William Powell And Carole Lombard At Prince Edward

Write down all the words that mean funny, capricious, deliciously daffy and ebulliently loony. Add them all together and you have a description of "My Man Godfrey," which opened yesterday at the Prince Edward Theatre. This outstanding contribution to the new movie season is humor gone on a spree, with the gear shift in high. William Powell and Carole Lombard in starring roles together for the first time in three years, rise to new heights as experts of light comedy and the rapid fire retort.

Carole Lombard, as the reckless debutante, engages in a high society game called Scavanger Hunting. She comes back with the "forgotten man," in the person of William Powell. She falls for his overpowering masculine charm and employs him as the butler.

The grandest scene in the picture is the ballroom set when Carole Lombard walks in with William Powell and wins the prize. There are nanny goats running loose, with young kids bleating after them. Cuckoo clocks strike thirteen; all is merry as a marriage bell; the lights shine bright on fair women and fuzzy-eyed men. The battle of Waterloo was a quiet debate compared to this society party.

The fun really hits full speed when Powell starts buttling for the family. He does not respond to the debutante's advances and she becomes determined to get Her Man Godfrey. The comedy turns into a riot of laughs that bubble like champagne at a night club opening.

The diamond studded cast supporting William Powell and Carole Lombard includes Alice Brady, Gail Patrick, Jean Dixon, Eugene Pallette, Alan Mowbray, Robert Light and Franklin Pangborn. The feminine eye will be delighted with the gowns worn by Carole Lombard in the picture. Score about 24 hits for her designer.

New Perth Girls Sewing Club

The New Perth Sewing Club was reorganized for third year work last Oct. 20th by Miss Hazard with four members and one visitor present. Officers for coming year are as follows: president, Miss Olive Dewar; secretary, Mildred Smith; vice president, Miss Marjorie Martin.

Mrs. Penna Moore as leader, assisted by Mrs. George Martin and Mrs. Wm. Minchin.

The first meeting was held in the schoolroom with three new members added to the club. It was decided that we meet in the homes of the members on Friday evenings of each week.

The members decided to send an order to Eaton's for linen to make towels; each member was to give 27 cents; also that each member bring 1 cent for a book for the minutes to the next meeting.

The second meeting was held at the home of Misses Olive and Irene Dewar. The president, Miss Olive Dewar, called the meeting to order. Minutes of previous meeting were read and adopted. The programme committee was Edith Stewart and Mildred Smith. Miss Marjorie Martin read how to conduct a meeting. The programme included a recitation by Bessie Stewart; piano selection, Olive Dewar. Contest won by Olive Dewar. A dainty lunch was served.

The third meeting was at the home of Miss Marjorie Martin with 8 members present. It was moved that instead of having a programme committee, a spelling match be held. The sides were as follows: Rita Corcoran, Irene Dewar, Mildred Smith, and Edith Stewart; on opposite side, Olive Dewar, Marjorie Martin, Mabel Moore, and Bessie Stewart.

Misses Edith and Bessie Stewart [illegible] meeting. A dainty lunch was served and the remainder of the evening was spent in singing songs. The meeting closed by singing the National Anthem.

Richard Dix At Capitol

Richard Dix turns federal agent, gets his man, and also gets his woman, in a thrilling tale of mortal combat and romance, cinematically told in RKO Radio's dramatic screen production, "Special Investigator."

It is a grim and stirring story of a man whose unethical legal practice backfires on him, causing him to join the Government secret service, and track down the gangster who killed his brother. The film is an ideal vehicle for Dix, who, seen first as a suave big city attorney, suddenly is transplanted to a frontier atmosphere, and there matches wits with a dangerous mob of gangsters.

Margaret Callahan, who plays the part of the gang leader's sister, supplies the romantic interest and handles a difficult role with understanding and charm. Dix and Miss Callahan are teamed together for the first time and prove to be a happy combination.

Sheila Terry plays the part of a gold-digger, her blonde beauty in sharp contrast with the darker charm of brunette Miss Callahan. Erik Rhodes plays his first "heavy" role in this picture. J. Carrol Naish, Owen Davis, Jr., Ray Mayer, Harry Jans and Ethan Laidlaw all have important parts.

