A TYPICAL RESPONSE

Among the many encouraging assurances which have been received by Mr. T. C. James, Secretary of the Army Field Service Fund, regarding contributions to the patriotic funds that are being raised in this Province, the following letter which Mr. James has received from the Rev. Mgr. D. M. MacDonald, pastor of the church of Ss. Simon and Jude, Tignish, furnishes a striking example:

T. C. James, Esq.

Dear sir:—I have already recommended to my congregation the duty of contributing towards the one hundred thousand bushels of oats promised the Mother Country by our local government, also to contribute money to pay the transhipment to its destination. Ten ladies of the place have organized a branch of the Red Cross Society, have collected some funds and are preparing such materials as are thought to be useful in the treatment of wounded soldiers on the field and in hospitals. I think that the call to the farmers for contributions in oats will meet with a generous response and have no doubt that the whole business will reflect credit on our Little Province.

I have the honor to be, dear sir,
Your obedient and humble servant,
(Sgd.) Dugald M. MacDonald.

PROMOTED ON THE BATTLEFIELD FROM CORPORUL TO SUB-LIEUTENANT

LIMOGES, France, September 14—On a train loaded with wounded, which passed here today, was a young French officer, Albert Palaphy, whose unusual bravery on the field of battle won for him the legion of honor. As a simple corporal of the tenth dragoons at the beginning of the war Palaphy took part in the recent violent combat with the Germans. In the thick of the battle the corporal, finding his colonel wounded and helpless, rushed to his aid. Palaphy hoisted the injured man upon his shoulders and under a rain of machine gun bullets carried the colonel safely to the French lines. That same day Palaphy was promoted to be a sergeant.

Shortly afterwards, altho wounded, he distinguished himself in another affair leading a charge of his squad against the Baden guards, whose standard he himself captured. Wounded by a ball which had ploughed through the lower part of his stomach and covered with lance thrusts he was removed from the battlefield during the night and learned that he had been promoted to be a sublieutenant and nominated chevalier in the legion of honor.

This incident of decorating a soldier on the battlefield recalls Napoleonic times.

WAS WAR NEEDED TO THIN OUT THE PEOPLE?

Malthusian Doctrine Adheres to Theory That Conflict is Necessary

POPULATION ON SMALL AREA

Threatens to Outrun Larder if Not Kept Down by Some Means

Malthus Nineteenth Century economist, predicted that in time the growth of the peoples of Europe would be so great it would surpass the ability of the earth to give food; demand would exceed supply. Then, he said, starvation would ensue. All, of course, unless the growth was checked. Such checks, he predicted, would come with wars and pestilences. His prophecy has become known as the Malthusian Doctrine.

Since time was, the peoples of the earth, when they have grown so great in numbers as to crowd one another, have been wasted by calamities—scourges, pestilences, wars. That, undoubtedly will be the fate of Europe again, as a result of the present war of the nations.

All Europe has a vast and growing population on a small area. The peoples elbow one another; the struggle for existence is intense. And now comes the greatest war in the world's history.

Germany has every available man in its armies; only old men and boys remain behind. France, too, has impressed all its men for the war. England is planning to send a half million to the Continent every three months. Russia, vastest of all in population, is sending its countless hordes to do battle and die. Belgium has put its workmen, its artisans, its truck gardeners under arms—and many, already, underground. Italy is rushing all its men to the front and may be dragged into the conflict. Austria has impressed every man available to bear arms. In all Europe, the husbandmen, the workers, the producers, have gone to war or are bound to go eventually.

IN OVERCROWDED EUROPE.

And Europe, with its big population, is crowding itself now. None of its interminable calamities have visited it for years. One is overdue. Is it the present war?

So great is the population today that land holdings of the size common in even the thickly settled eastern states of America are unknown in Europe.

Germany with a growing population of 68 million is thrice the size of Missouri; Belgium, about equal to Maryland in size, has more than 7 million.

Or again, how well would a gardener get along on 2 1-2 acres? Would er get along on 2 1-2 acres? Would least five or six, paying taxes yearly equivalent to what he would have to pay in America on 20 acres of valuable land—all out of the proceeds from the sale of truck raised on that two and one-half acres? Yet the Belgian truck gardener does it—and his wife works in the field side by side with him and the faithful dogs

The growth of French population was checked by the Franco-Prussian war in 1871, when the flower of the French youth died in hospital or on the battlefield. And the Napoleonic wars, a short time previously, also had cut down the French Yet France most backward in growth of population among the European countries supports 38 millions in a country somewhat less than three times the size of Missouri.

And what of England? Why, England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales, with an area of somewhat less than twice that of Missouri, support a population of 47 millions.

Once again all Europe has attained a great growth. And once again comes calamity to cut down the peoples—a blind reaper slashing here and there in the standing harvest. For Europe has had vast populations before, and always something has intervened to decimate it.

