ROAD HOGS OF OLD

There were road hogs before motorists. In Europe in the seventeenth century and for some time later the roads had only one width of road going, with a quagmire on either side. If two carriages met there would be a long struggle and possible a fight for the sound surfers. Then there were the road hogs of the towns, fine gentlemen who carted through the filthy streets, sending showers of mud and pebbles at the carmen, who drove in the gutters with even more dire results. And the outcry against the first "flying coaches" was as loud as that against motor-

HIGHFIELD PRESBYTERIAN. There will be service to-morrow at 2.30 in Presbyterian Church, Highfield, conducted by Mr. J. T. MacKenzie.

LOSS OF FINE HORSE.—A valuable horse belonging to Mr. W. H. Birt, an employee of Jenkins & Sons, received a broken leg in a traffic accident on Great George Street yesterday and had to be put out of misery. The horse shied at something on the street, fell, and had its leg broken by the front wheel of the wagon.

MR. J. S. WEDLOCK LEAVING.—Mr. J. Stanley Wedlock leaves this morning for Fitzburg, Mass., where he will reside in future. Mr. Wedlock is establishing a fox ranch near Fitzburg in conjunction with other gentlemen of that place and is taking away a number of beautiful foxes as foundation stock.

USED FOX HOUND.—Mr. Wm. Vincent, West Devon, employed his fox hound this week in the capture of a fox escaped from the house of Mr. H. R. Crockett. The hound roused up the animal after a long chase but Mr. Vincent found it necessary to shoot the fox. The pet, a remarkably good one, is now in possession of the owner.

SMELT PRICES INCREASING.—The price being paid by buyers for smelts continues to increase, 20 to 25 cents per pound. The catch in this province has not been satisfactory and some fishermen have taken in their nets. With colder weather the probabilities are that the fish will become more plentiful.

PARTRIDGE SEASON.—This is the open season for partridge shooting of these birds being open only every alternate year. According to reports many birds have been shot, some gunners being seen with more than their share. While others are reported to be which all has a tendency to exterminate one of our few remaining gunners in all localities will assist in every possible way to protect partridge during the close season in order to make up for the present slaughter.

NURSES ENTERTAINMENT.—A very enjoyable Halloween party was given the nursing staff of the P. E. I. Hospital by Mrs. L. H. D. Foster and family, Marshfield, on the evening of the 31st ult. The nurses and their accompanied friends are very grateful to the Foster family for their kindness so much evidenced by the elaborate preparation made to make the evening such an enjoyable one as it was, and also the gentlemen who so kindly furnished out conveyed. The general amusement consisted of the various games indulged in by somewhat marred however, when H. W. sustained a near approach to a fractured skull, but these "Angels in White" again demonstrated their professional ability when they successfully resuscitated their genial friend, although they may yet be given a lecture or two on the cause and cure of black eyes.

SEA CADETS TO BE ESTABLISHED HERE.—It is hoped that a Corps of Sea Cadets may be formed here in the near future. This is a very successful type of organization which has done much to promote and maintain a spirit of manliness and love of the great outdoors among the boys of the Old Country. The work of the Sea Cadets in Great Britain during the War is now a matter of history. This Corps is very similar to the Boys' Navy League, and is sponsored by the Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve, which is now being formed, and which is very similar to our Militia except that its training embraces the science of Seamanship. This organization will enable our younger generation to have the benefit of sea training, without the necessity of making the sea their vocation.

EARTHQUAKE STORY TOLD.—In connection with the vivid description of the Japanese earthquake given in an interview with the local press by Mr. Jos. R. Flint, of Montreal, who visited Charlottetown recently it is interesting to note that Capt. Robinson, R. N. R., the commander of the Canadian Pacific Steamship Empress of Australia on which Mr. Flint was a passenger, has written an account of the experience of himself, his crew and his ship during the period of the disaster. The report has been issued by the C. P. R. in booklet form and fully bears out Mr. Flint's account from the time of the first quake on Saturday, Sept. 1st, when the ship was preparing to leave the dock at Yokohama, until Sept. 12th when after encountering innumerable difficulties, including a fouled propeller, a sea of burning oil, and serving as a hospital and relief ship for the earthquake sufferers, the Australia left the stricken Orient for Vancouver. The Captain's report of his own heroic actions is modest in extreme.