Veteran Member of Fourth Estate Passes

R. L. MANSFIELD CITY EDITOR OF GAZETTE, DEAD

(Haverhill Gazette)

Raymond Lewis Mansfield, of 55 Williams street, Brantford, age 61, city editor of The Gazette since Oct. 25, 1928, and previous to that date for 14 years City Hall reporter for this newspaper, and clerk of the Haverhill fire department for the past 16 years, died at 5:15 this morning at the Benson hospital, Summer street, of cerebral hemorrhage.

Mr. Mansfield was the oldest employe of The Gazette's news department in point of years of service. He was forced by illness to discontinue his duties as city editor on Monday, Nov. 23.

On Friday, Dec. 4, Mr. Mansfield became so seriously ill that doctors advised his removal to the hospital and he was confined at the Benson hospital until his death. His name was on the danger list from the day following his admittance to the hospital.

Mr. Mansfield was born in Wellesley, Dec. 31, 1874, the son of the late Charles H. and Orilla Stone Mansfield. In childhood he went to Lynn with his parents, where he was educated and where his father was elected as representative to the General Court. His father entered newspaper work and for years was a member of the staff of the Lynn Item, at the time of his retirement being the oldest member of that paper's staff in point of years of service.

Mr. Mansfield first went to work in a Lynn grocery store, where he remained several years. Then he decided to follow the steps of his father in newspaper work. He obtained his early newspaper training helping his father on The Item, and then broke in as a cub reporter on The Item for several years.

Leaving the Lynn Item, Mr. Mansfield went to Worcester, where he held a position on the news staff and on the copy desk of the Worcester Telegram for several years. He left Worcester more than 22 years ago to join The Gazette's reportorial staff.

His position as City Hall reporter of The Gazette enabled him to become well informed on municipal law and political affairs, and to develop wide acquaintances among the city's leading citizens.

When Haverhill soldiers returned from France after the signing of the Armistice, Mr. Mansfield was assigned to greet them at New York and cover the story for The Gazette. He obtained the stories of the veterans' experiences in France, particularly those who returned with brilliant records of service. After the group returned to Haverhill, Mr. Mansfield was presented with a compass that had been carried 30,000 miles during the World war by Col. William H. Root, former alderman.

He was The Gazette's reporter at the famous riot, which made the front pages of all the papers in New England.

During the days that Mr. Mansfield was a member of the staff of the Lynn Item, he scored an impressive 'beat' when he was the only reporter present at a secret test fight of an airplane from the ice, in the earlier days of modern aeronautics.

For years, Mr. Mansfield was correspondent for the Christian Science Monitor, Boston, covering the Merrimack valley.

Mr. Mansfield was made clerk of the Haverhill Fire department on Feb. 3, 1920, under the regime of former-Chief John B. Gordon and served under his successor, William H. Hawkins, and the present chief, Rufus A. Crittenden.

His knowledge of the department was unsurpassed and Chief Crittenden today, expressing his sorrow at his death said Mr. Mansfield's place would be a hard one to fill.

Mr. Mansfield was an ardent golfer and close follower of baseball and other sports. He was a former member of the Kenoza Country club. He member of the Clan Nicholson Family association, and was to have served as chairman of the 1936-37 gathering at Tuck's Point, Manchester; his wife was Margaret C. Nicholson, of Lynn. He was affiliated with Merrimack Lodge of Masons and was formerly a member of the old Agawam club and the Pentucket club.

Besides his wife, Mr. Mansfield is survived by a son, Stuart T. Mansfield, this city; and a sister, Mrs. May F. Short, of Saugus.

Attended by persons from all walks of life, including newspapermen from Haverhill, Boston, Lynn and Beverly, funeral services for Raymond Lewis Mansfield, city editor for the past eight years and for 14 years City Hall reporter for The Gazette, were held from the People's Methodist church, Chadwick street, Bradford, yesterday afternoon.

