Sect Of Shakers Is Fast Nearing Death

LEBANON, Ohio, Oct. 28.—Only the epitaph remains to be told of the story of the Shakers, once powerful religious sect.

Less than a half century ago the Shakers owned and farmed thousands of acres of the best lands in Ohio, as well as rich tracts in the east. Today, all their Ohio lands are in the hands of others, and the Shakers have gone. The few colonies remaining in the East, at East Canterbury, N. H.; Pittsfield, Mass., and West Albany, and Mount Lebanon, N. Y., number but a few dwindling hundreds.

Founded 150 Years Ago

More than a century and a half ago, the adherents of "Mother Ann Lee" came to America from England, and established the first colony of Shakers in New York state. Nearly a century and a quarter ago John Meacham, Issachar Bates and Benjamin S. Youngs, missionaries of the new faith, came over the Alleghenies to Lebanon, Ohio, where they set up the banner of the Shakers in the wilderness.

Despite opposition, the new sect grew and became wealthy. The Shakers bought the best land in the region. They were sober, industrious, pious and honest. They abolished marriage and depended upon converts from other denominations or "from the world" to keep up their membership. But they offered convert little beyond a life of peace and quiet. When a man and his wife joined the sect all their material possessions passed into the hands of the church, and the conjugal ties were abolished.

Lives Almost Monastic

Shakers made their life almost monastic in color. Like monks and nuns they toiled for their church, gave succor to the needy, maintained the relationship of brothers and sisters. The "pooling" of lands and all resources in the hands of the church made it a communistic enterprise.

There was little intellectual life, and education was not encouraged until the later years of the church. The Shakers believed that Adam and Eve were the physical progenitors of man, but that man's spiritual nature sprang from the mythical union of Jesus and Ann Lee.

But the church and communistic colonies founded on these beliefs

Italy's Royalty Owns Ancient French Abbey

HAUTECOMBE, Savoy, Oct. 28.—Seldom visited by its owners, the titular rulers of Italy, the Abbey of Hautecombe on the shore of Lake Bourget in France is as sacred to them as any spot in their own country.

Within the stately walls of the ancient abbey no fewer than forty-three members of the royal house of Savoy, twenty-one of whom wore crowns, lie buried. The most recent royal visitor to the tombs of his forebears was Prince Umberto, the Italian crown prince.

Royal Apartment Vacant

The Abbey of Hautecombe was founded by St. Bernard in 1135. In the old abbey an apartment is kept ever in readiness for the King of Italy, but it has never been used by the Italian royal family. A few years ago the King of Italy visited the Abbey incognito, and it was only some days later that the monks learned that the visitor they had shown round the monastery was the King of Italy, for Hautecombe is the property of the Italian crown.

Tombs Are Historic

The forty-three royal tombs in the chapels and crypt of the Abbey date from 1162, when Anne-Germaine de Zoeringen, second wife of Umberto III, was laid to rest, to 1849, when Marie-Christine of Bourbon, dowager Queen of Sardinia, was buried here. As the visitor looks around he reads on the tombs the names of Umberto III, Count of Savoy, 1189; Beatrix de Genevois, wife of Thomas I, 1257; Peter II, 1268, who was uncle to Eleanor, wife of Henry III of England; Amadeus VII, the Red Count, who died in 1391; Philip II, 1497; and Charles-Felix of Savoy, King of Sardinia, 1831, are others buried here.

Charles-Felix of Savoy, King of Sardinia, purchased the Abbey of Hautecombe in 1824. When he visited it in that year the abbey was almost in ruins. He bought and restored it.

EXPLORERS BRAVE DANGERS TO CHART ANCIENT SEWERS

LONDON, Oct. 28.—An expedition headed by two architects will spend the next two or three years exploring unknown parts of London. It will chart a wilderness whose dangers number raging torrents and tidal waves which would sweep a man along like a cork, explosions and asphyxiating gases and millions of rats. It will examine, in short, sixty miles of sewers underneath the City of London.

They were last charted in 1870. Some were built in the time of Elizabeth and some before. No one knows their exact location or extent.

and practices did not prosper. There were desertions; schisms broke out. Within comparatively few years the membership in Ohio dropped from more than a thousand to the one lone Shaker still in Lebanon, and the total membership in all the colonies in America from more than 6,000 to less than half a thousand.

SUCCESSFUL HALLOWE'EN TEA.

The annual Halloween tea just night in St. James' Hall, under the auspices of The Young Ladies Guild was a splendid success, notwithstanding the unfavorable weather. The hall and tables were tastefully decorated with Halloween silhouettes and the young ladies in attendance looked very charming in their pretty Halloween costumes. There was a very large attendance and the proceeds amounted to over $200. The Young Ladies Guild are to be congratulated on their excellent management of this annual function.

BOWLING.—The Carmody Bros., of Charlottetown bowlers were defeated here a few evenings ago in a bowling contest. Our local five consisting of Messrs. Alfred Clements, "Gig" Houghton, James Arsenault, Tennis Gallant and Lloyd Perry, will play a return game in the course of a few days.—H.

POLICE COURT.

