in conquering and absorbing its neighbors. Germany was not self-supporting when the war started. Italy was still further from being self-supporting. Of all the countries they seized not one was self-supporting, from Ethiopia to France.

They were forced and are still faced by the Royal Navy which probably has not diminished in strength since the war started, owing to rapid re-arming. Germany has lost most of her navy, her apparent plan to use the French navy to her advantage. Her navy has been to it and disarmed or sank it.

Germany should never have her responsibility.

Axis Powers
 (Continued from page 1)

and one raider was believed shot down.

Partners are Jittery

It begins to look a little as if the partners are getting frightened over the job they have set themselves. They have made so much noise about it that their own people that it might risk to back down. On the other hand their hope of quick success against the British Isles is extremely slim and the hope of a long-fought success virtually nil.

The longer the fight takes the more inexorably the wolves prowl toward the axis doors and other troubles are likely to accompany them.

Even today Marshal Petain, France's Chief of State, was reported in Grenoble to be anxious to get his administration back to German-occupied Paris because of certain elements there who were disloyal to him.

Nazi Invasion Plans

Another story, carried in the Grenoble newspaper Le Petit Dauphinois, said Germany was reported in foreign diplomatic circles in Switzerland to have assembled a force of 600,000 men and a vast number of tanks for an invasion attempt on Britain but that a division of opinion arose when Gen. Walther Von Brauchitsch became frightened at the risk.

This attempt, the newspaper said, was scheduled for the night of July 9-10, and a modified attempt may be made next Friday.

However, the possibility was voiced in some quarters that the rumors might be mere part of Gaid's kite, as Grenoble appears to be pretty close to Vichy which is now pretty close to the axis when it comes to unverified reports.

Axis Outlook Discouraging

When the war is over it may be that historians will find the major break in the striking force lay in its early success in conquering and absorbing its neighbors. Germany was not self-supporting when the war started. Italy was still further from being self-supporting. Of all the countries they seized not one was self-supporting, from Ethiopia to France.

They were forced and are still faced by the Royal Navy which probably has not diminished in strength since the war started, owing to rapid re-arming. Germany has lost most of her navy, her apparent plan to use the French navy to her advantage. Her navy has been to it and disarmed or sank it.

Germany should never have her responsibility.

Axis Powers
 (Continued from page 1)

and one raider was believed shot down.

Partners are Jittery

It begins to look a little as if the partners are getting frightened over the job they have set themselves. They have made so much noise about it that their own people that it might risk to back down. On the other hand their hope of quick success against the British Isles is extremely slim and the hope of a long-fought success virtually nil.

The longer the fight takes the more inexorably the wolves prowl toward the axis doors and other troubles are likely to accompany them.

Even today Marshal Petain, France's Chief of State, was reported in Grenoble to be anxious to get his administration back to German-occupied Paris because of certain elements there who were disloyal to him.

Nazi Invasion Plans

Another story, carried in the Grenoble newspaper Le Petit Dauphinois, said Germany was reported in foreign diplomatic circles in Switzerland to have assembled a force of 600,000 men and a vast number of tanks for an invasion attempt on Britain but that a division of opinion arose when Gen. Walther Von Brauchitsch became frightened at the risk.

This attempt, the newspaper said, was scheduled for the night of July 9-10, and a modified attempt may be made next Friday.

However, the possibility was voiced in some quarters that the rumors might be mere part of Gaid's kite, as Grenoble appears to be pretty close to Vichy which is now pretty close to the axis when it comes to unverified reports.

Axis Outlook Discouraging

When the war is over it may be that historians will find the major break in the striking force lay in its early success in conquering and absorbing its neighbors. Germany was not self-supporting when the war started. Italy was still further from being self-supporting. Of all the countries they seized not one was self-supporting, from Ethiopia to France.

They were forced and are still faced by the Royal Navy which probably has not diminished in strength since the war started, owing to rapid re-arming. Germany has lost most of her navy, her apparent plan to use the French navy to her advantage. Her navy has been to it and disarmed or sank it.

Germany should never have her responsibility.

Axis Powers
 (Continued from page 1)

and one raider was believed shot down.

Partners are Jittery

It begins to look a little as if the partners are getting frightened over the job they have set themselves. They have made so much noise about it that their own people that it might risk to back down. On the other hand their hope of quick success against the British Isles is extremely slim and the hope of a long-fought success virtually nil.