The church was thronged for the services and it was necessary to open a hall adjoining the auditorium in order to provide seating room for the gathering. City, state and national political figures and state and local police authorities joined with the members of the fourth estate, friends and relatives in paying homage to Mr. Mansfield.

Every department of the Gazette was represented at the services, the the employees of the editorial room where he had worked for the past 22 years, turning out in a body to pay their respects.

Charles Drury, of the Boston Herald; Ray L. Horsch, editor of The Sunday Record; Fred A. Cummings, a former city editor of The Gazette who is now vice president of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Co., and Atty. Michael J. Sullivan, who had worked with the late Mr. Mansfield in his early days at The Gazette, were among those present at the services.

Three former mayors of the city, Dr. William D. McFee, Fred D. McGregor and Atty. Forrest V. Z. Smith, with whom the late city editor had had numerous contacts during his reporting days at City Hall, were present. Mayor George E. Dalrymple was unable to attend owing to illness.

Congressman-elect and Mayor George J. Bates of Salem, Alderman Edward G. Chesley, Lt. Richard J. Griffin of the state police, Senator-elect Frank D. Babcock, former City Marshal Charles D. Jones, former State Senator J. Bradford Davis, Capt. Irving G. Hussey, Lt. Ovila J. Lagasse and Patroiman Calvin E. Long of the Haverhill police department; Secretary George H. Croston of the Haverhill Chamber of Commerce, Attendance Officer George A. Picard, Assessors Fred L. Bennett, James D. McGregor and George E. Hutchins, Garfield S. Chase, of Andover, manager of Lawrence division of Eastern Massachuetts Street Railway Co., attended the services.

The Haverhill Fireman's Relief association, of which the deceased was a member, was represented by a delegration of 35 firemen.

Chief Rufus A. Crittanden former District Chief Ernest W. Hapgood, former Deputy Chief George N. Whiting, former Chief William H. Hawkins and former District Chief George F. Walker, of the Haverhill fire department, were also present to pay their respects.

The casket was covered with floral tributes and the offerings filled the entire part of the auditorium.

The services were conducted by Rev. Norman J. Raison, pastor of the church, assisted by Rev. George E. Cary, pastor of the First Church of Christ (Congregational) of Bradford.

The Windsor quartet, composed of George W. Hurn, first tenor; Howard T. Clark, second tenor; Milton A. Wright, baritone, and Bernard L. Durgin, bass, sang Galilee," "In the Garden and Abide With Me."

The eulogy was delivered by Rev. Mr. Raison.

The Masonic funeral ritual was conducted by Carroll E. Haseltine, worshipful master of Merrimack lodge, A. F. and A. M., assisted by Rev. H. D. Hawver, pastor of the Grace Methodist church, as chaplain, and other members of the organization.

A letter from Clan Nicholson Family association, of Lynn, paying tribute to the deceased, was read by Rev. Mr. Raison.

The active bearers were E. Austin Benner, news editor of The Gazette; Charles I. Somerby, sports editor of The Gazette; Frank E. Portors, police reporter for The Gazette; Chairman Fred L. Bennett of the board of assessories; former Alderman George L. Martin and Burton C. Lafaver.

The honorary bearers were Robert L. Wright, publisher; William H. Heath, editor; William J. Page, business manager of The Gazette; Dr. William D. McFee, Dr. Harry B. Perkins and Chief Rufus A. Crittenden of the fire department.

—Mr. Mansfield is kindly remembered in P. E. I. which province he visited frequently as the guest of Mrs. Mansfield's sisters Mrs. Wm. A. Martin, Valleyfield, Mrs. James E. Collins, Glen William and Mrs. Leverett Acorn of Alliston.

Railway Veterans Reaffirm Loyalty To The System

MONCTON, N. B. Jan. 5—Reaffirming their loyalty to the system, Canadian National Railways veterans gathered in the General Offices building here with W. U. Appleton, vice president and general manager of the Atlantic Region, on the occasion of the exhibition of the Loyalty Roll containing the names of more than 6,000 men and women on the pension lists of the system which was presented as a testimonial of their loyalty and affection in Toronto Union Station last August on the occasion of Canada's railway centenary and which coincided with the anniversary of their railway entering upon its second century of service to the public.

