The funeral of Charles Vessey, says a Fairbanks, Alaska paper, who was killed by a cave-in at No. 7 below Cleary Creek, on the 8th instant, took place from Johnson's undertaking establishment. A large number of young men were present, attending the esteem in which Mr. Vessey was held. Some of the ladies of the Presbyterian church attended. There were sympathetic hymns and a tender talk on mortality and immortality. Mr. Vessey was twenty-nine years of age. He was born on Prince Edward Island, where his parents still live. He came to Alaska in 1898, and was at Atlin, Dawson and other camps, engaged in mining. Lately he has been in the Kautishna country, and on his return found employment on No. 7 below. He had been at work there but one day when the accident occurred that ushered him in an instant into the presence of his Maker. Mr. Vessey is spoken of by every one who knew him in the highest terms. He was a young man of excellent habits, sober, industrious, of a cheerful disposition, and most generous to those who needed his help. His works do follow him.—The above refers to Charles Vessey of York the report of whose death was published some time ago in The Guardian.

VERY LATEST IN SWINDLING

Boston, March 31.—A new form of petty swindling, which has been worked with success in at least one case in Malden, has been brought to light. A well-dressed woman went into the store of an Italian fruit dealer in that city to make a small purchase, and while the proprietor was busy doing up her fruit she appeared to be searching for something on the floor. She then explained to the fruit dealer that she had lost a very valuable jewelled ring, which might have come off when she took off her glove, and perhaps it had rolled out of sight somewhere in the store. Or possibly she had lost it before coming into the store. Both made further search for the missing ring, and the woman left, first giving the Italian her name and address, and stating that she would gladly pay a reward of $100 for recovery of the ring, which she described as containing diamonds, rubies, and sapphires.

All by himself, the fruit dealer made still more careful search, yet without result. Afterward, while standing outside of his store, he saw a man seemingly doing up something which he proceeded to examine by the light in the window of the fruit store. The Italian saw that it was a ring with stones exactly like those described by his customer. Here was his chance to secure the promised reward of $100. His statement to the other man that he knew who owned the ring, and his story of the woman's deep regret at losing it, was decided at first, but finally the man, being in a hurry himself, as he stated, agreed to let the Italian have it for $10. The vendor of fruit and peanuts dressed himself up in his best clothes and hastened to the address given by his customer, to find only an open lot, instead of a house and a woman distressed over the loss of her 'very valuable' ring. This turned out to be worth perhaps a quarter of a dollar. Moreover, the 'finder' of the ring, of course, really had it in hand when he pretended to pick it up from the sidewalk.

A SUCCESSFUL HORSEMAN

Never allows his horse to suffer pain. He always uses Nerviline which is noted for curing stiffness, rheumatism, swellings and strains. Nerviline is just as good inside as outside. How Much For Your Eyes?

Would you voluntarily consent at any price to dispose of your eye sight?

I think not, and yet perhaps you are one of those who, by neglect, are irretrievably losing at least a portion of their eyesight.

If your eyes need help, the most likely way to assist them is by wearing glasses, properly fitted.

My business is to properly fit glasses. This I do as cheaply as is consistent with good work.