VERDICT GIVEN ON MURDER CASE

(Canadian Press.) HALIFAX, Nov. 2.—A verdict of manslaughter was returned by the jury today in the case of Roy Green charged with the murder of his wife last March.

That the wife came to her death from a shot in the hands of her husband was admitted by the defence who claimed that he was insane with anger after hearing a telephone conversation between him and another man when he made a call on her.

Green and his wife had been separated.

Famous French Tapestries Have Been Recovered

(Associated Press.) VERSAILLES, Nov. 2.—The two famous Gobelin tapestries, each valued at a million francs, which were stolen from the walls of the Versailles palace on the night of October 21 were recovered today in the home of Prosper Charles who was arrested yesterday.

Progress at our Fairs

(Associated Press.) A splendid feature of our provincial and local school fairs that has been inaugurated of recent years, is the boys and girls calf classes and clubs and also the judging competition. A few years back, to my mind, the chief feature of our fairs was the improvement of our crops and live stock.

When young people take an active interest in the fair, and what goes with it, there will be no need to worry about the quality of crops and live stock; they will take care of that. I have seen no more pleasing feature of provincial and local school fairs than the line up of the Pioneer Boys Club Calf at Charlottetown or even the showing and judging of our school men and women at our school fairs. In the former case the boys and their progeny had been fed and cared for by their boys and the high quality of their exhibits as a club, their splendid fit and good manners furnished conclusive proof that boys' even in their early teens are capable of "doing things" when interest is aroused, as well, or better in some cases than we are inclined to give them credit for.

Then the interest shown by our boys and girls at our school fairs, in the live stock and agricultural exhibits is bound to achieve greater things in the future. It is one of the brightest outlooks of agriculture to see our coming farmers manifesting so much interest in the things that tell just imagine what these lessons will mean to them when they have to take our place in this great agricultural field.

The chief thing is to awaken interest. During the past season many of our boys and girls have visited the neighboring school districts to see the calves being got ready for the fair. I heard one boy, a fair, who was showing a calf well up in the money say come, dad, and see, the calves, we've got them all trimmed, and he had, then again when you see boys even before they reach their teen age go into their own stable and make an effort to pick out the best cows and give their reasons for their placings it angers will for their future as farmers and an interest and enthusiasm will carry a boy a long way on the road to success, and one of the chief functions of a modern fair is to awaken that interest and enthusiasm that has dormant in every youthful breast. This requires further innovations and new features. The old fashioned stereotyped exhibition must be modernized and adapted to the times. It is the young people to whom a fair must appeal. It is the boys and girls who will make the preparation, which Prince Edward Island what should be and it is our boys and girls who will some day place agriculture on a higher plane.

Government Diver

at a time on this job and I finally succeeded in patching up temporarily the big hole in the bottom."

"Have you ever had any close calls in your experience?" he was asked.

"Of course, every diver has had close calls," was the reply. "It is generally a matter of air pressure. Once I had to work 145 feet below the surface of Fiddlers Elbow in the Lake of the Thousand Isles, looking for a steel barge that had sunk suddenly. I made nineteen trips under water before I discovered it. Some places you can see very well under water but nothing could be seen here, because I was right under the Niagara Falls and the current made a continual bubbling, I was weighted with 250 pounds of lead with a 96 pound weight on my chest alone. I was in very bad condition from the air pressure when I stumbled upon the wreck I was looking for. I did not know whether I got the line fast or not because I was brought up unconscious and found myself lying on deck when I came to. About an hour afterwards, they put me aboard a steam yacht and sent me away for a week-end holiday. It doesn't do to push a diver to the limit, because his "nerve" is about the most valuable thing he possesses. I consider that experience a very close shave, because in my helpless state I was entirely relying on the helpers above to do the right thing. I have had other nasty experiences, but that will serve as an example."