The Loyalty Roll is contained in a walnut chest, a beautiful example of the cabinet maker's art on which is mounted on the cover a working model of a mammoth passenger engine, the work of a veteran who had fifty-two years of active service to his credit prior to his retirement.

Accompanying the Loyalty Roll is a beautifully inscribed address decorated in colors and depicting the growth of land transportation from the days of the stage coach to the present giant of the rails, the stream lined "6400" locomotive. Each district of the National system is represented pictorially on the presentation address, Quebec by the miniature "Dorchester," which was the keynote of the railway centenary last year, that locomotive having inaugurated the railway epoch of Canada. The Maritimes are represented by the pioneer locomotive "Samson", first placed into service in Nova Scotia in 1839 and now in the Canadian National Railways station in Halifax; Ontario by the "Lady Elgin," of 1853; United States lines of the system by the motive power of 1870; Western Canada by the Prairies type of 1900; and the entire system symbolized by the "6400". The presentation address reads: "We, the veterans of the Canadian National Railways and associated companies, desire to give expression to the goodwill which we bear to the railroad and its staff. As it enters upon its second century of service to the public, the Canadian National carries with it the sincere good wishes of the great army of veterans—more than 6,000 men and women—who have completed their years of active railroad service but whose hearts remain loyal to their railway. To our nation-wide transportation system and to the 80,000 men and women employed upon it, we pledge our loyalty and support, confident that the years ahead will bring to the enterprise full measure of success. Six thousand, two hundred and seventy names are inscribed on the accompanying roll of Canadian National veterans."

In addressing the assembled group of veterans here, Mr. Appleton said: "It gives me a great deal of pleasure to welcome you here today and to exhibit for you the Loyalty Roll representing more than 6,000 men and women on the pension lists of the system which was presented to the railway on the occasion of the centenary of the Canadian National system last August. This Loyalty Roll is an indication of your continued interest in the welfare of the Canadian National system, and speaking on behalf of the executive, I wish to assure you that this interest is greatly appreciated. We wish you to feel that while you are no longer on the active list you are still enrolled among the army of loyal workers for the advancement of the system. I wish you one and all on this occasion many happy years in which to continue to enjoy the fruits of your loyal service in the past."

Following its display in Moncton the Loyalty Roll with its accompanying chest will be put on display in the city ticket offices of the railway in Halifax and Saint John.

He Keeps His Job Though Turned 70

House Painter Who Takes His Kruschen Every Day

How many painters can continue to work when they are over 70? Here is one who can—and he still does some of the most trying jobs in his trade. How does he do it? He tells us in this letter:—

"I have been in the habit of taking a few grains of Kruschen Salts in every cup of tea I have had for a great number of years. I may state that I am turned 70 years of age, being born on July 22nd, 1864. I am a house painter by trade and still at work. I can work off any ladder, no matter what height, or in cradles which are hung outside high buildings. I have been asked many times how I carry my age so well as I only look about 50. Well, I tell them all that I take Kruschen Salts regularly every day."—J. S. A.

Kruschen is a combination of numerous mineral salts which assist in stimulating your liver, kidneys and digestive tract to healthy, regular activity. They ensure internal cleanliness, and so help to keep the blood-stream free from impurities.

Legislation To Protect Debtors

(C.P. by Guardian's Special Wire)

OTTAWA, Jan 7 — Legislation will be introduced at the coming session of parliament to protect debtors under Canadian law from having to pay premiums because of gold clauses in bonds, Finance Minister C. A. Dunning stated tonight when asked by The Canadian Press.

The legislation will be in line with the understanding reached by the Dominion-Provincial Finance Committee last month. It will be designed to allow debtors with obligations governed by the laws of Canada and containing the gold clause to discharge their debts by payment of the face amount in legal tender.

The legislation has been made particularly advisable because of a recent decision of the British court of appeal in the International Trustee Case, Mr. Dunning explained. Without such legislation on the statute books in Canada the Dominion and provinces might be called upon to redeem their bonds at $1.69 for every $1 of face value.

