N. S. PREMIER (Continued from Page 1)

Companies and Labor Minister Leacock D. Currie announced late last week that coal supplies for 90 days now were assured and arrangements had been made to import United States coal if the strike should last beyond that period.

Telegram to Mr. Jenkins Following is the text of the telegram which Premier Macdonald sent to Mr. Jenkins: Your night letter reached me this forenoon.

One of the most fundamental responsibilities of government is to see, so far as it can, that health of its people is protected. Consequently, if there is a demand for coal being available for homes, hospitals, and essential industries upon which health and even lives of people depend, government cannot sit by without taking some action to insure coal supply for such needs.

Four telegram protests against this government taking action to provide coal for public health needs without consulting union. I cannot agree that in taking steps to safeguard public health, this government is required to consult your union.

The action that we have taken in this regard cannot be regarded as an attempt to break a strike or to place this government's influence behind Dowco.

On the contrary, I believe that all fair minded persons will regard it merely as an effort to discharge our duty to the more than 600,000 people who form the population of this Province.

President Truman On Visit To Mexico MEXICO CITY, March 3-(CP) - President Truman descended from sunny Mexican skies today to receive a thundering welcome from this sister republic.

President Miguel Aleman and high dignitaries of the Mexican Government shared the top spot in that greeting as thousands of laborers and the humble people turned out with their wives to cheer as the President rode through two miles of flag-bedecked streets.

In his first address of the visit the President expressed his happiness to visit this great and progressive nation.

Progress Reported At Falconwood Farm In Artificial Breeding

Encouraging progress is reported by the Department of Agriculture in seeking to encourage the improvement of cattle population by artificial breeding from high class sires. Last year a small station was started at the Government owned Falconwood Farm. Although it had been feared by some that such a venture might fall due to scarcity of veterinary field men and high class laboratory facilities, the venture proved a success.

It was the first month that Mr. Unsworth, Guyra, the operator, very enthusiastically went about this work and from then on to the end of the year, during his spare time, extracted, stored and carded semen to over 100 cows in 1100 miles of country. As many as six cows were bred in a day and the furthest away cow bred was 25 miles. Percentage caught settled on over 90% of the first insemination. The other bull has been in use for only a short time and results are incomplete at this time. However, the overall picture as compared to natural breeding is reported to be most favorable.

First 50 Cars Of Potatoes For Britain Shipped

Local Canadian National Railway officials reported last night that 50 cars of potatoes bound for Britain have already left the station en route to Saint John, N.B., where loading for England is scheduled to begin tomorrow. The first shipment will consist of 37 cars and local railway authorities said yesterday that the remaining 13 cars necessary to fill the first consignment will arrive at Saint John on schedule.

Refrigerator cars, the officials said, are daily arriving in the Province so that no difficulty is expected in transporting the potatoes to Saint John as they are required.

Mr. J. P. Johnson, vice-president and general manager of the Canadian National Railway, spent Sunday aboard the car ferry with local Superintendent C. T. Montgomery and received at first hand all information on the Railway's parts in handling the potato exports to Britain via Saint John.

Bulldozer Rips Open Gold Vein In New Zealand

COROMANDEL, N. Z., March 3 - (CP) - This sleepy little town on a mountainous peninsula of the North Island of New Zealand has been seized with gold fever following reports that a Maori, William James McLean, had uncovered a rich gold reef while operating his bulldozer in remote country in the Whitianga district near here.

After Coromandel peninsula, experienced its early gold rush most of the fields became worked out. Miners left and Coromandel sank into a quiet country township. It is known that there is still plenty of gold in the Coromandel peninsula but exhaustive tests have so far failed to find fresh deposits sufficiently plentiful to make working it a commercial proposition.

McLean has left the district to arrange contracts for working his claim. Pending further information of his find stock markets have so far shown no reaction.

Owing to the severity of the gale, Maritime Central Airways cancelled all flights yesterday until 5 p.m. Then, two mainland flights were made and two came in. Damage to property throughout the City was negligible, though here and there a storm-door was either blown off or damaged enough to require major repairs.

But operators reported that the roads, despite the slush formed by the fall of wet snow, were in good condition with traction excellent so that the buses operated on schedule.

Weather officials at the Charlottetown Experimental Station reported yesterday's precipitation - wet snow and rain - totalled a half inch.

CHURCHES HAVE BEEN ADVISED LONDON, March 3 - (CP) - The church should take a lesson from movie theatres and pubs and take advantage of electric signs and neon lighting to make itself known and attractive, says the Methodist Church department of chapel affairs.

These are some other suggestions in the report. Old stone walls around churchyards should be removed. A "proper, modern use of color" could replace the black-and-gold lettering on notice boards and posters are desirable.

Inside church buildings, simple color could with advantage replace the stencilled designs and texts which often "disfigure" the walls. Provision of church canteen aids the fellowship life.

The church with a stage for production of cheap comedies would be better off without it, but effective use of suitable drama makes a contribution to the life and spirit of the church.

POLES REQUEST NEW FARM LABOR CONTRACT LONDON, Ont., March 3 - (CP) - Nearly 100 Polish war veterans in a mass meeting here asked for a new contract replacing the one under which they came to Canada to work on farms, and declared they are discontented with poor pay, long hours, harsh treatment, and failure of farmers to treat them on a par with Canadians.

In the meeting, they met with district farmers and agricultural officials and suggested a new agreement with a schedule of working hours, including time off, and new rates of pay.

Toni Schkwoleski, leader of the Polish group, said one man had not been allowed a Sunday off since arrival several months ago. Many of the Poles, he said, found their places satisfactory, but others found their treatment the same as that accorded German prisoners.

Charlottetown Ministerial Association

The March meeting of the Association was held in Zion Church when, in the absence of the President, Rev. J. T. Ebbott, the chair was occupied by the vice-president, the Rev. E. R. MacLennan. Major Victor MacLennan, Rev. M. D. Dunbar, a paper was presented by the Rev. T. H. B. Somers on "The Principles of Divine Worship" which was carefully discussed by all present.

Plans were made for the worship services at the Sanatorium, the Orphanage, the Jail, Falconwood and the Infirmary during the present month. The service of Three Hours Devotion on Good Friday afternoon will be held this year in Zion Church, to be conducted by the Rev. T. E. MacLennan, Major Victor MacLennan, Rev. M. D. Dunbar, Rev. J. J. Levy, Rev. T. H. B. Somers, Rev. G. C. Webster, and Rev. J. T. Ebbott. The next meeting will be held on April 14th at Hearns Hall when a paper will be given by the Rev. M. D. Dunbar, on "Ephemeral Prayer."

Says Today's News Lacks Human Touch

LANSDOWNE, Ont., March 3 - (CP) - News today has not as much humor or human interest as it did 40 or 50 years ago in the opinion of Mr. and Mrs. S. C. E. Dixon, correspondents in this eastern Ontario community for more than half a century for the Kingston, Ont., Whig-Standard and for his forefathers in the British Whig and the Kingston Standard.

Mr. Dixon said he thought one reason for the lack of humor is that people nowadays have not as much fun as they did in earlier days.

Fun has gone out of politics, too, Mr. Dixon said that was one reason why so many young people took little interest in affairs of the country.

On a friend's suggestion, Mr. Dixon began corresponding for the British Whig in 1896. After his marriage in 1907 to the daughter of the editor of the Brockville Times, his wife took over the job of correspondent for both the British Whig and the Kingston Standard.

Mr. Dixon himself operates an interior decorating establishment and in his spare time helps his wife gather the news.