The longer the fight takes the more inexorably the wolves prowl toward the axis doors and other troubles are likely to accompany them.

Even today Marshal Petain, France's Chief of State, was reported in Grenoble to be anxious to get his administration back to German-occupied Paris because of certain elements there who were disloyal to him.

Nazi Invasion Plans

Another story, carried in the Grenoble newspaper Le Petit Dauphinois, said Germany was reported in foreign diplomatic circles in Switzerland to have assembled a force of 600,000 men and a vast number of tanks for an invasion attempt on Britain but that a division of opinion arose when Gen. Walther Von Brauchitsch became frightened at the risk.

This attempt, the newspaper said, was scheduled for the night of July 9-10, and a modified attempt may be made next Friday.

However, the possibility was voiced in some quarters that the rumors might be mere part of Gaid's kite, as Grenoble appears to be pretty close to Vichy which is now pretty close to the axis when it comes to unverified reports.

Axis Outlook Discouraging

When the war is over it may be that historians will find the major break in the striking force lay in its early success in conquering and absorbing its neighbors. Germany was not self-supporting when the war started. Italy was still further from being self-supporting. Of all the countries they seized not one was self-supporting, from Ethiopia to France.

They were forced and are still faced by the Royal Navy which probably has not diminished in strength since the war started, owing to rapid re-arming. Germany has lost most of her navy, her apparent plan to use the French navy to her advantage. Her navy has been to it and disarmed or sank it.

Germany should never have her responsibility.

Axis Powers
 (Continued from page 1)

and one raider was believed shot down.

Partners are Jittery

It begins to look a little as if the partners are getting frightened over the job they have set themselves. They have made so much noise about it that their own people that it might risk to back down. On the other hand their hope of quick success against the British Isles is extremely slim and the hope of a long-fought success virtually nil.

The longer the fight takes the more inexorably the wolves prowl toward the axis doors and other troubles are likely to accompany them.

Even today Marshal Petain, France's Chief of State, was reported in Grenoble to be anxious to get his administration back to German-occupied Paris because of certain elements there who were disloyal to him.

Nazi Invasion Plans

Another story, carried in the Grenoble newspaper Le Petit Dauphinois, said Germany was reported in foreign diplomatic circles in Switzerland to have assembled a force of 600,000 men and a vast number of tanks for an invasion attempt on Britain but that a division of opinion arose when Gen. Walther Von Brauchitsch became frightened at the risk.

This attempt, the newspaper said, was scheduled for the night of July 9-10, and a modified attempt may be made next Friday.

However, the possibility was voiced in some quarters that the rumors might be mere part of Gaid's kite, as Grenoble appears to be pretty close to Vichy which is now pretty close to the axis when it comes to unverified reports.

Axis Outlook Discouraging

When the war is over it may be that historians will find the major break in the striking force lay in its early success in conquering and absorbing its neighbors. Germany was not self-supporting when the war started. Italy was still further from being self-supporting. Of all the countries they seized not one was self-supporting, from Ethiopia to France.

They were forced and are still faced by the Royal Navy which probably has not diminished in strength since the war started, owing to rapid re-arming. Germany has lost most of her navy, her apparent plan to use the French navy to her advantage. Her navy has been to it and disarmed or sank it.

Germany should never have her responsibility.

Axis Powers
 (Continued from page 1)

and one raider was believed shot down.

Partners are Jittery

It begins to look a little as if the partners are getting frightened over the job they have set themselves. They have made so much noise about it that their own people that it might risk to back down. On the other hand their hope of quick success against the British Isles is extremely slim and the hope of a long-fought success virtually nil.

The longer the fight takes the more inexorably the wolves prowl toward the axis doors and other troubles are likely to accompany them.

Even today Marshal Petain, France's Chief of State, was reported in Grenoble to be anxious to get his administration back to German-occupied Paris because of certain elements there who were disloyal to him.

Nazi Invasion Plans

Another story, carried in the Grenoble newspaper Le Petit Dauphinois, said Germany was reported in foreign diplomatic circles in Switzerland to have assembled a force of 600,000 men and a vast number of tanks for an invasion attempt on Britain but that a division of opinion arose when Gen. Walther Von Brauchitsch became frightened at the risk.