Woman Aspires To Wheat Crown

CRESTON, B. C., Jan. 6—Forced by illness to seek an outdoor hobby, Mrs. Charles Kelsey turned to seed grain growing. Now she has her eye on the world's wheat crown that adorns the head of Wembley's Herman Trelle.

By a close study of soil adaptability, she has advanced her prize-winning grain rating at the Chicago International Grain Exposition from 34th to 12th position in three years. Next year, she hopes, may bring her the coveted reward.

Should she be successful—and her showing in many competitions in the past six years has been little short of remarkable—she would be the first woman to capture wheatdom's premier honor.

Mrs. Kelsey came here from Saskatchewan 20 years ago. With her husband she operates a 10 acre orchard near Creston. A small portion of the land is used to conduct seed experiments.

In 1934 Mrs. Kelsey won 34th prize at the Chicago fair with a first exhibit. The following year she advanced to 23rd place and last year, with a sample of Reward wheat variety she annexed 12th prize. She has won many awards at provincial fairs.

At the British Columbia Seed Fair, in 1931, she was presented with three prizes for corn exhibits and a second for Reward wheat. In 1933, at the World's Grain show, at Regina, her sample of Reward was adjudged 16th in a large list.

A native of Worcester, England, Mrs. Kelsey came to Canada and Regina in 1911. She met her husband, a prominent nearby Keddleston district farmer, two years later. Apart from her original purchases all her prize winning corn and wheat exhibits have been grown from seed of Kelsey from production.

Romans Started Annual Frolics For New Year's

(By The Canadian Press)

Age cannot wither nor custom stale the infinite variety of New Year's celebrations but they have been on the go a long time. The Romans more than 2,000 years ago made merry at the birth of the year with a schedule of entertainment that would make the festivities of these days comparatively mild.

It is believed the Roman observance of the New Year grew from the ceremonies attendant on the entry of new consuls into office at the "January Kalends" which was a time for feasting and the exchange of gifts. Another theory of origin is in the still more ancient festival of Saturnalia in December, marking a sort of thanksgiving at the end of the harvest and vintage season.

While the first of January was definitely fixed as the beginning of the year in Rome by the Julian calendar in 46 B. C., it was probably regarded as such 100 years prior to that date. The early Christian church disapproved of New Year's Day celebrations on account of their association with pagan excesses of the feasts. Instead a solemn feast was instituted by the church.

When Christmas became fixed on Dec. 25 in the fifth century A. D., Jan. 1 was made a church feast in commemoration of the circumcision of Christ on the eighth day after birth, according to Jewish law. Later, as Christianity spread, this attitude of the church caused the adoption of different dates for New Year's Day.

England retained March 25, the feast of the Annunciation, as the first of the year until 1752, except for the period from the Norman Conquest to the 13th century, when she reverted to Jan. 1. Germany and a few other countries began it at Christmas, France and the Low Countries at Easter, while Russia up to the 18th century made September the first month.

The Gregorian Calendar of Pope Gregory XIII, which in 1582 restored Jan. 1 to its firmer position at the first of the year, was accepted by most Catholic countries immediately. Germany, Denmark and Sweden adopted it in 1700, Great Britain and her North American colonies in 1752. Not until 1912 did China conform to the Gregorian style, while Russia followed suit in 1918, Roumania and Serbia in 1919 and Greece in 1923.

The ancient Roman year usually started with the Spring. Hence we get October, November and December, the eighth, ninth and 10th months of the year. July, named in honor of Julius Caesar, and August after Augustus, were formerly Quintilis (fifth) and Sextilis (sixth) respectively.

Varying customs are associated with present-day New Year revels in different countries. In France it is the great fete of the year, with gifts circulating then rather than at Christmas. Similar customs prevail in French Canada, or Quebec.

In England the day is apparently over-shadowed by Christmas festivities. It is a big day in Scotland where in some places there are the famous New Year Hogmanay processions of children who collect doles of oaten bread from the homes of the rich. In Germany greeting cards are more numerous at New Year's and presents are given to tradespeople, but Christmas remains the day of great rejoicing.

