THE BANNER PROVINCE OF PEACE AND ORDER.

The annual report on the Criminal Statistics of Canada for the year ended with September, 1908 is to hand, and makes the usual creditable showing for this Island in comparison with the other Provinces. Canada is a country of law abiding people, a land of sobriety, peace and order in the main, and need fear no comparison with any other land in that regard. Hence the greater credit to the one Canadian Province, which in a galaxy of nine shines forth as the Banner Province of peace and order.

Take first the more serious crimes known as indictable offences, classed as offences against the person, offences against property with or without violence, malicious injuries to property, forgery and theft, &c. In this black category there were 11,334 convictions in the year throughout Canada, being 17.85 for each 10,000 of population. In New Brunswick the proportion was 6.79 per 10,000; in other Provinces it ranged from 11.29 up to 32.33. In Prince Edward Island it was but 1.48 per 10,000. That is less than one fourth of the New Brunswick rate, and barely one twelfth part of the average throughout Canada!

Surely this is a record to be proud of. We come next to minor offences such as are tried before police magistrates and justices of the peace. These include assaults, breaches of the peace, cruelty to animals, infractions of liquor laws, games acts, vagrancy, drunkenness, keeping and frequenting bawdy houses, loose, idle and disorderly conduct, etc. For all this class of offences there were 77,299 convictions in the Dominion during the year. The average throughout Canada was 12.17 per thousand of the population. New Brunswick again stood best among the mainland Provinces with 8.03 per thousand. Prince Edward Island's record is 2.75 per thousand, or less than a quarter of the general average.

It is important to know whether we are going forward or backward, upward or downward in these matters. To give a comprehensive showing in that regard the volume before us has a table comparing the number of summary convictions in 1899 and 1908, with the percentage of increase during the ten years. Regreetably there has been a sad increase in all the mainland Provinces, running upward from 27.2 per cent in New Brunswick to 516 per cent in Manitoba, the average increase throughout Canada being 134.26 per cent. In Prince Edward Island there was a decrease of 36.2 per cent! The Prohibitory Law came in early in that ten year period —in 1901.

We will not take the whole credit to the Prohibitory Law for this splendid and remarkable showing although we believe it to have been a great factor in producing that result. Our Island people are as a rule a law-abiding and God-fearing people, and we hane had no recent influx of immigration, as the western Provinces have. But the same may be said of New Brunswick and largely of Nova Scotia. Their people are mainly of the same stock as those in Prince Edward Island. The one marked difference lies in this, that they have the open bar and we have not.

We invite criticism of this statement among any of our contemporaries who favor a license law rather than prohibition. It is for them to show if they can why vice and crime have been officially proved to have largely decreased under prohibition in Prince Edward Island, while in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia under license laws there have been such alarming increases as we have quoted above. Let them explain if they can why in Prince Edward Island there was in the year but one conviction of any sort to every 345 inhabitants, while in New Brunswick there was one conviction to every 115 and in Nova Scotia one to every 91. Any way, Prince Edward Island is the banner Province for sobriety, peace and order. It matters little whether prohibition is the cause, or whether our people are naturally good and for that reason adopted prohibition.

That the steamer Earl Grey should be kept on the Charlottetown-Pictou route as long as this route remains reasonably practicable goes without saying. This city is the chief centre for the export and import trade of the Island and for passenger and mail traffic for Queen's and Prince Counties. We feel assured that our representatives in the Commons and Senate as well as Captain Taylor, the Agent of the Marine Department will use their best endeavors to have the Earl Grey continued on this route. If the steamer cauld ply between this port and Pictou throughout the winter it would be a great boon to the trading and travelling public.

As mentioned in The Guardian's despatches yesterday, there will be polling in sixty-four of the British elections on Saturday, January 15. These will include 18 in London, 6 in Manchester and 7 in Birmingham. These will show how the fight is likely to result. We hope to give the news to our readers on Monday morning, January 17.