This attempt, the newspaper said, was scheduled for the night of July 9-10, and a modified attempt may be made next Friday.

However, the possibility was voiced in some quarters that the rumors might be mere part of Gaid's kite, as Grenoble appears to be pretty close to Vichy which is now pretty close to the axis when it comes to unverified reports.

Axis Outlook Discouraging

When the war is over it may be that historians will find the major break in the striking force lay in its early success in conquering and absorbing its neighbors. Germany was not self-supporting when the war started. Italy was still further from being self-supporting. Of all the countries they seized not one was self-supporting, from Ethiopia to France.

They were forced and are still faced by the Royal Navy which probably has not diminished in strength since the war started, owing to rapid re-arming. Germany has lost most of her navy, her apparent plan to use the French navy to her advantage. Her navy has been to it and disarmed or sank it.

Germany should never have her responsibility.

Axis Powers
 (Continued from page 1)

and one raider was believed shot down.

Partners are Jittery

It begins to look a little as if the partners are getting frightened over the job they have set themselves. They have made so much noise about it that their own people that it might risk to back down. On the other hand their hope of quick success against the British Isles is extremely slim and the hope of a long-fought success virtually nil.

The longer the fight takes the more inexorably the wolves prowl toward the axis doors and other troubles are likely to accompany them.

Even today Marshal Petain, France's Chief of State, was reported in Grenoble to be anxious to get his administration back to German-occupied Paris because of certain elements there who were disloyal to him.

Nazi Invasion Plans

Another story, carried in the Grenoble newspaper Le Petit Dauphinois, said Germany was reported in foreign diplomatic circles in Switzerland to have assembled a force of 600,000 men and a vast number of tanks for an invasion attempt on Britain but that a division of opinion arose when Gen. Walther Von Brauchitsch became frightened at the risk.

This attempt, the newspaper said, was scheduled for the night of July 9-10, and a modified attempt may be made next Friday.

However, the possibility was voiced in some quarters that the rumors might be mere part of Gaid's kite, as Grenoble appears to be pretty close to Vichy which is now pretty close to the axis when it comes to unverified reports.

Axis Outlook Discouraging

When the war is over it may be that historians will find the major break in the striking force lay in its early success in conquering and absorbing its neighbors. Germany was not self-supporting when the war started. Italy was still further from being self-supporting. Of all the countries they seized not one was self-supporting, from Ethiopia to France.

They were forced and are still faced by the Royal Navy which probably has not diminished in strength since the war started, owing to rapid re-arming. Germany has lost most of her navy, her apparent plan to use the French navy to her advantage. Her navy has been to it and disarmed or sank it.

Germany should never have her responsibility.

Axis Powers
 (Continued from page 1)

and one raider was believed shot down.

Partners are Jittery

It begins to look a little as if the partners are getting frightened over the job they have set themselves. They have made so much noise about it that their own people that it might risk to back down. On the other hand their hope of quick success against the British Isles is extremely slim and the hope of a long-fought success virtually nil.

The longer the fight takes the more inexorably the wolves prowl toward the axis doors and other troubles are likely to accompany them.

Even today Marshal Petain, France's Chief of State, was reported in Grenoble to be anxious to get his administration back to German-occupied Paris because of certain elements there who were disloyal to him.

Nazi Invasion Plans

Another story, carried in the Grenoble newspaper Le Petit Dauphinois, said Germany was reported in foreign diplomatic circles in Switzerland to have assembled a force of 600,000 men and a vast number of tanks for an invasion attempt on Britain but that a division of opinion arose when Gen. Walther Von Brauchitsch became frightened at the risk.

This attempt, the newspaper said, was scheduled for the night of July 9-10, and a modified attempt may be made next Friday.

However, the possibility was voiced in some quarters that the rumors might be mere part of Gaid's kite, as Grenoble appears to be pretty close to Vichy which is now pretty close to the axis when it comes to unverified reports.

Axis Outlook Discouraging

When the war is over it may be that historians will find the major break in the striking force lay in its early success in conquering and absorbing its neighbors. Germany was not self-supporting when the war started. Italy was still further from being self-supporting. Of all the countries they seized not one was self-supporting, from Ethiopia to France.

They were forced and are still faced by the Royal Navy which probably has not diminished in strength since the war