Slight Decrease In Canadian Unemployed

GENEVA, Jan, 7—(CP)-Havas)—Canada reported 23,240 unemployed in November, 1936, compared with 25,583 for November, 1935, and 22,375 for August, 1936, the quarterly statistical bulletin of the International Labor Bureau announced here today.

Canada's employed totalled 93.1 per cent of available workers, against 90.4 per cent in Nov. 1, 1935, the bulletin said. In the United States employed totalled 87.9 per cent on Oct. 15, 1936, compared with 81.4 per cent on the same date in 1935.

Unemployment was notably reduced from August to September in at least eight countries, the bulletin continued. They were Great Britain, Hungary, Latvia, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, Esthonia, Sweden and Japan.

Duke Of Windsor Perpetuates Ranch

EDMONTON, Jan. 6—The Duke of Windsor has paid annual taxes on his personal property in southern Alberta and holds a 99 year lease to the mineral rights on the "EP" ranch, mentioned since his abdication as a possible future residence.

Since 1920 when the duke, then Prince of Wales, bought the 3,840 acre stock farm, near Pekisko, he has paid about $5,000 into Alberta coffers as taxes at the rate of approximately $312 a year. The ranch is not subject to school district or municipal taxes but is levied upon under improvement district rates.

The problem of whether the ranch, which had been yielding certain revenue from grazing leases should be considered tax exempt as crown property confronted officials when surface rights to the property were acquired.

"When the question was taken up with the prince, word came back that he wished to pay the taxes as he did not desire to be treated differently to any of his neighbors or other property owners in this province," a government official said. "Ever since that time the taxes have been paid."

The Duke of Windsor retained title to the property when he became King Edward VIII. Officials do not anticipate any transfer will result through his title now being the Duke of Windsor.

When the property was acquired, some 2,200 acres were crown land purchased from the Dominion government which then had control of the natural resources of the property. Federal records state the land title was sought in order to perpetuate the use of the ranch for raising pure-bred livestock.

That aim has been carried out and with success. Stock from the ranch have been awarded prizes at many Canadian and international shows.

Regarding the mineral lease, it gives the duke petroleum and coal rights but does not include gold and silver mining rights. A special lease would have to be taken out to obtain these.

The lease, an important document in the files of the Alberta department of lands and mines, was drawn up at Ottawa in 1930. Greater interest in the long-term lease has been aroused because of oil strikes on the west flank of the Turner Valley field which extended in the direction of the royal ranch.

Drafted in bold, sweeping longhand, the lease was made out by the Dominion government in the name of the crown to "His Royal Highness Edward Albert Christian George Andrew Patrick David, Prince of Wales." It was granted at the nominal rental of $1.00 a year.

Should the duke decide to allow oil drilling on the property he would be required to pay a royalty only on sales of petroleum and natural gas, as the coal is not subject to a royalty.

Special terms of the lease provide that if at any time the surface rights cease to be used by the duke or members of the royal family, the lease is to become null and void. Neither can the mineral rights be assigned, transferred or sublet to any person or corporation.

The duke did not acquire the lease with any intention of allowing drilling operations to proceed on the ranch. It was believed the mineral lease was taken to prevent exploitation of the ranch by oil companies which might obtain leases and exercise their right to start drilling.

High Soviet Officials Charged In Plot

MOSCOW, Jan. 7—(AP)—Pravda organ of the Communist Party, tonight bitterly assailed three men formerly high in Soviet councils in an article authoritative sources interpreted as foreshadowing another big political trial.

The newspaper's article specifically charged Karl Radek, former authoritative commentator for Izvestia; Gregory Sokolnikoff, former ambassador to London, and Gregory Pyatakoff, former assistant commissar for heavy industry, with plotting to restore capitalism to Russia.

The three are held under charges of complicity in an alleged conspiracy of terrorism and assassination inspired by the exile Leon Trotzky.

Sixteen men, including Gregory S. Zinovieff and Leon B. Kameneff, were executed Aug. 25 after a sensational trial in which they were convicted on similar charges.