THINNED OUT BY WARS.

The Black Plague of the Middle Ages; the Crusades; the Thirty Years' War; the Napoleonic Wars; the Wars of the Succession; internal strifes in every country; the Franco-Prussian War—all played their part in keeping the land from becoming too crowded. With every war went famine and pestilence.

The Crusades sent wave after wave of young men into the death trap of the east; the Black Plague wasted every nation; the War of Succession raged from the Baltic to the Mediterranean, with death stalking in their wake; the Thirty Years' War cut down the population of Germany by half and turned a fair country into the home of wolves and bandits; the Napoleonic Wars reduced a masculine stature in France a foot, stripped France of its young men and did the same for the nations that opposed the Little Corporal; the Franco-Prussian War capped the job for France. In England the Civil Wars of the Roses, of the Stuarts, of Roundhead and Cavalier prevented the people from crowding one another into the sea.

Will there be room for growth in Europe at its conclusion?

WILL THIS PROPHECY ALSO BE REALIZED?

Monk's Forecast Made in 1640 Has Been Fulfilled in Part

MONTREAL, Sept. 14.—Senator David, city clerk of Montreal, recalled to mind at the City Hall this morning a remarkable prophecy made in 1640 by a German monk named Hermann, which German as well French papers have repeatedly published since the Franco-Prussian war of 1870-71.

When he was interested in a local French newspaper during the time of the war as a result of which Alsace and Lorraine were lost to France, the Senator published the prophecy in his paper. In short it was that France and Germany would meet in a tremendous struggle early in the seventies (the prophesy was made in 1640). The monk further prophesied that France would be defeated, and that Paris would be besieged. The war would also mark the birth of a united Germany, and this as events showed, proved to be exactly the case.

In the subsequent course of his prophecy, the monk Hermann, after having reviewed political and economical conditions in Europe, declared that France and Germany would again meet in a terrific struggle, in which many of the other nations of Europe would participate. It was prophesied that hundreds of thousands of lives would be lost, and that France would be devastated by the war.

Paris would not again be bombarded, but would be set on fire, the monk said, after which the French people would rise up and annihilate their foes. The end of the war would see the disintegration of the Germanic Empire, the banishment of the Emperor Wilhelm, who would be the last of the Hohenzollerns to sit upon the throne and the establishment of a peace to which practically all the nations of Europe would be signatories.

The Senator declared that last year he read in a French newspaper published in Paris that the German people were exceedingly superstitious regarding the Hermann prophesy and that even the Emperor, though ready for war at that time, feared to court a realization of the monk's prophetic vision.

The monk said that the second struggle between France and Germany would occur forty-three years after the first war. Forty-three added to 1870 is 1913 but, and Senator David smiled, forty-three added to 1871, the year the Franco-Prussian war ended, is 1914.

AROUND THE FUR RANCHES

Application is being made to the Lieut.-Governor-in-Council for letters patent for the incorporation of another new fox company, to be known as "The Equity Silver Black Fox Co., Ltd., with a capital of $20,000, divided into 200 shares of $100 each; the applicants for incorporation, who are to be the provisional directors, being Mesrs W. A. Brennan, A. R. Brennan and Wilfred Tanton, all of Sumerside, where the head office of the company is to be located.

* * *

Mr Chester McLure, of the Fur Farmers' Bureau, leaves this morning for Montreal on business in connection with the fox industry.

* * *

The Guardian representative, on calling at the Royal Investment Exchange yesterday had the pleasure of finding the staff busy preparing the circular letters and accompanying cheques to the various shareholders of the Provincial Silver Black Fox Co., Ltd., forwarding to them the fruits of the forty per cent. dividend which the Company has just declared. The letters contain the further gratifying statement that a further dividend will be paid in due course. The Provincial Company is one of the most successful companies this year, which is its first year. About 400 such letters and cheques as are spoken of above have been sent out.

* * *

Applications for fox stock are still coming in from the United States, was the statement made yesterday by the manager of one of the city fox exchanges. This comes as further proof of the satisfactory state of the industry in the investment market.

* * *

Letters patent have been granted for the incorporation of "The Paragon Silver Black Fox Co., Ltd.," with a capital stock of $150,000, divided into fifty-dollar shares, and with its head office to be located at Montague.

* * *

A prominent New Yorker who, as the result of a visit to this province and a personal investigation of the fox industry, is anxious to become substantially interested in it, is evidently so convinced of the stability and profitableness of the business that he is ready to buy stock at ten and even twenty-five points above par. This, it is to be noted, at a time when hardly any other investment anywhere else can realise its par value.