Tuesday was a busy day at the Police Court here. One bootlegger was convicted and sentenced to ten months in jail, another one was given six months and a third case was dismissed for want of evidence, the case of a hardware clerk charged with selling cartridges to a minor was adjourned till Saturday for judgment, a commitment against a local man for selling intoxicants was enforced on Wednesday when he started in to serve a sentence of eleven months in jail.—H.

Messrs Hartford Woodside and J. C. Woodside, Tryon, motored to town on Wednesday, on a brief business trip. They were guests at the Minto House.

Screen Star Build Own Home Theatres

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 28.—"Own your own theatre" has become the slogan of many of the motion picture stars, players and executives of the film colony.

Officials of one of the largest studios estimate that fully two thirds of the executive and talent personnel own their own projection machines, which have been installed in their homes. Many of the more prominent players and executives have completely equipped "built-in" theatres. Architects designing homes for many members of the film colony pay special attention to the new theatre feature.

Aid Self Criticism

Antonio Moreno, owner of one of the finest mansions of Los Angeles, has a fully equipped theatre in his house. Two projectors have been installed and the actor not only entertains his friends but takes advantage of his practical uses. Here he takes his own time about studying his make-up and the technique of his acting.

Marion Davies has two built-in theatres, one at her Beverly Hills home and another at her beach place in Santa Monica. There she can view the "rushes" of her previous day's work and take her time about picking flaws.

View The "Rushes"

Louis B. Mayer, producing head of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio, has installed two projection machines in his home where he can look at "rushes" undisturbed by the cares of the studio.

Director Fred Niblo has made provisions for a special theatre in his home. King Vidor has a concealed theatre. The projectors are hidden behind wall tapestries on one side of a large room and a screen is secreted behind tapestries on the far side.

Mae Murray, Lillian Gish, Claire Windsor and other feminine players have purchased "movieola" projectors, about the size of a small piano, but Conrad Nagel has made one room do the work of two—billiard hall and theatre.

When boiling new milk, to prevent a "skin" from forming on the top as it cooks, add two table-spoons of cold milk to every pint when at the boiling point, and stir for a minute. The so-called skin will then be absorbed and the milk will not be impoverished.

Father Duffy Visits His Home At Fort Augustus

Rev. Henry A. Duffy has been spending a very pleasant vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Duffy at Fort Augustus.

Four years ago Fr. Duffy was ordained to the priesthood in St. Dunstan's Cathedral, Charlottetown by Bishop Louis O'Leary for the diocese of Edmonton, Alberta, and has since been engaged at Hysler and other missions.

On Sunday, October 17th inst. he celebrated his 17th inst. anniversary of his ordination in St. Patrick's Church, where he preached to a large congregation an eloquent and impressive sermon from the text, "Whose sins you shall forgive they are forgiven and whose sins you shall retain they are retained." In the afternoon a large number of relatives and friends gathered to greet Fr. Duffy at his home, where they were highly entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Duffy and family.

"Comma Detective" Is A Screen Dignitary

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 29.—The "Comma Detective," the "Wrist-watch Hound" and the "Human Spectroscope" all three queer sounding dignitaries whose influence is a potent one on the screen.

These are three of a myriad of unheralded workers whose efforts help make the motion pictures of today. They work under cover; their names do not blaze in electric lights—but they are, in a measure, the heart and soul of the screen plays of today.

Seeks Misspelled Words

The "Comma Detective" at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios is Danny Bray by name and chief film editor by title. One of his duties is to pass on every subtitle made in the studio, to see that the artists painting them have left no misspelled words, misplaced commas or superfluous punctuation. It is a task akin to that of a copy-reader on a newspaper.

Searches the crowd scenes with his eyes, the watch mar an ancient scene in a historical picture. The champion "wrist watch sleuth" of the studio is Charles Dorian, an assistant director. They say no wrist watch has ever escaped him. Extras are prone to forget to remove them when getting into costume.

Visualizes Screen Colors

The "Human Spectroscope" is John Nicholas, superintendent of the laboratory. From long practice he can glance at a setting of costume, and tell exactly how its colors will appear in the black and white of the finished film. He goes over, each setting with the chief of the art department, who designs them, to check on "reds" and "blues"—which photograph as basic black and white on the film.

Linguists also have their uses in the silent drama. The makeup expert has an important place. Then there is the military authority who knows every detail of European and military and court etiquette. His services do much to make "foreign" stories authentic.

Among others are historians, research architects, artists, and a staff of costume designers.

Low Franc Also Hit Pyrenees Bootlegger

HENDAYE, France, Oct. 28.—The bootlegger of the lower Pyrenees has joined the victims of the depreciated franc.

Spanish alcohol, when successfully smuggled across the Pyrenees, is sold at a profit of 50 per cent. The bootlegger of France met to settle their differences, could be sold at an immense profit ten years ago. Now, with the peseta worth more than five times as much as the franc the risk is greater than the profit.

CHANGES MADE BY POINCARÉ GOVERNMENT SHOW GOOD RESULTS

PARIS, Oct. 28.—Economies resulting from administrative changes already made up the Poincaré Government show a total saving for the year of 109,883,000 francs, according to rectified figures of the budget of 1927, presented to the Finance Committee of the Chamber of Deputies today by the Premier.