..A Shark Nearby.

"Have you encountered any monsters of the deep?" the reporter asked in the hopeful anticipation of hearing something blood-curdling.

Mr. Poland said he had not, but such things were by no means impossible. Last summer, while returning the boilers of the wrecked steamer Lee at Halifax, he had been warned of the presence of a shark in the water, but had never encountered him. Divers carry a good heavy knife with them, and might put up a pretty good fight even with a shark, but he was not hankering for the opportunity of meeting anything bigger underwater than a codfish.

Water is densely opaque, and when not lighted by the sun the element a diver works in is as black as midnight. The electric torch he carries lights up dimly to a radius of only a couple of feet. To examine a ship bottom he must peer at very close and rivet, feeling his way carefully over the uneven surface of the river bed and striving above everything to avoid stumbling or falling, which might entangle the air tube and cause unconsciousness or, however, it can be quite bright under water even at a depth of 110 feet, as Mr. Poland proved on one occasion in Lake Ontario when he found he could read a scrap of an old newspaper which he picked up.

Divers have been known to sleep under water, and this happened to Mr. Poland on one occasion, when working long hours at a hurry-up job. At one time, out of an eighteen hour working day, he had spent sixteen hours under water.

Mr. Poland, who was in this province seven years ago on the same work he is now engaged in, was originally from London, England, and was a prize fighter before taking up what he facetiously terms the less dangerous profession of diver and wreck-dynamiter.

Four hundred miles from the Bonin Bright by creek, 100 by straight line. A primitive pit filled with rotting palm-nuts. Half a hundred naked Africans stamping monotonously in the shallow pit, treading out the oil. Under a large canopy a corpulent chief, marking the pace, ready to deal out condign punishment to the recalcitrant and the weary.

Day follows day. The tough nuts yield slowly to the treading. At first a seum; then an inch of yellow grease; two, three inches.

The big canoes is overhauled, seams caulked, awning mats stretched. An empty hoghead is placed amidships, another in the bow, one astern. The picnics (children) and the estahna (girls) carry the reeking oil from the stamping pit, and slowly the great hogheads take their fill.

The last ounce in the crew assembles. As this is the first voyage of the season, the chief honors it with his presence. Twelve of his strongest paddlers are selected not men, but ladies to stamp out the oil. It is ladies first this time.

The long journey begins. A noisy send-off from the men; an evasive one from the women. Visions of past struttings in now Calabar, in Bonny in Lagos, We, who are old, salute you! The chief's crew are buxom and young.

Days of weary paddling through noisome creeks; of restless resting through stifling night; of aching stabbing at sluggish water, the while the pitiless sun burns into the soft black backs. The fat Fate in the sheltered bower aft must be fed and humored, else one's first made have been known to make two, even three.

The swiftly flowing Niger at last! The sense of immensity in its two miles width!

The great town draws near. The jaded muscles find new strength. His Highness brightens. Beneath the tin roofs of yonder palace lurk untold treasures—and gin—and again gin.

A broad sweep to humor the stubborn tide, a last straining of the youthful muscles, and the weary girls stretch eager hands to grasp the slimy piles of the station wharf.

Does earth hold anything better than this? Smooth stretch, ruffling heaux; a helplessly drunken lord H. Fales, St. John.

SACKVILLE YOUTH SHOT IN MONTREAL

MONTREAL, Nov. 2.—In an attempt to escape from the police G. Esterbrook, 23, of Sackville, N. B., was shot in the left leg here last night.

Constables Schacter and Murphy were walking in Windsor street when they noticed two men opposite the Quebec liquor commission store. They showed the men their badges, but before they could put any questions, one of the men attempted to strike Schacter with his fist. The constable parried the blow and tried to retaliate. The two men then took to their heels with the constables in pursuit.