* * *

At the Fur Farmers' Bureau the Guardian man learnt that conditions of business in that quarter continued to be satisfactory. Said Mr Bonnell: "Our agent in Massacheusetts writes us that conditions there are now better than they were a fortnight ago, though there is still room for improvement." And what was even more encouraging was that accompanying that letter was "a nice little bunch of applications for stock," with the necessary cheques.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

GREAT BRITAIN WILL HAVE NEARLY TWO MILLION SOLDIERS

When Plans Are Completed Force Will Be Efficient to Meet All Possibilities

LONDON, Sept. 14.—When the Government's plans are completed the British army for the Continent and for home service will consist roughly of the following: Regular army, 1,200,000; territorials, 300,000; reserves, 214,000; Indian contingent, 70,000; Canadian first and second contingents, 40,000; Australians, 20,000; and New Zealand, 10,000—making a total of 1,854,000 men.

This tremendous enrolment for a country which normally has only a small professional army has thrown light upon the Government's views regarding the duration of the war, or, at least, upon its determination to meet all possibilities.

A casualty list published last night brings the army's losses to nearly 19,000 men, exclusive of the past three days' fighting. Yet this big toll from the small army seems in nowise to depress the country.

Since the war began, the offices of the Hamburg-American Line in Cockspur street have been closed, the window shutters have been utilized for the display of posters urging volunteers to join Kitchener's new army, much to the amusement of the passers-by. A step further has now been taken, the office being seized by the military authorities as a recruiting depot.

Hospital will be in London.

Provided that negogiations now in progress go through, the Queen's Canadian Military Hospital will be in London, within easy reach of the High Commissioner's office. The alternative to this would be a location outside the Metropolis, but the medical staff desire to be in the city. The equipment and maintenance of an Hospital of one hundred beds with supervision of the convalescent period, will require for one year £2,000. Funds will also be needed for general work by the Canadian War Contingent Association. An appeal is now being issued for contributions to the general funds, while a special appeal is being made by Canada lodge to Canadian Freemasons. The patrons include the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, Prince and Princess Arthur of Connaught, Princess Louise and Prince and Princess Alexander of Teck.

Dr. Philippe Pelletier, Agent-General for Quebec, has been appointed a member of the medical staff of the hospital. Dr. Pelletier has offered to help in the War Office examination of recruits, over which great delay occurs through the insufficiency of doctors.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Macmaster have placed their spacious home, Merlewood at Virginia Water, at the disposal of the War Office for Canadian wounded convalescents and have also offered their personal ministrations for the welfare of their guests. Merlewood is beautifully situated in the Surrey Hills, half an hour from London.

Another Blow at Germany.

The British Parliament is about to strike another blow against German trade by passing the "Trading with the Enemy" Bill, the terms of which were published today, which would punish such trading by a fine of £500 and twelve months' imprisonment on summary conviction, or penal servitude of from three to seven years, on conviction on indictment. The bill deals a hard blow at companies financed by German capital, but registered in England, many of which have been supplying Germany with foodstuffs and other commodities via Holland.

SCOTS MINISTER'S FATE

Shot by Germans in a Belgian Village. Women's Story of the Murder.

The following thrilling and circumstantial account of the escape of an English lady and her children from Germany, and of the murder of an English gentleman and the burning of a Belgian village by German troops has been furnished to us by Mr. Geo. Bonar, of the firm of Low and Bonar (Limited), of Dundee and 53, New Broad Street, E. C. Mr. Bonar reached London with his wife and children Thursday night last week. He says:—

In July I left my wife, with two little boys aged 9 and 7, and a nurse, at Bad Ems, and went to Norway for a fortnight's fishing. When war was declared I could not get back to them in time. The hotel people advised my wife not to run away, but to wait until the mobilization was over and the railways free again. On the afternoon of Monday, August 3, things got so bad that she decided to leave. With the children and nurse she left Ems by the 4 p. m. train, which she was assured would take her through to Brussels. At Herberthal, the last town in Germany, they were peremporily ordered to get out, as there was no longer a connection with Belgium. The only thing for them to do was to walk over the frontier to the nearest Belgian town, which was Wilkenraad. It was a miserable night, and rain fell heavily.

At Wilkenraad hundreds of people of all nationalities were walking about the streets in the pouring rain unable to get accommodation. A woman took pity on the plight of my children and put them up for the night. My wife had no money but gave her some jewelery. It was thought that if they could get to Verviers they would be able to reach Ostend. A cart was obtained and a hood was put over it to protect them from the rain. The party was composed of my wife and two children, the nurse, three American ladies, and an English gentleman named Mackenzie, aged 78. Mr. Mackenzie was a man of wide culture and I believe was well known in London, but I have not yet been able to trace his relatives.

STOPPED BY THE GERMANS

On the road from the German town of Eupen they met the first German troops marching on Belgium. They were stopped and the waggon commandeered. The whole party walked to the little village of Baelen-Dolhain, where a Belgian custom-house oficer, M. Michel Blaise, gave them shelter. On Tuesday, August 4, the three Americans and two young men from the Chilean Legation in Berlin, real-
