

The Guardian Pictorial Page

First photo of the funeral of Princess Christian at St. George's Chapel.

Youngest child of the late, the little girl, and Mrs. F. L. Stephens, who was named after American competitor for popularity at a well-known Florida resort.

Mimi Palmesi, noted stage beauty, carries a radio set in her canoe. It is a portable outfit contained in a cabinet and requires no ground.

Boils of lava ejected from the inner crater of Vesuvius. The lava is like thick twisted hemp rope.

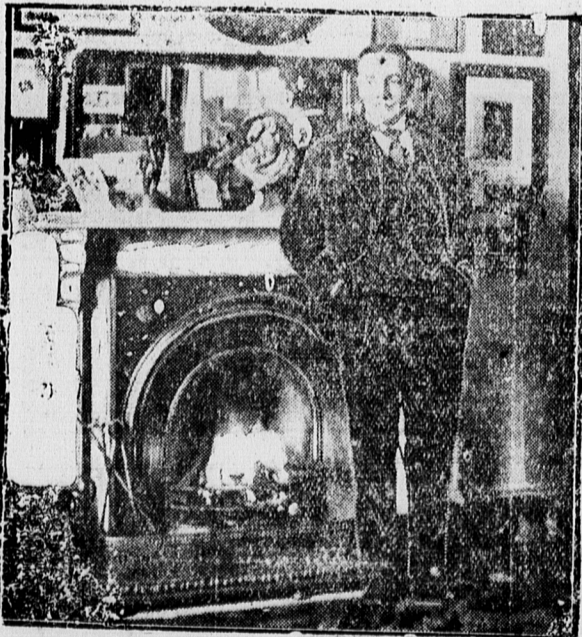

Dr. Alexander MacLachlan, former president of Queen's College, presided following a dispute over educational methods.

Anita Sergeant of Annapolis, chosen by the American Legion at Panama's most beautiful girl.

The dog days are upon us, also the bathing suits. Here is an elaborate costume of black satin, stencilled in gold with wide cape.

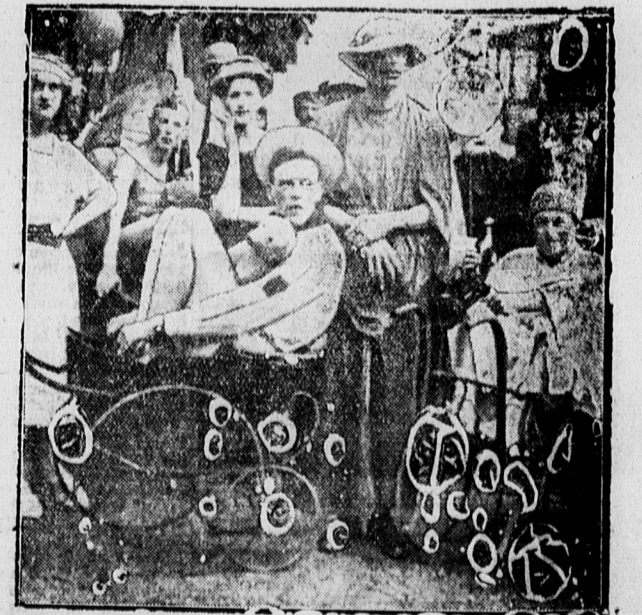

Sir John Martin Harvey, noted English actor, has purchased a home for himself in East Sheen where he will live after his active career has ended.

Miss Millicent Hawkins, one of the most beautiful of London's younger society leaders.

'Pussyfoot' Johnson, who is dying up the world, off for a six months visit in London.

A unique pram race with unique infants staged by undergraduates of Cambridge during one of their recent celebrations.

Walter Hagen, dethroned British open golf champion, returns to America with his wife.

Pau-puk-kee-wis, Indian dandy and gambler of the old days, as he will be played by a member of the Ojibway Reserve in a pageant at Sault Ste. Marie.

James Foulson, aged 76 years, claims the title of world's champion kite-flyer. He is shown here with his 11 by 10 foot record breaker, Rocket.

Premier Baldwin and Lord Grey, after receiving honorary degrees from Cambridge University.