The saving on the war budget alone was 210,000,000 francs, partly counter-balanced by increased expenses of the interior department which put into practice administrative changes which are expected to effect eventual savings. Economies in the other ministries were modest during the year, but a much greater saving is now forecast.

Tyne Valley And Vicinity

The funeral of the late R. J. McNeill took place on Sunday, October 24th, and was largely attended by friends from different parts of the island. The services at the house were conducted by Rev. B. Carew, assisted by Rev. A. Brown and Rev. H. Coleman. Mr. Carew took for his text the words of St. Paul in Phil. 1:21. For to me to live is Christ, to die is gain. The hymns were "Shall we gather at the River," "Safe in the Arms of Jesus," and "Nearer My God to Thee," all favorites of the deceased. Messrs. R. B. Richardson, G. Shelton Sharp, A. C. Saunders, Hon. A. E. MacLean, Thomas Linkletter and J. W. Brown were honorary pall-bearers, and Messrs. Lemuel Barleigh, Wilfred Wood, Preston Ellis, Robert Ramsay, Wesley Milligan and Cecil Forbes, were acting pall-bearers. Interment was made in the Presbyterian Cemetery. The sympathy of the community goes out to Mrs. McNeill and family in their sad bereavement.

Hurt in bad fall, young woman makes quick recovery

A young woman at Bushnell's Basin, Monroe County, New York, fell and was badly bruised and strained. "I suffered agony," she writes, "but I used Sloan's Liniment and it relieved the pain right away. Now I don't feel it at all."

What is the secret of this remarkable remedy? Simply the fact that Sloan's doesn't merely deaden the nerves so that you don't feel the pain. It really drives out the pain by helping the conditions that are causing it.

Right to the affected spot it brings a healing stream of fresh, revitalizing blood, driving out congestion, relaxing contracted muscles. The pain stops as a natural consequence. So clean and easy to use, too. Just pat it on lightly without rubbing, and the liniment will do its work. Get a bottle today and have it on hand. All druggists have it—35 cents.

THE MARKETS

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 28.—The feature of the export trade in Canadian grain on the Montreal market today was the improved demand from continental buyers for Manitoba spring wheat and Canadian western barley. The majority of the bids were in line with local exporters views and a good trade was done. The trade with the United Kingdom was quiet, and only sales of odd lots were made for first half November shipment. Trading in cash grain in the domestic market was again of a very limited character but prices were unchanged. The local and export trade in spring wheat flour was quiet but prices were steady. The movement of winter wheat flour was also limited but values were unchanged. Prices for all lines of millfeed were well maintained under good demand. The demand for standard grades of rolled oats was steady and the undertone was firm. indications are that prices for fresh eggs will be advanced shortly owing to the scarcity of supplies. The demand today was good but prices were unchanged. The storage situation was fairly active and steady. The receipts were 2,000 cases. An active trade was transacted in potatoes and values were firm. Car lots of New Brunswick green mung beans were quoted at $1.90 to $2.00 per bag and Quebec white stock at $1.75 to $1.80 per bag of ninety pounds. The butter trade was featured by the demand from United States buyers for fresh made pasteurized creamery and sales of one or two small lots were made. The local trade was fair and prices were unchanged. No. 1 pasteurized was quoted at 34c to 34½c per pound. The foreign demand for cheese showed a slight improvement today but the local inquiry was small. Prices were unchanged. Western grades were quoted at 18c to 18½c and eastern grades at 17½c to 18c per pound. The receipts were 5,798 boxes.

Grandfather Clock Has Ticked Through 200 Years

PEORIA, Ill., Oct. 28.—Most everybody is familiar with Longfellow's poem about the grandfather clock, but few are as old as the one in the home of James Robertson, Harrison, 72, inventor and manufacturer, which has been ticking steadily through nearly 200 years for six generations of the Harrison family. It keeps perfect time and the works which are of brass show no mark of the Hand of Time.

The ancient timepiece was brought to America from England about 1800 by Robert Harrison, grandfather of the present owner. It was fathered to Robert by his father, who probably was the first owner, so that its history dates well back in the 1700's. And it has been willed through each generation since.

Curiously, the works bear the date AD 1619, but this apparently is too early for the type of clock. It runs ten days for each winding.

Storm Battered British Freighter Limp Into Port

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 28.—Battered by the hurricane which last week swept over Cuba, the British steamer H. H. Asquith, a 9,000 ton freighter from Vancouver, B. C., put into port Newark today with her captain and six members of her crew suffering from injuries.

Her cargo of 4,500,000 feet of lumber has listed so much that it required four tugs to pull the vessel into port.

Captain R. Wattle, commander, was confined to his state room with three broken ribs and a fractured collarbone. Despite his injuries he had refused to leave the bridge until the storm abated. Two lifeboats were lost and several others were stove in, davits were torn loose and the super-structure was badly damaged.

One member of the crew, washed overboard at the height of the storm saved himself by grasping a broken davit. He hung suspended over the ship's side until hauled in.
